Parker Clinches Final Match

Wimbledon, Eng., July 27 (AP)—Sorrel-topped Don Budge, undefeated this year, whipped Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin today, 8—6, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3, as the United States completed its rout of Great Britain's Davis Cup forces and regained the international tennis trophy for the first time since 1927.

Budge's victory came after 21-year-old Frankie Parker of Milwaukee had clinched the cup with an astonishing straight triumph over Charles Edgar Hare, 6—2, 6—4, 6—2.

This made the final score—four victories for the United States, against one for Great Britain's unsuccessful cup defenders.

Great Britain, losing the cup after holding it since 1933, when France relinquished its six-year monopoly, could win only one match in the challenge round, Austin beating Parker in the opening singles match Saturday.

Budge's singles triumph over Hare on Saturday, and the doubles victory he and Mako scored over F. H. D. Wilde and C. R. D. Tuckey yesterday, set the stage for Parker. The Milwaukee youngster took full advantage of his dramatic opportunity.

After Parker had handed the

Nanking, China, July 28 (Wednesday) (AP)—Chinese military headquarters stated early today that Japanese forces had attacked Peiping shortly before midnight.

Peiping, July 27 (AP)—United States Marines prepared sandbag fortifications for the gates of the international legation quarter this afternoon after a Japanese ultimatum for evacuation of Chinese troops from the tense region west of Peiping had expired.

London, July 27 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Commons today that Great Britain had expressed to Japan its "earnest hope" that Japanese troops at Peiping would not take punitive action against the Chinese.

He said the British government was in constant touch with other powers interested in China, "particularly the United States government."

Washington, July 27 (INS)—The United States today made representations to Japan and China in an effort to halt fighting at Peiping, Secretary of State Hull announced.

G-MEN TO AID HUNT IN FOUR N. E. STATES

A bandit gang, already sought for a swift succession of holdups in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connectcut, suddenly struck in Maine today, robbing the Livermore Trust Co. in Livermore Falls of $3000.

At the same time federal G-men entered the hunt for this band of desperadoes, whose operations approach in daring those of the Millen-Faber gang.

G-men came into the investigation due to the fact that the Industrial Trust Co., robbed yesterday in Providence, is a member of the Federal Reserve system.

Now combined in the hunt for the bandits are the Federal authorities and the state police of Massachusetts, Maine, Rhode Island and Connecticut, the authorities of a half a dozen large New England cities and numerous smaller towns.

The Boston police entered the search with "shoot to kill" orders from the commissioner, Major Joseph F. Timilty.

Melrose Acting Mayor Fined as Tipsy Driver

Acting Mayor George E. Baker of Melrose, the only dry city in Massachusetts, was fined $100 in Malden court today for drunken driving and $10 for drunkenness, following a private hearing before Judge Maurice R. Flynn.

A charge of going away after causing damage to property without making known his identity was dismissed for lack of prosecution.

It was testified that on the night of July 14 his car crashed the automobile of Metropolitan Police Officer Charles Pierce, parked near Lake Quannapowitt, Wakefield, while the officer's family was listening to an open-air band concert.

It was stated that after the crash he started away, and Pierce, with Patrolman James Hallaway of Wakefield, gave chase, catching him a short distance away.

Baker was given until August 25 to pay the fine.

Death Stay Sought for Elder Di Stasio

BULLETIN

A two-month stay of sentence for Frank DiStasio, Revere candymaker now scheduled to die in the electric chair during the week of August 1, was sought today by Attorney William R. Scharton, counsel for DiStasio's convicted son, Anthony.

Appearing at Governor Hurley's office, Scharton said he would ask the chief executive to delay the electrocution of DiStasio, Sr., in order to afford sufficient time for a new appeal in the case of Anthony.

A young Catholic curate who serves as chaplain at East Cambridge jail inspired the last-minute move to save 54-year-old Frank DiStasio from the electric chair, it was learned by the Boston Evening American today.

This priest, the Rev. Alexander J. McCarthy, personally laid before

Simultaneous with Senator Lodge's acceptance is the announcement that the date of the meeting has been changed from August 3 to Sunday, August 1.

This meeting, under the auspices of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser, is the first to be held here since Great Britain announced its proposed plan to partition the Holy Land.

P. A. O'Connell, Boston merchant and prominent in civic, charitable and business affairs, will act as chairman.

ELDER, GIRL DENY KISSES, RAP NORTON

Greenfield, July 27—The man who accused him of kissing a secretary and who now accuses him of threats with a shotgun once admitted being a "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," former Dean Thomas E. Elder of Mt. Hermon School declared in court here today.

On the stand in his own defense to the shotgun charges, Elder became quite heated as he talked about his accuser, S. Allan Norton, one time cashier at the school.

He flatly denied that he ever attempted to assault Norton in any way at all.

He said that the story about the kissing was "a damn lie" and that he had told Headmaster Henry F. Cutler it was at the time Norton related it.

He asserted also that he had asked Dr. Cutler to invite the ladies out of the room so that he could give Norton "a good thrashing." The ladies were Mrs. Cutler and Mrs. Elder.

PRAYED FOR NORTON

"Two days later, Dr. Cutler again called Norton and me to his home to pray about the affair," Elder continued. "I told Dr. Cutler I wasn't enthusiastic about the prayer, but we knelt down and prayed.

Elder, Girl Aide Deny Kiss; Dean Scorns Accuser

ing. I asked God to forgive him also."

After the prayer session, Elder went on, three days elapsed. Then, he said, Norton came visiting again.

"He came to my office, highly agitated, and asked me if I would talk to him about the accusation," testified Elder. "He said that all his life he had been a 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde' and that he couldn't help it, but wanted to reform.

"I told him if he really meant it and really wanted to reform, I would forgive him. I told him I bore no malince and no ill feeling and that if he ever needed help he could come to me as he had before."

GIRL DENIES KISSES

Preceding the former dean on the stand by only a few minutes was attractive, auburn-haired Evelyn Dill, the 29-year-old secretary named by Norton in the alleged kissing incident.

Blushing prettily on occasion, she nevertheless gave her testimony in a calm, low voice.

She admitted readily having been "quite friendly" with her employer, but denied flatly ever having been kissed, hugged or chucked under the chin by him.

She said that Norton himself had apologized to her for having told such a story to Dr. Cutler and after the apology begged her to "forget it."

EVELYN DILL

"I'll do that," she said she told Norton at the time.

CROWD HEARS TESTIMONY

The Franklin county courthouse where Elder is being tried, was jammed to the doors when the trial resumed this morning.

It was the news that Miss Dill and Elder himself were to take the stand that caused the overflow.

Miss Dill, rather tiny, very pretty, with bright auburn hair, was smartly attired in a blue ensemble. She approached the stand hesitantly, was sworn in in a very subdued voice and then started her testimony as necks craned to watch her.

She looked once in Elder's direction and they exchanged faint smiles. She didn't look at Norton at all. He was seated within a few feet of her.

After the customary identification questions, Defense Counsel Charles Fairhurst suddenly asked:

"Is it true that Dean Elder ever kissed you?"

"No," the witness answered, almost inaudibly.

Q—Is it true that Dean Elder ever chucked you under the chin? A—(A little louder) No.

Q—Is it true that Dean Elder ever embraced you? A—No, it isn't!

CITES NORTON APOLOGY

Fairhurst then asked Miss Dill if Norton had ever mentioned having accused the dean of such actions with her.

She said he had, and that he had come to her afterwards and said:

"I am sorry that I made an untrue accusation against you. Let's forget it."

Her ly had been that she would forget it, she said.

Questioning then turned to the "peep-holes" through which Norton had said he observed the alleged kissing. These "peep-holes" were bored through the wall of a closet where Miss Dill hung her clothes and where there was also a filing cabinet.

Fairhurst requested Miss Dill to stand up in the witness box, and as she did, he asked:

"How tall are you?"

"About five feet three, I guess," was her reply.

FRIENDLY WITH ELDER

Fairhurst bowed to District Attorney David H. Keedy, indicating that the defense was finished with the witness for the time being.

Keedy began cross-examination by asking:

"I don't remember," was the answer.

Q—You were very friendly with Mr. Elder, weren't you? A—Yes, quite friendly.

Q—Mr. Elder frequently took you for a ride, didn't he? A—He took me to Greenfield sometimes.

Q—Didn't he try to teach you to drive?

Miss Dill said Elder had once attempted to teach her to drive. Mrs. Elder had been consulted she added.

"Oh," declared Keedy," you had to ask Mrs. Elder, eh?"

Miss Dill nodded "yes."

Q—You would go to lunch with Mr. Elder, wouldn't you? A—Sometimes, when I was with him on business.

Q—You went to Brattleboro with him, didn't you? A—Yes, on business, once.

Q—You went to Boston with him once? A—I don't rememner.

Q—Didn't you go to a theater with him on business? A—I don't remember.

This completed her testimony.

As she had testified, Elder had shifted about in his seat. During part of her testimony, Miss Dill blushed.

Harry Ferguson, a clerk at the Keene, N. H., hotel, followed her on the stand, but testified briefly. Elder has contended he went to the hotel after attending a meeting of a cattle association in Brattleboro.

Then it was the turn of the defendant himself, and the courtroom was hushed as he took the oath, sat down and adjusted himself comfortably in the witness chair.

The dean was pale and his hands toyed with his vest, but his voice was clear and he answered firmly—sometimes in very loud tones. He talked fast as he became excited over his alleged scenes with Norton, but was coherent all of the time.

MENTION OF SLAIN SPEER

He testified that the first clash with Norton came early in his career at Mt. Hermon school.

Then was mentioned the name of Dr. Elliott Speer, headmaster of Mt. Hermon, who was mysteriously slain by shotgun slugs in 1934. The reference was brief, made by Elder as he was explaining another conflict with Norton.

Talking of his duties at the school, Elder said the scholarship committee was composed of five members of the faculty, of which Norton was a member.

"When Mr. Speer came there, he removed all the scholarship duties from his office and passed them on to me," said Elder.

The former dean said Norton also had objected when he (Elder) had ordered a man, disabled in duties at the school farm, paid in full for the time he was unable to work.

"BACK TO THE DAY 1"

The district Attorney objected to airing Elder's past history. Justice Hammond commented:

"We'll take this back to the year 1, even to the day 1, if it's necessary, to determine whether there was any enmity between these two men."

Then the judge warned Fairhurst to "control your witness."

"Did you assault Mr. Norton?" Fairhurst asked bluntly.

"No, I did not,' Elder replied.

"Were you in front of Mr. Norton's home with a gun on the night of May 25 of this year?" asked Fairhurst.

"No," replied Elder.

Elder described about going to Brattleboro on business for the Cattle Association May 25 but said he left and went to Keene, where, because of feeling ill, he took a room with his wife at the Eagle Hotel.

He said he retired to his room because he was "suffering" from heart trouble.

Later, he testified, he went with his wife to supper, then returned to bed for a rest.

Later, he testified, he went outside to buy gasoline for his automobile and park it for the night, returning to the hotel about 8 o'clock and remaining there all night.

"I saw a man at the other end of the corridor," he continued, "but I don't know who he was or whether he saw me."

The following day, he testified, he and his wife returned to their home in Alton. He said police then came to his home and told him of Norton's accusation. He said they searched his home.

TWO GUNS IN HOME

"Did they find any guns?" asked Fairhurst.

"Yes," replied Elder. "There was a .20 gauge shot gun in the attic and a small .22 rifle hanging in my son's room."

Elder said he "couldn't recall" whether he and Miss Dill had gone together to Boston.

"It might have been possible," he said. "Miss Dill lived in Boston and I might have taken her down to Harvard square."

Q—Did you take Miss Dill to a theater in Boston? A—I can't recall.

Q—There has been testimony that you know Norton's handwriting, is that so? A—Yes.

Q—Did you receive a bankbook in a letter addressed in Norton's handwriting?

Elder first said he couldn't recall, declaring, "My wife takes care of matters like that," but later testified he had "read something about it in the newspapers."

"Now," said Keedy, "let's get back to the so-called kissing episode."

Elder testified under Keedy's cross-examination he was "angered" at Norton's accusation, and "went towards" the school cashier with "indignation" in his heart.

"It was Dr. Cutler that interfered and prevented you from execution of your wrath?" asked Keedy.

"I wouldn't say so," replied Elder. "I wanted to thrash him. I wanted to take him across my knee and spank him like a kid."

"You didn't take part wholeheartedly in the prayer meeting?"

"No," said Elder.

"Then this prayer to you was nothing more than a sham and a mockery?" Keedy questioned.

"At the beginning," replied Elder.

"When did you change?" asked Keedy.

CODMAN HEARING CHAT; WITNESS IN 'REFLECTIVE' POSE

LAVID LASKER AL SPOHRER

Boston Evening American Photos

A shiny table-top enabled the camerman to catch City Councillor John F. Dowd in this "reflective" pose, as he appeared as a witness at the Codman hearing. Dowd's raised hand is clearly empty, but, mirrored in the table varnish, it seems to be reaching for a paper cup of water.

BRENNAN WINS FIN COM O.K. ON WITNESS

After having been rebuffed by the Finance Commission scores of times during the hearings on the Codman Hill Construction Co. Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph P. Brennan, appearing as defender of the administration, scored two signal victories today.

Brennan won permission to bring in prominent persons to testify about the quality of the work done by the construction concern, to offset testimony that the jobs were poorly done.

WINS BY STRATEGY

The rare privilege of presenting defense witnesses at a Finance Commission inquiry was won by Brennan by use of strategy.

He asked permission to read copies of letters, said to have been written by Samuel Eliot of Amory, Eliot Company, and Henry Whitmore of Meredith & Grew company, after an inspection of the work.

George R. Farnum, Finance Commission counsel, objected, saying:

"Bring in the men themselves so I can cross-examine."

"You mean I should produce these witnesses?" asked Brennan.

"Yes," said Chairman Lasker of the Finance Commission.

SCOLPONETI COMMENTS

Apparently taken back by the assistant corporation counsel's glee, Finance Commissioner Joseph A. Scolponeti remarked:

"Mr. Brennan, I might suggest to you that in view of your line of prosedure, it is doubtful if you are representing the best interests of the city or the Codman Hill Construction Company."

"I assure you, I am representing the city," replied Brennan.

Brennan also got the Finance Commission today to state that Building Inspector Thomas L. Flynn was not wanted again as a witness. Published reports, ascribed to Finance Commission investigators, had it that Flynn's departure on vacation threatened to delay the probe.

Earlier today Special Counsel Farnum brought out that the White Fund trustees have not passed any vote to bar Major Roswell G. Hall, White Fund manager, from giving more work to the Codman Hill Construction Company.

HIRE FIRM FOR SURVEY

The trustees have, however, engaged the services of Charles T. Main, Inc., Devonshire street, to make a survey of the work done by the Codman Hill firm, it was stated.

George Driscoll, the White Fund clerk, said that when he asked William J. Driscoll, Codman Hill president, for a statement of the company's financial condition, this statement showed only $74 in cash.

An "inside story" of the much-criticized, waterproofing contract, given to the Codman Hill Construction Company by the White Fund, was related by George Driscoll under questioning by Attorney Farnum.

Driscoll asserted that when he took the contract around to be signed by the trustees, three of them signed it without asking any questions.

"GLANCED AT CONTRACT"

Q—Who signed first? A—I don't know. The mayor's signature was placed on it after I delivered it to John Gilmore, chief clerk. It came back to me with the mayor's signature on it. When I took it to John I. Fitzgerald, I told him Major Hall had instructed me to get his signature. He did not read it.

Q—Did Fitzgerald ask any questions? A—He asked no questions. He just signed it, after glancing at it.

Q—Had he ever seen it before? A—That was the first time he ever saw it, so far as I know.

Q—Did you take it to City Auditor Fox? A—I took it to Mr. Fox and he looked at it in a casual way.

Q—He asked no questions? A—He asked no questions.

Q—Had he ever seen it before? A—I believe that was the first time he had ever seen it.

"ASKED NO QUESTIONS"

Q—To whom else did you take the contract? A—I took it to Bentley Warren's office at 30 State street. Mr. Warren looked it over carefully.

Q—Did he ask any questions? A—He asked no questions and he signed it.

The fifth trustee, Eliot Wadsworth, Chamber of Commerce president, was absent from the city and did not sign this contract. Bentley Warren is president of the Boston Bar Association and John I. Fitzgerald, president of the city council.

BRITAIN DEBT DICKER SCORED BY SENATORS

Washington, July 27 (US)—Favorable reception by this government to any British proposal to slash her war debt will depend upon the size of the reduction, senators indicated today.

While many are agreeable to revision of the debt agrement, there appeared to be little sentiment for any "bargain" proposal.

Senator Borah, (R.) of Idaho, veteran of the foreign relations committee, said flatly that Congress will not agree to the proposal as now reported—a 50 per cent reduction in principal and the elimination of all interest.

Senator Lewis, of Illinois, Democratic whip of the Senate, insisted that the state department reveal immediately whether any such plan is under consideration, and the exact details of it.

BORAH'S STAND

Other sources agreed, generally, that Britain must offer a "reasonably large" settlement, or Congress is unlikely to approve it.

Senator Borah said:

"I do not assume for one moment that the administration, through its Treasury Department, is considering any such proposition as a reduction of 50 per cent in the British war debt to this nation and elimination of interest.

"First, it couldn't be done without the consent of Congress, and Congress would never countenance it.

"Second, it would be an act of betrayal of the American taxpayers — a betrayal such as no administration would dare undertake.

"In any talk within the administration about war debts, the emphasis should be put on collection, not settlement. If we took a strong stand and insisted upon payment, we would have no difficulty whatever in getting the money which rightfully belongs to us."

Borah said he will oppose vigorously any movement to effect a drastic reduction in war debts.

Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, Democratic whip of the Senate, conferred hastily with Senator Borah when he learned of the reported settlement terms. He told Universal Service:

"I will make an immediate investigation at the state department to learn what basis of fact there is for the report.

"I can scarcely imagine that the government would assume to entertain any such proposal without first submitting it to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee."

Roraback Estate Lists $3,201,111

Canaan, Ct., July 27 (AP)—J. Henry Roraback, Republican party chairman in Connecticut and utilities magnate, left an estate appraised at $3,201,111.59, it was disclosed today in an inventory filed in the probate court.

Roraback died May 19 of a self-inflicted bullet wound while at his South Harwinton estate.

His will filed shortly afterward left his entire estate to his widow, Mary P. Roraback, and a son, Lewis, except $30,000 which went to Miss Mary Collins, his secretary.

At the time of his death, Roraback was Republican National Committeeman and head of the Connecticut Light & Power Company.

Vet Third in Race for Robinson Seat

Little Rock, Ark., July 27 (AP)—A second independent candidate announced today he would oppose Governor Carl E. Bailey, Democratic nominee, for the Senate seat left vacant by the death of Joseph T. Robinson.

J. Rosser Venable of Little Rock, 48-year-old World War veteran, said he would enter a special election this fall against Bailey and Robert F. Waters, 48, mountaineer school teacher-humorist, who entered the race last night.

Pangborn Plans Wing Ship Flight

London, July 27 (AP)—Clyde Pangborn, American aviator who recently was released from a Russian detention camp, arrived here today from Moscow and announced a projected flight from England to the United States soon in a new "all wing" airplane.

Pangborn was held in a secluded airport on the Latvian border when he attempted to enter Russia without a visa. He was released after his companion, Congressman Sirovich, of New York, persuaded Soviet officials to issue a special visa.

Dinner for O'Brien, 50 Years in P. O.

Under the auspices of the Boston Postoffice Supervisors' Association, a dinner and reception will be tendered at the Parker House Thursday, at 7 p. m., to William J. O'Brien, recently retired at 70, after serving 50 years in the postal service.

O'Brien, former State Deputy of the Massachusetts State Council of the Knights of Columbus, served as superintendent of mails and organized the Back Bay postal station, where he was in charge at the time of his retirement.

British Spinsters Demand Pensions

London, July 27 (AP)—The signatures of a million British spinsters seeking pensions at the age of 55 were carried into the House of Commons in sacks, wooden tea chests and brown paper parcels.

The spinsters complain that they have to go on working until they are 65 before they get a pension, while a widow may get her pension earlier.

15 Convicts Slain in Mine Mutiny

Bucharest, Rumania, July 27 (INS)—Thirty-six hundred feet down in the glistening white shafts of the prison salt mine at Targulocha, 400 miners failed today in a desperate mutiny against their guards.

In a weird battle fought by the light of their tiny lamps, fifteen convicts were killed or wounded.

$15,000 Bail for Victor Friedberg

Victor Friedberg, 28, of Mayberry street, Roxbury, alleged pal of Frank P. O'Keefe, 31, wounded by police bullet Saturday, was held in $10,000 in Municipal Court today where he pleaded not guilty to charges of assault with intent to kill a police officer.

The trial was continued until August 27.

Friedberg was with O'Keefe when the latter was shot by Special Officer Vernon White on Huntington avenue while the two men were being questioned.

Grain Shortage Fought by Reich

Berlin, July 27 (AP)—Germany fought a short grain harvest today with an order forbidding the use of wheat or rye for anything but bread.

None may be used as animal fodder, Walter Darre, Reich commissioner for agriculture, proclaimed. The decree followed a "bread council" between provincial governors and Nazi party and peasant leaders.

Home Loan Issue Oversubscribed

Washington, July 27 (AP)—The Federal Home Loan Bank Board announced today its new issue of $26,000,000 worth of debentures was oversubscribed about 10 times.

The issue of one-year $1\frac{1}{4}$ per cent securities will be used by the 12 regional home loan banks to finance home construction and purchases through local building and loan associations.

PRIEST LEADS FIGHT TO AID DI STASIO

Gov. Hurley DiStasio's claim that he took the blame for the Hudson "torch slaying," although innocent, because he thought he could save his son's life.

Father McCarthy, it was disclosed, had come to the conviction that the condemned DiStasio was telling the truth after talking informally with him in jail almost every day for a period of several months.

The priest first related his conviction that there might have been "a serious miscarriage of justice" to John V. Mahoney, executive secretary.

STORY IS CHECKED

The story came to the governor's ears and he was so interested that he invited Father McCarthy to a personal conference. From a source close to the governor's office, it was learned that the priest did repeat the story to the Governor alone.

Then it was that Governor Hurley assigned investigators to check the salient points on which DiStasio bases his claim of innocence, as was told exclusively in the Boston Evening American yesterday.

Di Stasio is now under sentence to die in the electric chair the first of next week, probably after midnight on Monday. His son, Anthony, 26, despite the father taking the blame for the murder, is condemned to die during the week of September 12.

Because of the intervention of the chaplain, however, many persons have interested themselves in securing a stay of execution until the elder Di Stasio's new claims can be sifted thoroughly.

At the meeting of the executive council tomorrow, it is virtually certain that a petition for a stay will be considered.

PETITION FOR STAY

Attorney William R. Scharton, counsel for both of the Di Stasios in their trials for the murder of the "torch victim", Daniel M. Crowley, has announced that he will make such a move.

If Scharton does not, it was known that another person who has interested himself in the case will.

In any event, it is understood that Di Stasio will be visited in his death cell shortly afterwards by Major Ralph W. Robart, chairman of the board of pardons and paroles and by Executive Councillor Frank A. Brooks, chairman of the council committee on prisons and pardons.

Father McCarthy, who is attached to the Sacred Heart Church in East Cambridge, is now on his vacation and cannot be reached for comment on this extraordinary situation, but the part he has played in the drama was learned from a most reliable source.

Attaches at East Cambridge jail further confirmed the fact that the young priest was a constant visitor to the elder Di Stasio while the latter was confined there—before being moved to the death house in Charlestown.

QUESTIONS OTHERS

They said that Father McCarthy had questioned them closely about the prisoner after a series of heart-to-heart talks with him and that they were able to tell the priest a number of things tending to substantiate Di Stasio's claims.

What these details are, these attaches declined to say at this time, but all were part of the story that the chaplain told the governor.

In the event that all else fails to halt the scheduled execution, Attorney Scharton may petition for a writ of certiori from the Supreme Court in Washington, he said today.

Another attorney who has interested himself in the case is Francis J. Roche of Cambridge. It is known that he has been investigating Di Stasio's latest claims, but to what extent he is interested, Roche refused to say.

On the other hand, Roche is known to have visited Di Stasio in East Cambridge and was the last "outsider" to see the condemned man before he was moved to state prison.

Roche was asked if he intended to appear at the State House tomorrow. He replied:

"I might be there as a spectator and then again I might not. I have no official connection with the case."

Divorcee at Balm Trial Improves After Collapse

HER LOVE VALUED AT $100,000

SUIT RESUMES TOMORROW

Salem, July 27—Unnerved but improving after her breakdown in court, Mrs. Elizabeth Wing, 36-year-old Lynn divorcee, today awaited resumption of the trial tomorrow in which her ex-husband, Robert H. Wing, Lynn beef salesman, seeks $100,000 from his former wife's uncle in an alienation of affections suit.

MRS. WING ON WAY TO COURT

Testified Uncle's Attitude Was Always "Fatherly"

The comely young matron, who has adopted her maiden name of "Miss Furbush," collapsed after testimony that she had taken a trip to Hollywood in 1932 with her uncle, Frederick E. Furbush of Lynnfield, 54-year-old wealthy clubman-financier.

She broke into tears under questioning of Attorney James W. Sullivan, Wing's counsel, who asked her to reveal the "one condition" under which she would have gone back to live with her husband three months before their divorce in Reno in January, 1933.

"I can't! I can't tell you!" she sobbed. "I don't want it to come out here! Let someone else tell you about it!"

RECESS CALLED

Auditor C. Frank Hathaway called a recess while Mrs. Wing composed herself but she was still sobbing when the hearing resumed and she gave her testimony in a private conference at the bench.

Mrs. Wing told the court she treated her uncle "as though he were my own father," denying she had ever embraced him during the four months they lived together in a Hollywood apartment after a trip across the continent by automobile.

She classified her ex-husband as a "jealous man" and declared he had given her permission to leave for the West Coast with only her uncle as companion.

F. E. FURBUSH

Defendant in Suit

In fact, she said, she hugged and kissed Wing a few days before she began her transcontinental journey and parted from him for good.

SHE'D BE BACK

"Mr. Wing said it was all right for me to go to California with my uncle," Mrs. Wing testified. "He said that at my mother's home on the night I left him. The day before my uncle had said he would be glad to have me go to California with him if it were agreeable to my husband.

"I didn't tell my husband I was separting from him for good, no. I said that I'd be back in six or eight months. And my husband said it would be agreeable to him."

The wife said she paid her own hotel and meals expenses on the way west and that they lived in a Los Angeles hotel for several days before taking an apartment.

"Did you go house-hunting with your uncle, then?" Attorney Sullivan asked.

"Yes, I was introduced as his niece."

Mrs. Wing said she and her uncle had separate bed rooms in the apartment and she did all the household chores, such as washing the dishes and dusting.

"Your uncle never kissed you?"

"No, indeed, he acted like a father."

It was at this point, when Attorney Sullivan pressed the wife for the "one condition" under which she would have returned to her husband, that Mrs. Wing broke down.

"NOTHING IMPROPER"

Furbush, who inherited a $280,000 estate with the death of his 79-year-old wife in 1929, preceded Mrs. Wing to the stand and declared his niece's father and mother had suggested the California trip.

Dr. Dennett Frowns on Politics or Federal Job

Hague, N. Y., July 27 (AP)—Dr. Tyler Dennett, Pulitzer prize winner and one-time adviser to the State Department in Washington, who said "no" to a proposed campus real estate deal and then resigned as president of Williams College, thinks it unlikely he'll be offered a government job.

"I have no desire to get involved in partisan politics," he explained today, after admitting he knows well "the game in which the taxpayer puts in all the chips, but never has a chance to win."

Tanned and muscular, Dr. Dennett is going to take his time about answering "yes" to any offers of a new job.

"First, I've got to get my grass cut and put this lawn in shape," he told an interviewer at his summer home on a rugged Adirondack slope overlooking Lake George.

His eyes lighted with humor as he recalled that the main factor in his decision to give up the presidency of his alma mater last week was refusal of the college trustees to give him a "suspensory veto over expenditures."

"They wanted to buy a hotel across the street from the college and I opposed it," he explained. "In a steadily growing community, it is a good investment to buy contiguous property, but the population of Williamstown, Mass., has become almost static, so I couldn't see it as a business venture. Besides, we didn't need it, and we did need the money."

2 Women (of Wax) Smash Window

Chicago, July 27 (AP)—Serenely smiling, two fashionably gowned young women smashed the plate glass window of a dress shop in suburban Evanston.

Sergt. Burt Kinder arrived to find the window smashers reclining at ease in the midst of the window displays, but he could get no explanation of their conduct.

Yet he went back to the station alone. You can't arrest wax dummies for falling against glass, he explained.

Stowaway on Way To Alberta Home

Steve Czeck, 18, of Alberta, Canada, sailed from this port aboard the liner City of Flint today, his two months of free voyages as a result of his original stowaway giving him little more than a view of harbors from a cabin window.

Steve stowed away on the steamer Liberty at Halifax, N. S., and arrived in London, where he was not allowed to land. He stayed with the ship throughout its port call and finally arrived in Boston. Here he was transferred to the City of Flint for the return voyage home.

Salisbury Beach, July 27 — There's a law for everything, nowaways.

State police served him with a summons, to appear in Amesbury court Monday, after life guards charged that he not only refused to swim closer inshore when they warned him, but that he also declined to follow their requests when they rowed out in a boat to order him from dangerous waters.

Lady Cardigan's Plunge "Suicide"

London, July 27 (AP) — A coroner's verdict today said the death of the beautiful Lady Cardigan, who plunged from a West End hotel window to the street last Saturday night, was "suicide while of unsound mind."

Lord Cardigan testified his wife's mother had committed suicide and said his wife had spoken of the same thing.

EVA Set to Swim CHANNEL

3D MORRISON ATTEMPT SOON

Deal, Eng., July 27 (INS)—Husky, 182-pound Eva Morrison, 26-year-old Boston, Mass., hospital librarian and champion swimmer, commenced training here today for her third attempt to swim the English channel.

Reckoned to have the best chance for channel honors since the redoubtable Gertrude Ederle set up her record, Eva said today she was not contemplating an attack on "Trudy's" mark.

She hopes to set up her own, by being the first woman to do the swim from Dover to Cape Griz Nez, on the French side.

Twice before jolly-tempered Eva has made the bid. In 1935, on her second attempt, "25 miles out near the coast of France in the toughest sea I ever swam," she had to be implored to come out by the seasick witnesses who were escorting her in a boat.

"I've come 3000 miles and turned down a job at $100 a week to do this swim, and I mean to succeed this time," Miss Morrison said.

Eva explained that she had the offer of a new job as swimming instructress at an American beach.

Police to Face Assault Charges

Owen Clements, 16, of Draper street, Dorchester, appeared in Dorchester district court today on charges of assault and battery on Patrolman Timothy P. Sullivan and two 14-year-old Dorchester girls.

The case was continued until Thursday, at which time counsel for Clements said he will seek two complaints charging Sullivan and another policeman with assaulting his client.

Mrs. Thomas F. Clements, mother of the boy, claims two policemen struck her son while Captain Thomas M. Mulroy of Dorchester station, Sullivan's superior, absolved Sullivan and said the charges that Clements was struck are ridiculous.

PRESS TERMED U. S. 'CENSOR'

Atlanta, July 27 (AP)—Clark Howell, publisher of the Atlanta Constitution, declared here today that preservation of a free press is the only certain way to forestall "the depredations of plutocracy on one hand, of predatory poverty on the other."

Howell was chief speaker on today's program of the Atlanta Kiwanis Club. James R. Gray, vice-president and editor of the Atlanta Journal, and Herbert Porter, publisher of the Atlanta Georgian and American, were special guests. The club today paid tribute to Atlanta newspapers.

Howell said the nation's newspapers are unfettered now, but warned, "The price of freedom is eternal vigilance."

He cited criticism of President Roosevelt by widely-read columnists as evidence that American newspapers are filling without fear their vital role of "censors" for the government.

Boy, 4, Crosses Ocean All Alone

Newark, N. J., July 27 (AP)—Traveling alone from England to California, Jack Walter Allaneck, four years old, tow-headed, and an airline stewardess' "idea of a perfect little gentleman," hopped off from Newark airport to rejoin his mother in Los Angeles.

He arrived in New York on the Queen Mary and was taken on a shopping and sightseeing tour of Newark by Stewardess Alice Severance whose charge he was on the first leg of the flight test.

Hunt for Writer Of Threat Note

Rochester, N. H., July 27—A search was on today for a man who threw an iron weight through the window of Thomas Plourde's home after attaching to it a note threatening members of Plourde's family with death.

"Get out of here by July 29 or someone in your family will die. We mean this. DRIPPING DAGGERS", the note read.

Phobic Prison Fled by Wife

Madison, Wis., July 27 (US)—Once again, it was disclosed today, pretty Grace Golden Leonard has fled the phobic prison of her husband, Professor William Ellery Leonard, University of Wisconsin poet.

The professor is victim of a strange fear that makes it impossible for him to travel beyond six blocks of the Madison campus.

DECREE SET ASIDE

Three weeks later, however, she returned and told Circuit Judge Hoppmann she had been unbearably homesick; that she loved her husband, and could not be happy away from him. So, the judge set aside the decree, and Grace went back to try again.

He said the 27-year-old Mrs. Leonard had come to him ten days ago to report new marital difficulties with her 61-year-old mate. Sachjen advised her to take a trip and try to reach a decision.

FRIGHTENED WHEN BOY

Though psychiatrists are puzzled by Professor Leonard's handicap, they believe it resulted from a severe fright he suffered when, as a boy, a locomotive thundered past a station platform so close to him that he was burned by the steam.

The professor suffered another shock when his first wife took her life. His second wife left him because she could not endure the confinement.

Laidlaw Heiress Wed Secretly

New York, July 27 (AP)—Madge Carrington Laidlaw, Park avenue heiress and grandniece of the late Mark Hanna, and William H. Riley, of Greenwich, Ct., surprised acquaintances today by announcing they were married yesterday at Rye, N. Y.

The marriage had been scheduled for today.

They will sail on the Queen Mary tomorrow for a three-months wedding trip in Europe.

Illness of the bridegroom's mother, widow of the late Dr. William Herbert Riley, who operates a health farm in Connecticut, caused the couple to forego a more elaborate wedding.

Mrs. Riley is the daughter of Loper Laidlaw.

MATTERN HOP MAY GET O. K.

Washington, July 27 (US)—The fate of Jimmy Mattern's projected 6400-mile "over the pole" flight from San Francisco to Moscow rested in the balance in the bureau of air commerce today.

Fred D. Fagg, Jr., director of the federal bureau, announced that despite an earlier refusal to grant permission for the long distance hop, the government will sanction the flight if it can be shown it has sufficient scientific merit."

Senator Sheppard (D) of Texas lent his efforts to having the department reverse its stand upon the insistence of Mattern's sponsors that the flight was for "scientific purposes only."

Director Fagg said permission had been refused Mattern in keeping with the department of commerce's policy of forbidding all air exploits bordering on purely "stunt flights."

The route mapped by Mattern for his long hop in his new ship, "The Texan," would reverse the route followed by two groups of Russian airmen from Moscow to the west coast of the United States.

Mary Dees Soon To Become Bride

Hollywood, July 27 (US)—Film success, a long-term contract, and now—romance.

Hollywood has brought them all, in dazzling succession, to little Mary Dees, only a few months ago an extra girl.

She is to be married to Hyman Fink, widely known Hollywood cameraman, as soon as the new home he is building for his bride-to-be is completed.

Mary Dees' opportunity on the screen came when Jean Harlow died before "Saratoga" was completed.

She had impersonated Miss Harlow on the stage. So, when audiences demanded that "Saratoga" be finished and shown Mary Dees was selected for the role that Miss Harlow had left with the final scenes still to be made.

EVENED BUDGET BY 1939 SEEN; NO TAX BOOST

By WILLIAM S. NEAL

Copyright, 1937, International News Service

Washington, July 27—The federal government will not only balance its budget in the next year but in 1939 will begin to cut the huge national debt of $36,000,000,000, Representative Cannon (D.), of Missouri, acting chairman of the House appropriations committee, predicted today.

Administration plans, he said, will make unnecessary a huge new tax bill next year, as had been predicted by critics of the administration's spending policies.

"Early in April it was necessary to revise estimates of revenue because tax receipts were disappointing." said Cannon. "But since that time the trend has been the opposite. Revenues have increased beyond expectations or estimates.

SEES NO TAX INCREASE

"We will not need a eneral increase in taxation next year. All we need to do is to close up loopholes and get the takes we should get under present law.

"Expenditures are being reduced. We spent $2,200,000,000 on relief last year. This year we have appropriated $1,500,000,000. We expect to be able to reduce relief appropriations still further next year and curtail emergency agencies.

"We can and should reach a layman's balance of the budget in the present fiscal year provided that Congress doesn't add too much to what already has been appropriated and the upswing in income continues.

"It has been found that the President can impound funds to such an extent as he deems advisable. He issued the order for a reduction of not less than 10 per cent. On some items the reduction will be more than 50 per cent.

ELIMINATING JOBS

"Positions that become vacant are not being filled and promotions are not being made. That is the reason for the complaint of some employes in the Securities Exchange Commission.

"Material savings will be made. Savings estimates run from $250,000,000 to $400,000,000.

"We are making a progressive reduction of the budget. Present estimates show we are within $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 of a balance this year."

Cannon disclosed that orders had been issued to hold down all appropriation bills for the remainder of the session.

One more deficiency bill remains to be passed. Spokesmen for the administration on money matters, he indicated, will make every effort to hold the bill to a minimum.

Appropriations for the session already have passed the $7,000,000,000 mark with the final total to be determined after the deficiency measure is passed. Government receipts during the current fiscal yea rare estimated at $7,292,000,000.

REVOLT THREAT MAY DOOM 'VITAL' BILLS

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, July 27—A "go home now" rebellion swept House and Senate today while administration leaders struggled to hold a reluctant Congress in session long enough to enact the legislative program favored by President Roosevelt.

This program, facing a hazardous future, included new wage and hour legislation, a new housing act and bills to extend sugar import quotas, close tax loopholes and reform the procedure in lower federal courts.

There was overwhelming sentiment on Capitol Hill to pass only those measures encountering little or no opposition, and postpone all controversial issues until next year. This sentiment increased in the face of undercover threats of filibusters against major legislation and the failure of the administration to heal the wounds incurred in the Senate's five-month battle over the President's Supreme Court bill.

GARNER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Administration leaders planned to hold back the judicial reform bill until other legislation is enacted. Foes of the President's original Bill, who have drafted the substitute dealing only with minor Federal courts, were willing to go along with this program for a few days but threatened to force a final vote on it by the end of the week.

This maneuver was reported to have the backing of Vice-President Garner, who favors adjournment by August 5. Some other important Democrats, who fear further legislative rows will serve only to create permanent schisms in the party, will support it.

The judicial reform bill, meanwhile, rested in the Senate judiciary committee, which met today to pass upon the substitute.

It appeared the Van Nuys-Wagner anti-lynching bill would prove a stumbling block to Senate activity. This bill has passed the House.

It was called up yesterday by foes to limit freight trains to 70 cars. It was beaten when administration leaders supported a motion to table, 41 to 34.

MAY BLOCK LEGISLATION

Foes of other legislation threatened to offer the anti-lynch bill as "riders" to prevent their enactment. If adopted at any time—and a change of four votes would attach it as a "rider" to a bill—Southern Democrats will launch an immediate filibuster. This would block legislative activity.

The hour and wage bill meanwhile was the Senate's "unfinished business." It would set up a federal board to regulate hours and wages and ban child labor in unorganized industries engaging in interstate commerce or competing with such industries.

Opponents prepared a hundred amendments. They also threatened to inject the anti-lynching bill into the debate. In the face of these threats, administration leaders predicted passage by Thursday. Then they proposed action on the housing act, the sugar quota and tax reform bills before calling up court legislation.

Freddie May Quit Pictures Over Salary Row

Hollywood, July 27 (US)—Freddie Bartholomew's career as one of the screen's foremost juvenile actors may soon come to a voluntary and permanent end, it was disclosed today.

Beset by legal and financial difficulties, his aunt and guardian, Myllicent Bartholomew, disclosed that she may return to England with the boy in the near future and "forget the films forever."

She said:

"At present, he receives $1100 a week for 40 weeks a year. In view of his position and drawing power, I feel that it is much too low. I feel that he is the poorest paid star in Hollywood.

"So we have asked for $2500 a week, but it has been refused.

"I feel, therefore, there is little use of going on. Freddie cannot remain a child star forever. Also, his education, in spite of everything we have been able to do, is suffering.

"Consequently, unless we can come to terms with the studio I feel that the best thing to do is to return to England, put Freddie back in school and forget the films forever.

"As it is, attorney's fees and other costs simply eat up his earnings. There is very little left. We cannot continue to pay these terrific fees and I feel we would be better off in England and out of pictures if the situation doesn't change quickly."

The suits to which Miss Bartholomew referred are the series of bitter legal actions last year between herself and the boy's mother, Mrs. Lillian May Bartholomew, over the child star's custody.

FIREMAN HURT IN R. I. BLAZE

East Providence, R. I., July 27—Pinned beneath a falling wall as a general alarm fire swept through the New England Box and Barrel Company, Lieutenant John McLaughlin of the East Providence fire department was confined today with a badly fractured ankle.

The blaze drove five families to the street from an adjacent dwelling, and threatened a wide area before being brought under control by combined fire fighting forces of Providence and East Providence.

Property damage is estimated at $16,000.

RIOTING ENDED IN CLEVELAND; ONE DEAD

Cleveland, July 27 (AP)—Four hundred policemen stood guard today in Cleveland's steel strike riot area to bring peace—temporarily at least—after one of the worst nights of violence in this city's history.

Republic Steel Corporation workers clashed with strikers and sympathizers near Republic's Corrigan-McKinley plant, where one man was killed yesterday.

Clubs, pickaxes, iron pipes and other weapons came down upon the heads of workers and pickets alike.

A union headquarters was wrecked. Glass crashed in dozens of motor cars.

A wave of vandalism swelled over other sections of the city. Newly painted houses, finished without benefit of union approval, were sprayed with stain.

Windows were smashed in homes of steel workers and operatives of KNFT mills where CIO and A. F. of L. unions are enaged in a fight.

Police forced a crowd at the Corrigan-McKinney steel mill back two blocks from one of its main entrances, and the morning changes of shifts took place with little violence.

For several hours last night rioting near the plant sent more than 60 persons to hospitals for treatment.

PARLEY IN FOOD STRIKE FAILS

Buffalo, N. Y., July 27 (US)—Hopes for an early settlement of Buffalo's food strike, now in its seventh day, faded today after striking food truck and warehouse workers voted unanimously to reject an eight-point proposal submitted by the employers as a basis for agreement.

The eight points, reduced from 12 at a conference between employer and employe representatives, provided for a modified form of closed shop.

After voting to turn down the proposed basis of settlement, the strikers at a general meeting in the headquarters of the Central Labor Council, which has extended full support to the strike, unanimously voted not to recede in any way from their original demand for an absolute closed shop.

The closed shop is the important point at issue.

Meanwhile, the food situation became more critical as stores reported depleted stocks of butter, eggs, and other staple foods.

'LAID DOWN' ON FORD JOBS

Detroit, July 27 (AP)—The Ford Motor Co., in whose behalf testimony has been entered regarding "deliberately planned inefficiency" among certain employes, resumed its defense today against National Labor Relations Board charges.

About to enter its fourth week, the board's hearing on accusations that Ford violated the Wagner act continued without immediate indication when it would be ended.

Dennis McKinney, general foreman of the company's plant and varnish division, testified yesterday that a "definite conspiracy to hold down production" might have arisen from an idea on the men's part that a surplus was being built against any sit-down strike.

Resultant dismissals of John Cwikiel, Fred Gullaksen and Joseph V. Bailey—all members of the United Automobile Workers Union—were effected, McKinney said, to increase efficiency. He said there was "definitely organized trouble" in the division.

The board charges the company with firing men for union activity.

Other defense witnesses, including foremen and departmental heads, have testified the discharges were due to unsatisfactory work.

New U. S. Official

Ex-Convict Is Held In $1000 on Quincy Break Charge

Arrested at gunpoint today, John T. Daly, 26, of Holmes street, Norfolk Downs, a former convict who served 2½ years as an accessory after the fact to the murder of Harry Riddell in 1932, was in Quincy district court today.

He was held in $1000 on charges of attempted breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny on July 29. Meanwhile police will investigate his activities for a month during which a series of breaks occurred in Quincy.

Daly was arrested by Patrolman William Devine after he was alleged to have broken the window of a confectionery store owned by Joseph Brett in West Squantum street.

He pleaded not guilty.

Indicted on a charge of murdering Riddell, a Sagamore street baker, Daly was released by a hung jury, and later was given a two-and-a-half year sentence as an accessory. A companion, John Bowen, is now serving life under a murder conviction, police records show.

NLRB ACCUSED OF RED PLOT

Washington, July 27 (US)—Rep. Rankin (D.) of Mississippi charged that members of the National Labor Relations Board are "conspiring with certain Communistic influences to destroy" industry in the South.

Rankin's accusation followed an earlier statement by Senator Nye (R.) of North Dakota, in which the board was called a "Kangaroo Court."

Board members declined to answer either the Rankin or Nye charges.

Rankin declared:

"There is no doubt in my mind about the board's members conspiring with certain Communistic influences to destroy Southern industries, and in that way deprive Southern larborers of an opportunity to earn a decent living."

It's the Humidity, Not Heat, Today

That sticky feeling today is due to the humidity being 13 per cent above normal.

Today humidity recordings taken at 10 o'clock showed a percentage of 84.

The temperature reading at that hour was 73 degrees, which was slightly cooler than yesterday.

Warmest July 27 on record was 98 in 1882 and the coolest was 52 in 1872.

COPELAND HOLD ON TAMMANY FALTERING

New York, July 27 (AP) — A brewing revolt in its pro-New Deal wing today threatened Tammany Hall's support of United States Senator Royal S. Copeland in his quest for the mayorship of New York city.

Out of respect for its dead chieftain, James J. Dooling, who died yesterday of apoplexy, the historic wigwam's sub-leaders declared a surface truce until Thursday in the task of picking his successor.

FORM BATTLE LINES

But battle lines were forming quietly, and one of the chief issues was whether the Hall would stand firm behind Copeland, a critic of the Roosevelt administration, or switch to Grover A. Whalen, urbane onetime police commissioner.

Whalen, a strong New Dealer, is the mayoralty choice of the four Democratic borough organizations, outside Tammany, friendly to Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Copeland's strongest hopes of retaining the support recently voted him by the Tammany executive committee lay in the behind-the-scenes aid of former Governor Alfred E. Smith, a bitter New Deal foe, and a neutral group within the wigwam.

UP TO AL SMITH

While Democratic ranks were demoralized by Dooling's death, Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia's refusal to say whether he would contest for the G. O. P. primary nomination or run for re-election as an Independent perplexed Republican leaders.

The situation was complicated further by the candidacy of Lambert Fairchild, former Republican alderman, and the announced intention of Senator Copeland to run in the Republican as well as the Democratic primary.

HINTS SURPRISE FOR WEBSTER INQUEST

By ARTHUR J. QUINN

Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Providence, July 27—Coroner Conrad K. Strauss served notice on police today that the inquest into the slaying of Dr. George W. Webster will be far different from the perfunctionary affair they expected.

He ordered that typewritten transcripts of all testimony given during the 11-day investigation of the murder be ready for the inquiry tomorrow morning.

He said that it made no difference whether the testimony was given by witnesses who have been named or those not named, whether questioning was open or secret.

He further issued a blanket invitation for anyone who has knowledge that may lead toward solving the baffling case to come forward and give that information at the inquest.

The coroner himself will direct all questioning at the inquest. Each witness will be heard in private and each will be sworn.

MAY LAST FOR WEEK

It was learned, that as a result of Strauss' orders, the witness list which was said earlier to include about 30 persons, had been lengthened to a total of nearly sixty.

The hearing itself is expected to last through this week, perhaps into next week.

After the last of those summoned has been heard, Coroner Strauss will keep the inquest open for several days in order to allow anyone who wishes to testify time to appear.

Meanwhile, under a barrage of public criticism, police were making a last-minute attempt to gather new "leads" before the inquest opens.

POLICE CONFER

Others went to the Woodman street home of Miss Dorothea Gilligan, 33-year-old secretary to the doctor. Both women are expected to be important inquest witnesses.

Detectives and patrolmen who figured in any way in the opening of the probe on the morning of the murder, July 16, were closeted with Deputy Superintendent James J. Cusick for hours.

Under Cusick's direction, all of the ground which has been covered so leisurely in the past fortnight, was being gone over again hurriedly in a desperate attempt to build up some sort of a tenable theory of the fatal shooting.

As the case stands now, and unless some last-minute evidence is forthcoming, investigators will be forced to go to the inquest without anything to show for their investigation except a bare presenation of unconnected facts and unrelated reports.

Deputy Cusick admitted it when asked by reporters what the investigation had unearthed.

"Not the faintest trace of a motive for the murder," he said. "Nor any clue toward the identity of the man who killed the doctor."

General Cole Ousts Quartermaster Lt.-Col. Rivers

Lieut.-Col. James G. Rivers of Springfield, for the past six years state quartermaster, was ousted from his position 10 days ago by Adjutant-General Charles H. Cole, it was revealed today. No reason was given for the action.

Major William H. Harrison, Jr., of Roxbury, personal aide to Governor Hurley, has been appointed acting state quartermaster.

WORLD WAR VETERAN

Rivers is a World War veteran, having served in France with the 104th Infantry. He was appointed state quartermaster by Adjutant-General John H. Agnew, during the time that Joseph B. Ely was governor.

He enlisted in the state militia in 1910, was commissioned a second lieutenant in 1916, and before his return to America from France was made a captain.

In 1922 he was made a major and in 1927 a lieutenant-colonel. He was awarded a croix de guerre for his services in France.

SERVED ON BORDER

In addition to service in France during the World War, Rivers served at the Mexican border in 1918. He graduated from the Infantry officers school at Fort Benning, Ga.

His successor has been connected with the adjutant-general's office 22 years. Last January Harrison was appointed captain by Governor Hurley and more recently was moved up to major.

During the World War Harrison was in the naval reserve. He is a member of the governing board of Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters.

800 CHINESE 'WIPED OUT' IN NEW BATTLE

Tientsin, July 27 (AP)—A regiment of 800 Chinese soldiers was reported by Japanese commanders today to have been "virtually annihilated" in a battle with Japanese troops east of Peiping.

A Japanese military communique said the clash, lasting several hours before remnants of the Chinese force fled, was provoked when the Chinese resisted disarming.

ULTIMATUM EXPIRES

The first of two ultimatums by Lieutenant-General Kiyoshi Katsuki, commander of the Japanese North China army, expired at noon without Chinese compliance and without positive Japanese action.

The Japanese high command indicated that punitive action was being deferred because "powerful forces continue to seek peace and conciliation."

Information received has indicated that the Chinese are determined to resist.

500 SLAIN IN CLASH

When the Chinese refused to lay down their arms at Tungchow, about 12 miles east of Peiping, Domei reported, the Japanese attacked with the support of bombing planes.

The agency estimated 500 Chinese were killed and wounded against 10 Japanese, including one officer, killed and wounded.

Nanking, China, July 27 (AP)—unconfirmed reports here late today said China had rejected a Japanese ultimatum for the withdrawal of Chinese troops from Peiping and its western environs.

There still was no direct word from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Tokyo Denies Aggression in China

Tokyo, July 27 (INS)—The Japanese government issued a formal statement today asserting its measures in North China were necessary "for defense and protection of Japanese nationals and maintenance of communications."

"Japan," the statement added, "has no grudge against the Chinese and no territorial designs or intention of interfering with foreign interests."

1300 Americans At Present in Peiping

Washington, July 27 (AP)—State Departmetn officials estimated today that 1300 American citizens, including marines on duty, are now in Peiping, scene of clashes between Chinese and Japanese troops. The American embassy there has 675 United States citizens registered, including 223 men, 267 women and 185 children.

The embassy guard of marines, under command of Colonel John Marston of Germantown, Pa., consists of 22 officers and 489 men. In addition, 93 are listed as the dependents of the military personnel, living in the marine barracks.

Officials said a large percentage of the American citizens were missionaries or attached to Peking Union Medical College and Hospital.

Foreign diplomatic service officers now on duty in Peiping as students of the Chinese language include Charles S. Millet, Brockton, Mass.

Cherry said her husbandless honeymoon would end August 26 when she will be reunited with David in New York. The young dancer, brunette half of the sister team, is appearing now at a local theater. Her mother and a brother, Edward, are chaperoning the girls.

REDS HAMMERED BACK BY FRANCO'S ARMY

Madrid, July 27 (AP)—Powerful contingents of reinforcements rushed into the government's western front salient today to bulwark Gen. Jose Miaja's sagging line.

Two long days of concerted insurgent thrusts at Villanueva De La Canada, nerve center of the government's sector, forced Miaja to bring up heavy reserves for what may be the final, bloody answer to the question:

Who shall have Madrid — the government forces that have held it against siege for nearly nine months or the insurgent army at her gates?

All government positions along the 30-mile looping front which Miaja had driven into the insurgent besiegers' rearguard territory nearly three weeks ago were rocked by combined bombing and shelling.

RETREAT ORDERED

After the fall of Brunete Saturday, the government troops had fallen back to positions in a wood not far from the shattered town. There they sought to consolidate their strength under the natural protection of the trees.

Yesterday an insurgent inferno of shells and bombs was loosed on their heads. Artillery projectiles and bombs—hundreds of them—ripped through the trees. Shells exploded in the trenches, ripping away sandbag fortifications.

The government set insurgent casualties of the last six days at 25,000 and admitted its own losses were heavy.

25,000 KILLED

It was estimated that 200,000 men, divided about evenly between insurgents and the government, were involved in the maelstrom of attack and counter-attack.

One of the largest air battles of the war was fought last night over Villanueva De La Canada. Forty insurgent bombing planes were routed in a clash with a squadron of government pursuit ships, the government reported.

Two insurgent ships were shot down in that engagement and a third in an earlier 'dog fight" near El Escorial, north of the Brunete front.

Britain Ready to Drop Neutral Plan

Copyright, 1937, by International News Service

London, July 27—If Britain's compromise non-intervention plan fails, the government will declare Europe's entire non-intervention effort—designed to keep Spain's civil war from spreading beyond her boundaries—null and void, International News Service learned today.

Irritated by continual bickering among members of the international non-intervention committee over the compromise plan, Britain has notified France of her intention to wash her hands of the whole affair unless an agreement is reached.

In doing so, Britain will resume "liberty of action" regarding the Spanish war, grant belligerent rights to both sides, declare strict neutrality, and enforce an arms embargo against hoth Loyalists and Insurgents, International News Service was informed.

Name Red Cross Drive Chairmen

The appointments of Ralph Lowell of Westwood as chairman of the special gifts committee and Russell Robb of Boston and Concord as chairman of the industrial committee were announced today by Edward A. Taft, chairman of the Boston 1937-38 Red Cross roll call.

Lowell, Harvard graduate of 1912, a partner of the banking firm of Clark, Dodge, and Company. Robb is vice-president and director of engineering and public utilities firm of Stone and Webster, Inc.

CITY COUNCIL RAPS SPLIT UP OF PALESTINE

With the mass meeting at Faneuil Hall to discuss the Palestine question only a week away, the Boston city council was on record today as adopting a resolution memoralizing Congress against Great Britain's plan to partition the Holy Land.

The meeting is the first to be held in this city since the Royal British Commission released its report to partition Palestine into separate Arab and Jewish states and a new British-mandated territory.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge will be the main speaker. Others will include many prominent in local Jewish affairs.

P. A. O'Connell, noted Boston leader in civic, business and charitable affairs, will act as chairman of the meeting, which is under the auspices of the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

Jewish leaders and organizations have already endorsed this meeting, feeling it is an "excellent idea." Various organizations, through their officers, have pledged their support "one hundred per cent."

ADOPTED BY ACCLAIM

City Councillor Sidney Rosenberg sponsored the resolution at the council meeting and the other members adopted it by acclaim. The resolution read:

"Whereas, Great Britain was made the protectorate over Palestine and pledged to develop the country as a Homeland for the Jews, and,

"Whereas, the nations of the world had trust and faith in Great Britain in carrying out its pledge, and,

"Whereas, Lord Balfour, in 1924, by a declaration reaffirmed the stand of Great Britain to establish Palestine as a Homeland for the Jews, and,

"Whereas, millions of dollars have been spent in the development of that country and thousands of immigrants induced to settle there, and,

"Whereas, the British Commission has recommended that the country be divided into three separate parts for the Jews, Arabs, and the British government; therefore, be it

"RESOLVED that the City Council of Boston, in meeting assembled, desire to record its opposition to the partition plans as outlined by the British Commission and is of the opinion that adherence to the original plan of the Protectorate by Great Britain for the establishment of Palestine as a Homeland for the Jews is the most satisfactory arrangement for bringing lasting peace and contentment to that land and the people who inhabit it.

"Be it further RESOLVED that copies of this resolution be sent to the Senators and Representatives in Congress from Massachusetts."

PRAISES HEARST PAPERS

Further denunciation of the British plan came today from Samuel A. Nemzoff, prominent in Jewish circles in Roxbury and Dorchester and a teacher in the Boston schools. He said:

"The stand of the Hearst newspapers on the Palestine question deserves the support and commendation of every true liberal and lover of justice.

"In this day when international agreements are but scraps of paper, it is noteworthy that the Hearst papers stand for the carrying out of the international agreement entered into by the nations of the world promising Palestine to the Jews as a National Homeland."

Max Kabatznick, vice-president of the New England Zionist Region, said:

"The first Zionist Congress at Basle in 1897 adopted as the official program of the Zionist movement and described the aim of Zionism to create for the Jewish people a home in Palestine secured by public law.

"Under the Balfour Declaration the British government favored the establishment of a National Homeland for the Jewish people.

"The British government also promised the Jewish people that they would use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object.

"The Jews and Arabs will ultimately solve their problems with the co-operation of the British government and the Arabs will soon learn to appreciate and regard the Jews as their friendly neighbors, realizing that the upbuilding of Palestine by the Jews has been of material benefit to the Arabs.

"The recommendation of the Royal Commission to partition Palestine has brought about the dissatisfaction not only on the part of Jews everywhere but the Arab population as well.

"The British government should should endeavor to devise other ways and means of solving the Jewish problems within the Palestine border and not attempt to divide Palestine."

Kabatznick then praised the statement made recently in the Hearst newspapers by David Lloyd George, former British war-time prime minister, in which he assailed the proposed partitioning plan.

Oil Scum Blamed On Outgoing Ship

An outgoing ship was today blamed for pumping out refuse which has floated to shore and caused scores of complaints about oil scumming on South Boston bathing beaches.

Reverend Patrick Waters, pastor of St Brigid's Church, South Boston, accompanied harbor police on a tour of ship anchorages but no evidence was found that any ship now in the harbor had pumped its bilges.

WILL SPEAK AT ZION FORUM

United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of Massasetts consented today to be chief speaker Sunday, August 1, at the big Faneuil Hall meeting for public discussion of the proposed partition of Palestine. The meeting is sponsored by the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser. It has the endorsement of Jewish leaders and organizations.

PROBE DROPPED IN CRATER CASE

New York, July 27 (AP)—The Crater mystery case was back in police files today, with a halt called in the revived investigation into the seven-year-old disappearance of the supreme court justice.

Mrs. Joseph Force Crater, wife of the justice, told police officials who interviewed her at her home in Maine that she did not say her husband had been murdered, as quoted in a newspaper interview which prompted the renewed inquiry by District Attorney William C. Dodge's office.

Assistant District Attorney James T. Neary, who questioned Mrs. Crater has no idea why the justice disappeared, but that she does believe him dead.

"If and when any new evidence is available, appropriate action will be taken," Dodge said. "At present there is none."

'Pole-Sitting' Convict Gives Up

San Quentin Prison, Cal., July 27 (INS)—Numbed by cold and exhausted by his 19-hour vigil, San Quentin's "pole-sitting" convict came down to earth today.

After a score of guards threatened and pleaded with him throughout the night convict Meyer Golaf, 32, climbed down the 85-foot searchlight tower where he had clambered to stage a "hunger strike."

CIO Seeks All Marine Workers

New York, July 27 (INS)—Issuing a flat challenge to Joseph P. Ryan and the International Seamen's Union, the CIO National Maratime Union today announced a drive to rally 45,000 harbor workers in the United States under the John L. Lewis banner.

Ryan recently organized towboat employes of the New York metropolitan area into a single unit.

G. O. P. Parley

Washington, July 27 (AP)—John D. M. Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, said he has asked all women members of the committee to meet with him here on August 11 to discuss activities of the women's division.

BRITAIN SPURNS U. S. RULE FOR PALESTINE

London, July 27 (AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain quickly disposed today of Geoffrey Mander's suggestion that Great Britain cede her League of Nations mandate over Palestine to the United States.

Mander, a Liberal member of Parliament, had served notice he would ask the prime minister whether "in view of the British government's unwillingness to continue to administer its mandate for Palestine," it would consider the change.

Chamberlain replied that the first part of the question was not a correct statement of Britain's position, "therefore the second part does not arise."

Twin Boys Born On Hospital Table

Chicago, July 27 (INS)—The twin boys of Mr. and Mrs. David Chauffeur were doing well today, physicians reported, following their birth on a mahogany table in the lobby of Augustana Hospital. The stork swooped down just as Mrs. Chauffeur hurried into the hospital and there was no time to reach an operating room.

Fails to Appear to Fix Pension

Charles Davis, 79, of Denver street, Saugus, just retired as custodian of the Saugus town hall, didn't have his pension sum fixed today, but he had given the board of selectmen a frantic few hours of searching for him.

Davis failed to show up at the selectmen's hearing at which it was planned to fix his annuity during his retirement. The entire town was turned out to find him, as his presence was necessary for the hearing.

At 10:30 at night he was sighted trudging over a hill near his home. He explained that he had become lost while picking blueberries.

The hearing on his pension will be held later.

HUGE AIRSHIPS FOR U. S. URGED BY NAVY CHIEF

Washington, July 27 (INS)—A proposal that the navy construct the largest dirigibles ever built—ships capable of carrying nine huge bombing planes—was made today by Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, naval chief of aeronautics.

Cook, testifying before the House Naval Affairs Committee, revealed that the navy holds a new theory that the lighter-than-air craft's primary use is in the role of plane carriers, as opposed to the old theory, in force before the Shenandoah, Macon and Akron crashed, that dirigibles were valuable for scouting.

A fleet of seven 10,000,000 cubic-foot dirigibles carrying nine bombers each would have the same carrier capacity as either of the navy's two sea carriers, the Lexington or Saratoga, said the aeronautics chief.

TRAINING SHIPS ASKED

His proposal followed one by Assistant Secretary of Navy Edison, that the navy build two dirigibles as training ships for a scientific experimental program "to determine the actual military and commercial value of lighter-than-air craft." A bill under consideration by the committee would provide for construction of a $3,000,000 training ship, to replace the decommissioned Los Angeles.

Cook endorsed the bill and suggested the proposed ship be constructed as a prototype of the large carriers he visualized. He declared a 3,000,000 cubic-foot ship, capable of carrying two bombers, could be built under the authorization.

1. Seven dirigibles could be built at the cost of one sea carrier. Their cruising speed of approximately 70 miles an hour would be twice that of the Lexington or Saratoga, and they would have a cruising range of 15,000 miles.

TAKEOFF SIMPLIFIED

2. The diribles could release 63 bombers simultaneously, whereas from a sea carrier they would have to take off one at a time, and without the advantage of the air carriers' altitude. Bombers could be revamped under the proposed program to give "super-performance," with the takeoff problem eliminated.

3—While both sea carriers and the proposed airship carriers would be "highly vulnerable to attack," use of airships would have the military advantages of "putting eggs in seven baskets instead of one."

Regarding commercial development, Cook proposed that the navy help train commercial pilots, but declared development in that field should be sponsored by the U. S. Maritime Commission, "because dirigibles are primarily of use only over water."

alesman Admits Strangling Rich N. Y. Woman

Charged with her murder is Stanley A. Martin, Jr., 29, unemployed salesman. He is the father of one child and is separated from his wife.

"She asked me to kill her," Martin sobbed to police. "Florence argued we were both married and it was impossible for us to go on.

Directing Martin to drive to Flushing hospital, the patrolmen followed in their car. At the hospital she was found dead.

Martin was taken to the Flushing station, where, police said, he confessed he had strangled the woman at her own request.

GANG RAIDS ME. BANK, G-MEN JOIN N. E. HUNT

two automobiles were used in the Livermore Falls bank robbery.

One car had New ork plates and the other Massachusetts numbers.

Coming out of the bank, the robbers fled in the Massachusetts car. A confederate in the second machine formed a rear guard for two or three miles, ready to delay pursuers.

DESCRIPTION FITS GANG

Both cars vanished from the Livermore Falls-Lewiston highway before reaching a blockade established on the Lewiston outskirts by Maine state police.

Two gunmen "lifted" the bank's cash. Police said their descriptions corresponded closely to the descriptions of two of yesterday's Providence bandits.

As holdup followed holdup during the last ten days, the authorities of one city after another have swung into action and their search for the bandits became a united effort, with realization one gang was probably responsible for a majority of these robberies.

To this gang alone, operating in three states, holdup raids netting $25,000 are ascribed.

A score of other smaller robberies in the same period in this section boosted the amount reaped by gunmen to nearly twice that amount.

Even as the combined bandit hunt was being organized, two gunmen this morning got $176 at the delicatessen store of Robert J. Prodizer in Beacon street, Brookline.

BELIEVE GIRLS AID GANG

The owner was backed into the ice box at pistol point by one robber, while the other rifled the cash drawer. A third man kept the engine of an automobile running for the getaway.

Police believe the gang is led by New York gunmen who have connections in several cities to "finger" or point out likely holdup spots. Gris may be assisting in this work, it was said.

Commissioner Timility, in issuing his shoot-to-kill order, revealed a plan to use rookie patrolmen to ferret out the gang.

The commissioner also commended Special Officer Vernon E. White of the Back Bay division, who shot Francis O'Keefe, Roxbury gunman, when the latter drew on Sergeant William Long.

"SHOOT 'EM DOWN"

"The only way to get these gunmen is to beat them to it," said Commissioner Timilty. "Men who are known to be armed and to be criminals of the worst type are to be shot down by police, just as those men would shoot the officers or even innocent citizens.

"I don't think there is a Boston gang smart enough to stage bank robberies and the well-planned jobs at Greater Boston hotels, restaurants and business offices.

"I think the gang is composed of, or at least led by, New York criminals. This is not alone my opinion but also the opinion of veteran officials of my department.

"I have not only told Superintendent Fallon to pass along the shoot-to-kill orders but have ordered him to have officers present whenever and wherever payrolls or other large sums are carried."

USES UNKNOWN POLICE

Outlining his plan to use rookie policement in the bandit search, the police head said:

"I intend to place intelligent rookies, who have been on the force only a short time and are not known to gangsters, in spots where gunmen congregate and plan burglaries and holdups.

"Many of our arrests of bad actors in the recent week have been due to the fact that new and unknown officers are able to acquire valuable information.

"Two of the cleverest of the new men have been sent out to work under personal orders."

A Hohenzollern to Wed For Love

Berlin, July 27 (INS)—The reality of love proved stronger than the distinction of a royal title today for Prince Ottomar of Prussia, who renounced his Hohenzollern rank to marry.

As plain Herr von Plottnitz, the ex-prince next week will wed the Esthonian Baroness Taube.

Ottomar is the son of the divorced Baroness Nostiz-Bakowski. Ottomar's mother in 1920 was married to Prince Joachim Albrecht of Prussia, a second cousin of the ex-Kaiser and well known in America as an orchestra leader.

Arms Agent Guilty in Spy Killing

Jerusalem, July 27 (AP)—Reuben Schenzvit, once South American agent for the European munitions magnate, Sir Basil Zaharoff, was convicted today of killing Jacob Zwanger, former Soviet vice-commissar of harbors.

Schenzvit was sentenced to 15 years imprisonment.

Zwanger was clubbed to death last March 10.

British Royal Air Force intelligence officers, in the investigation that followed, declared his death was linked with a fantastic international spy plot.

NEW HAVEN SHIP SALE O. K.'D

New Haven, Ct., July 27 (AP)—Judge Carroll C. Hincks of the federal court granted today the New Haven Railroad's petition to abandon the Fall River and the Ney Haven Lines and the sale of nine steamers.

The jurist gave his decision from the bench over objections to the petition by George L. Sisson, corporation counsel of Fall River, and Jeremiah A. Sullivan, Newport, R. I. solicitor.

Both Sisson and Sullivan had urged a short postponement to enable bondholders to discuss the situation and offer plans at a meeting with the trustees of the New Haven road.

Yacht Cook Flown Here for Operation

In an effort to save the life of Gordon Crowell, 35, a cook on the Canadian schooner yacht Chauve Souris, a Coast Guard plane from Salem took him from Provincetown harbor today for an emergency appendicitis operation at Chelsea marine hospital.

J. H. Winfield, a telephone official at Halifax, N. S., owner of the yacht, took Crowell to the office of Dr. Daniel Hiebert in Provincetown for diagnosis. Dr. Hiebert concluded that an immediate operation was necessary so telephoned the Coast Guard station for a plane.

Sues to Revoke Hospital Gift

Salem, July 27—Claiming that Anna Jacques Hospital of Newburyport did not use a gift of $2100 for the purpose he gave it, Lawrence P. Dodge, a leading citizen of that city, today filed suit in Salem Superior court to compel its return.

The suit, in the form of a bill in equity, is directed against the hospital and the attorney general "to enforce a resulting trust."

Dodge claims, in his suit, that he gave the money in 1928 for the purpose of turning an unused building into a maternity ward. This, the hospital officials have not done, he alleges. He says he has asked for the return of the money but that it was refused.

Seaman Freed in 'Ship Fire' Case

Charges against Edward Brennan, 27, of Jersey street, N. J., accused of attacking his captain and attempting to burn the steamer West Lashaway while the ship was in port at West Africa, were dropped today by a federal grand jury.

Brennan was brought here early this month in irons in the brig of the West Lashaway. The captain of the vessel was Arthur W. Phillips.

8 INDICTED IN 'GARBO' SWEEPS

Eight men were indicted by a federal grand jury today in connection with a charity sweepstakes in which the name of Greta Garbo was used a lure by listing her as a winner.

The arrest of the men followed an investigation of several months by postal inspectors here and in New York and resulted in the seizure of 450,000 fake tickets.

The indictments charged them with using the mails to defraud.

The defendants were Maurice Barach of Auburn, N. Y., E. D. Guartin, Sherbrook, Que.; Ray Hamlin, Glen Falls, N. Y.; Mike Zootis, Robert Fiseg, C. Garne, Billy Burns and Sam Fields alias Sam Rose, all of whose addresses are unknown.

According to postal inspectors, the tickets were on the "St. Paul's Hospital Charity Trust Fund" on the Tattersall Cup Race to be run at Sydney, Australia.

The name of the famous screen star appeared on the prospectus as a winner.

LONG OUTLINES COMMERCIAL AIRPORT PLAN

Plans for the development of the municipal airport at East Boston into a strictly commercial airline base with a view to making it the trans-Atlantic air terminal of the United States were outlined today by Park Commissioner William P. Long to members of the special legislative airports commission.

Park Commissioner Long and Mayor Mansfield appeared before the commission at the State House to tell of contemplated improvements and to suggest legislative action for development of airports in the State.

AIR CORPS REMOVAL

The plan for developing the East Boston airport includes removal of the U. S. Army air corps from its quarters and the banning of student flying, Long said.

He recommended, however, that some provision be made by the state to permit student flying.

Long also told the committee of the contemplated extension of the airport and suggested that the landing area should be extended to Wood Island and Castle Island. This project would cost $1,250,000, he estimated.

CITES ADVANTAGES

Mayor Mansfield told the commission that East Boston is 200 miles nearer Europe than New York and cited other advantages, including proximity to other transportation facilities.

"We want to better our airport," Mayor Mansfield said. "We are looking forward a quarter of a century in planning our improvements."

Slasher Wrecks Malden Home, Spurns Cash

Ignoring money, jewelry and silverware, a slasher did damage amounting to more than $1000 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Mullin, Charles street, Malden, it was discovered today when police called them back from vacationing at Rollingsford, N. H.

Mullin, an attache of Boston postoffice, found his home in confusion, with clothing, upholstered furniture, curtains and other property ruined as by slashes of a razor.

Boston police have been looking for a slasher, too, who makes deep incisions in hotel upholstered furniture and on the seats of trains and buses.

Children Catching Spies Rewarded

Moscow, July 27 (AP)—Five children were rewarded with $100 each today for the discovery of two suspected spies hiding in a rye field near the Soviet-Polish border.

A dispatch from Vinnitza reported that one of the alleged spies was shot and killed, and the other arrested by frontier guards.

S. End Man Guilty In Narcotics Case

Shortly after he was indicted by a federal grand jury, Joseph Sheehan of Carver street, South End, pleaded guilty in federal court today to charges of possessing and concealing narcotics.

Judge Hugh D. McLellan placed him on probation for two weeks with the understanding that he undergo a drug cure at the government hospital at Louisville, Ky.

U. S. EXPRESSES PEACE HOPE

Washington, July 27 (AP)—Secretary of State Hull said today the American ambassadors in Tokyo and Peiping had been instructed to express the hope to the Japanese and Chinese governments that hostilities would be avoided in Peiping.

The secretary's statement was made at his press conference in answer to questions based on announcement in London that the British ambassadors were taking similar action.

The French ambassadors to both countries are understood also to be making similar observations.

Hull explained that the action taken by the United States was independent of any action taken by other countries, and was in harmony with the policy the State Department has followed since the first outbreak of clashes between Japanese and Chinese forces in north China.

Dewey Seeks 'Big Shots' In Probe of 100 Rackets

Prosecutor Gives Up $50,000 Business For $16,695 Wage

New York, July 27 (AP)—"Pay up and shut up!"

In 1935, racket-plagued business men in New York found it was far the "healthiest" policy.

It was dangerous to take their complaints to the police, to the courts or to the district attorney's office. The city was in the grip of a gang-ruled reign of terror. Tribute for "protection" was exacted at gun-point, or by strong-arm mobs.

Windows were smashed, restaurants bombed, food poisoned, and "squawkers" were slugged and sometimes murdered—under the cold-blooded regime of such racket overlords, vice czars and gorillas as "Dutch" Schultz, Charlie "Lucky" Luciano, Nick Montana, "Cockeyed Louie" Weiner and others.

At last, a New York county grand jury—appalled by tales of racketeering terror which witnesses told them behind locked door, and infuriated by their failure to get satisfactory action—set up a clamor.

DEMANDED PROSECUTOR

With the newspapers solidly behind them, a committee of six grand jurors called on Governor Herbert H. Lehman and demanded the appointment of a special prosecutor of rackets.

They told the governor frankly that the regular law-enforcing agencies were "ruseless," that "the situation has gone too far" and that "the racketeer is rapidly gaining control of legitimate business in New York."

They were not alarmists. They had the crude but all-revealing facts. They wanted a man to translate facts into action.

Governor Lehman at first asked four well-known lawyers, including Charles E. Hughes, Jr., to take the job. Unanimously, they turned it down. Unanimously they said there was only one man to conduct such a "clean-up" crusade. They named him—Thomas E. Dewey.

The governor hesitated. He doubted whether Dewey's name was "big enough" to head the investigation. Besides, he was so young—barely turned 33.

DEWEY GETS JOB

But Dewey had already made a brilliant record as a crime-fighter as United States attorney in New York, climaxed when he sent the notorious "Waxey" Gordon to prison on a 10-year sentence for piling up something more than $1,000,000 in illicit beer profits and donating to Uncle Sam in taxes ten and no-hundredths dollars.

Governor Lehman made the appointment, and on July 29, 1935, Dewey began his herculean task of cleaning out New York's "Augean Stables."

Leaving his $50,000-a-year private law practice to accept the regular salary of $16,695 for a prosecutor, Dewey "cajoled" four other young attorneys into enlisting as his aides, and together they set up headquarters in the Woolworth building, with sound-proof rooms and special "untappable" telephone wires.

His first act was a radio appeal for information, inviting the public to come to his offices and tell him of racket "protection money" demands.

They came by the hundreds daily. But to Dewey's disappointment, with few exceptions they were psychopathic "cranks" with false grievances or schemers trying to use Dewey against their enemies.

HATED QUITTERS

Dewey's jaw hardened. A fighter himself, he hated to see men quit.

Using his power of subpoena, he scrutinized the books of first one business after another—and found out, in black and white, how much "protection" they had been paying.

When they still refused to talk, he decided that the only way out was to fight terror with terror—to make honest men tell of their terror of gangs by "terrorizing" them into doing so.

When they were silent or evasive he sent them to jail for contempt of court. When they still refused to talk, he sent them back to jail again. Startled, they began to weaken and give him the evidence he needed.

Almost immediately Dewey found himself investigating more than 100 separate rackets—industrial rackets as well as strictly criminal "enterprises" such as houses of ill fame, stolen goods and loan sharks.

WRECKED LOAN SHARKS

The young prosecutor turned first against the loan sharks who were taking an annual interest of 1000 per cent and terrorizing their victims with strong-arm hoodlums who told them:

"I get $75 a week for bumping off guys like you. You better find that dough."

Patiently, week after week, Dewey gathered information. Then suddenly, on Oct. 31, 1935, he "cracked down" and arrested 38 sharks—sending them to prison for terms up to five years.

At first, Dewey was not interested in houses of ill fame. He made it plain at the outset that he was not after pretty crooks, street walkers, gamblers and crooked police—the usual "reform" targets. He was out to get the "higher ups," the big shot bosses.

But now he heard something. He heard that a mysterious, shadowy figure, know only as "the boss," was muscling in, organizing a giant criminal slush fund. "The boss" he learned, reaped at least $12,000,000 a year in the nefarious trade.

LIGHTNING RAIDS

After weeks of preparation, on Feb. 1, 1936, Dewey launched a smashing blow—a series of swift and widespread raids which netted such "ladies of the evening," and bookers as Nigger Ruth, Jenny the Factory, Cokey Flo, Sadie the Chink, Jo-Jo, and Cold Potato Annie.

He didn't get "the boss," but he was on the trail.

Using a new type of psychology on the sullen-lipped girls seized in the raids, Dewey instructed his aides:

"Treat them decently. Say 'please' and 'miss' to them. See they have chairs and are comfortable. This is not a vice raid. We don't want the women as prisoners. We want them as witnesses."

Strangely, it worked. Some of them talked. Mildred Harris talked and "Cokey Flo" talked. A booker named Dave Marcus tabbed the "big shots" of the ring—four or five of them.

NAMES "CHARLIE"

"Who else?" Dewey pressed him.

Marcus hesitated, squirming.

"Spill it!"

"And Charlie," said Marcus, in a nervous whisper.

"Charlie who?" snapped Dewey.

"Just Charlie. That's all I know."

Dewey smiled. It was enough. There was only one Charlie . . .

(Tomorrow: Trapping a "Croesus of Crime.")

JUSTICE McCOOK THOMAS E. DEWEY

International News Photograph Service

With hand upraised, young Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York promises under oath faithfully to perform the task assigned him as special prosecutor of racketeers. The "job nobody wanted," they called it. They said the life of the man who took it wouldn't be worth a plugged nickel. But, facing Supreme Court Justice McCook, Dewey said, "I will!" And he did! Today's Boston Evening American tells you how Dewey scored his first successes.

Druggists Group On Harbor Sail Thursday

More than 1000 druggists will enjoy a harbor sail as one of the highlights of the international convention of Rho Pi Phi pharmaceutical fraternity.

The affair, scheduled for Thursday evening, will be both a sale and a sail, David Grossman, president of the Boston Alumni Club of the international fraternity, pointed out today, adding that friends and patrons may purchase tickets at reduced prices because the fraternity has leased the "Governor Cobb" for the evening.

The committee in charge includes Grossman, Harris Fishman, chairman of the convention committee; Maurice Goldsmith, chairman of the 1937 service awards committee; Jacob J. Epstein, executive chairman; Henry C. Levick, president of the Boston Retail Druggists Association, and Mrs. Lillian Goldsmith, chairman of the ladies' committee.

A feature of the evening will be the presentation for the first time of the official Rho Pi Phi fraternity song, composed by Gus Leonard, former Somerville druggist, whose song was judged the best out of 838 entries.

It will have its radio debut later in the week when Eddie Duchin, chairman of the entertainment committee and former chancellor, will play the song coast to coast on a network program.

The Brighter Side

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International Copyright and all other Rights Reserved. Distributed by Universal Service)

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., July 27—Half a dozen gaming casinos will be in operation around Saratoga Springs during the racing season. Most of them opened last night.

Some of these casinos are old established, and rather remote as to location. None of them are especially elaborate. They operate in connection with cafes, in which the dance music and entertainment is high-priced, and the food generally pretty good.

Damon Runyon

Half a dozen is about the usual number of gaming places here when the races are on. That may not sound like many gaming places, yet it represents a competition in Saratoga that prevents any of them from making any money, bar a streak of luck.

The streak of luck is the wandering in of a few players that "the house" may chance to beat for a lot of money. These players are getting scarcer every year.

An oil millionaire dining in a Saratoga cafe some years ago lost $98,000 between his dessert and coffee, but nothing like that has happened since around here. Still, it is the bare possibility of something like that happening again that keeps the operators struggling.

OVERHEAD TOO HEAVY

The overhead, especially the entertainment, eats them up. They pay fantastic prices for name bands and headline performers. This has become strictly a two-night town for the cafes and Casinos—Friday and Saturday.

Those are the days the casual visitors land in here for the races, and there are only about eight of these days for the cafe and Casino operators.

The rest of the week is very quiet. The householders find their diversion at home. It takes quite a considerable streak of luck for the operators to stand off that interim.

It is true that an operator is always complaining about business, even if his institution is good winner, which is what the boy's call crying with a ham under your arm, but we doubt if more than one or two of these Saratoga institutions ever wind up ahead on the season.

REFORMERS MISS BET

Reformers everywhere sometimes complain about gaming casinos, and seek to have them abated by the law, but if the reformers were smart they would endeavor to make three operators grow where but one grew before, and thus they would choke them all off quite effectually without any undue excitement.

Of course, the sensible thing for these Saratoga operators to do would be to combine and open one big casino in which they all might share, they would then probably cut up a large profit at the end of the season, but then operators of gaming casino's never are sensible.

It is the greatest dog-eat-dog business in the world. If an operator sees a brother operating somewhere, nice and peacefully, and prosperously, he does not say, "Brother, I'm glad you are doing so well." No, sir.

He opens a rival establishment next door, though he may realize full well that there is business for only one, and that a second will just make trouble for both.

OPERATORS VAIN

There is something of human vanity, too, that enters into this business. A lot of these operators would rather have 100 per cent of a loser than 10 per cent of a winner that they could not control, just to satisfy their vanity in ownership.

That is something no real business man will ever understand. But running a gaming casino is not a business. It is strictly a gamble.

The great state of New York, and other states like Florida, and California, where the seasonal crowds gather for sport, or climate, or whatever the attraction may be, make a mistake in not having state-controlled casinos of their own, on the order of Monte Carlo, barring out all private enterprises of the same nature.

These states gladly take their "piece" of the gambling on the horses and the dogs, and in some states the money has helped out the treasuries no little.

NO REAL DIFFERENCE

There is no difference that we can see in a state being partner to the race track gambling and in operating a gaming casino. This method, we think, would centralize and systematize the gaming and return a large profit to a state.

It would end a lot of quarreling and would relieve local authorities everywhere of a big problem. It would do much to eliminate gaming by irresponsibles and minors, allowing that the operation of a state casino fell into good hands.

But, of course, we do not anticipate any state gaming casinos. It is too sensible. There is no sense to gaming.

New Attempt Made To Recover Capt. Kidd's Treasure

Chester, N. S., July 27 (AP) — Exploration of the reputed "money pit" of the pirate Captain Kidd, was being attempted today by the Seventh Oak Treasure Company.

Frederick R. Krupp of the engineering firm of Sprague Henwood, of Scranton, Pa., directed efofrts of the company to overcome Atlantic tides, 153 feet under which Kidd's ingenious men are reputed to have buried the treasure.

The shaft being sunk by Krupp is the 29th since the entrance to the cache was discovered in 1795. Syndicates have since spent upward of $500,000 in hope of locating the treasure.

As far back as 1850 drills brought up particles of gold and in 1877 what was believed to be the cache was struck again and links of an ancient gold chain came to the surface.

DROP in Gold Stocks LIKELY

DEVELOPMENTS SCANNED

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, July 27—Definite signs that the United States shortly may lose substantial amounts of its huge gold stocks were seen in financial circles.

Treasury officials were scanning this month's developments in the international monetary situation which already have resulted in a small outward movement of the yellow metal. Last week the flood of gold pouring into this country was checked for the first time in almost a year when the Treasury exported $41,800,000 of the metal.

Although a portion of this outflow represented sale of gold to China under the recently-adopted Sino-American financial pact, officials indicated most of it went to European nations, particularly England, France and Holland.

The export of gold was necessitated because of recent weakness of the dollar in international exchange caused by withdrawal of foreign money balances in the United States. By repatriating their capital, foreigners exchange dollars for other currencies, thus flooding the exchange market with American money.

To keep the value of the dollar stable, the countries that are members of the tri-partite monetary agreement purchase American currency and then exchange it for American gold.

Since the Treasury now buys gold with borrowed money instead of printing currency against it the administration desires an outflow of foreign capital.

Officials hope there will be a considerable amount of capital repatriated by France during the next few months. This is possible as a result of last week's action by the French government in setting up a huge fund to support the market for its bonds.

The effect of this step may be the restoration of conference of French capitalists causing them to reduce their huge foreign investments and money balances for use in the homeland. Most of the French balances in other countries were developed because of unsettled political conditions in France.

Maine Central R. R. June Surplus $3620.55

Portland, Me., July 27 (AP)—The Maine Central Railroad Company reported today net income of $3,620.55 for June as compared with a deficit of $113,655.57 for the same month a year ago.

For the first six months of 1937 the road reported, it earned $377,851.46 above fixed charges, as compared with a deficit of $401,994.22 for the first half of 1936. Figures for the first six months last year, the statement said, included a considerable amount of flood damage expense.

Revenues of the road in June this year showed an increase of $96,859.60 or 10.79 per cent more than for June, 1936.

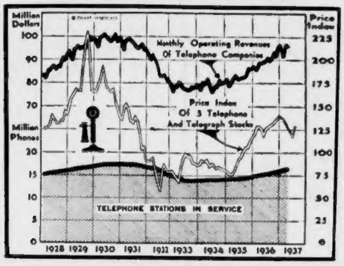
Telephone Revenues



Operating revenues of telephone companies in April amounted to $96,130,000, a decline from the previous month's total, but the best April showing since 1931. During April the number of telephones in service rose to 16,500,000, the largest number since 1932. Thus, it would seem that revenues have recovered faster than have the number of telephones in use.

An index of five telephone stocks, compiled by Standard Statistics, reached a post-depression peak in December, 1936, and dropped sharply through June, 1937. July prices have recorded a slight recovery.

Mass. Retail Sales in June Increase

Retail sales in Massachusetts increased about 4 per cent during June, as compared with June, 1936, according to preliminary figures released by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. In May there was an increase of about 7 per cent.

All but one of the trade groups represented showed increases over last June, the greatest improvement being recorded by lumber and building materials' dealers with a gain of almost 22 per cent, followed by the automotive group with a gain of about 10 per cent, other changes ranging down to the 9 per cent decline shown by drug stores.

Six of the trade groups, automotive, furniture, restaurants, lumber, drug and hardware, have shown consistent gains over a period of many months. The hardware group has shown gains for 33 consecutive months, while restaurants and lumber and building materials dealers have reported increases for the past 29 months.

Sales of the furniture group have been above the corresponding month of the previous year for 27 months; sales of drug stores have been up over a period of two years, and the automotive group has reported gains for the past 22 months.

HOW 'Neutral' IS U. S.?

FORBES CITES VIEWS

By B. C. FORBES

Just how "neutral" is this country? Ostensibly our government is uncompromisingly opposed to doing anything whatsoever to contribute towards warfare in any part of the world.

But is not Uncle Sam, at least indirectly, supplying the wherewithal to wage hostilities?

Japan, more than any other nation outside of Spain, is, from all accounts, on the warpath today. In order to obtain the things necessary for war, she has been drawing heavily upon the United States. To pay therefore, and doubtless to enable her to make purchases elsewhere, she has lately been sending gold in large quantities to take advantage of Uncle Sam's generous offer to buy the precious metal at $35 an ounce.

Japan so far this year his shipped us gold to the tune of $172,000,000. Her gold production has been on the increase.

• • •

WHAT OF PARIS?

Next to South Africa, she is now the world's largest miner of gold. Last year's total, 7,350,000 ounces, worth $257,250,000 at $35 an ounce. Russia, too, has been taking advantage of Uncle Sam's readiness to hold the bag for all and sundry sellers of gold. The expectation is that the Soviet government will continue to dump gold into our capacious hole in the ground, at Fort Knox, Ky., via Washington.

Russia has also been sending sundry shipments of the yellow metal to London.

London likewise finds Uncle Sam a godsend in the matter of unlimited buying of gold. In the first six months of this year London exported to the United States no less than $635,000,000 — contrasted with $60,000,000 during the first half of last year.

Believe it or not, our imports and exports of gold during the first six months of this year saddled us with an addition of no less than $1,029,179,069 to our already fantastically stupendous holdings—now over $12,400,000,000.

• • •

Admitting that gold is a prized possession, it is possible to get too much of even a good thing. The whole world knows that the United States already owns a ridiculously excessive amount of this metal.

Efforts—rather feeble efforts—are being instituted to get rid of some of it.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau has agreed to swap American gold for Chinese silver. Why Uncle Sam should reach out to acquire silver from foreign countries when he already has an oversupply and is under legal obligation to buy all that is produced within our own borders at 77 cents an ounce, isn't understandable by the layman.

After all, gold is universally rated above silver. How much of the white metal China—feverishly active militarywise—will send us not even the head of the treasury apparently knows. It is a dubious bargain.

Secretary Morgenthau has made another gold deal, to "make available to Brazil $60,000,000 for the protection of Brazilian currency against exchange fluctuations." As compensation, Brazil, it is announced, has promised to "protect her markets for the United States" and "to remove from her tariff laws provisions which have operated against United States commerce." Vague, but perhaps all right.

• • •

Meanwhile, every country preparing for war can dump into Uncle Sam's boundless lap all the gold within reach, at the unprecedented price of $35 per ounce, and buy war essentials.

Cement Producers See Further Mild Gains

After experiencing the most prosperous initial half year since the pre-depression, Portland cement producers now are looking forward to further moderate gains in shipments during the final six months.

Sales for the entire year of between 125,000,000 and 130,000,000 barrels, expected by the trade, would represent an increase of 12 per cent to 15 per cent over the 112,500,000 barrels shipped during 1936, which in turn represented an advance of 50 per cent over the 74,815,000 barrels sold in 1935.

During the five months ended with May, shipments advanced 15 per cent to a total of 39,886,000 barrels. Particularly good gains were made in January and February, when unusually mild weather allowed for the use of the product in building activities in some sections of the country at a time when normally such work is prevented by low temperatures.

With March, however, the extent of the gains receded in line with the more moderate increases reported for construction in that and following months.

U.S. Banks Set New Records

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Mutual savings banks in the United States reached new records on June 30. The figures of the National Association released today show that mutual institutions operating in 18 states are serving the largest number of savers with the greatest accumulation of funds in the 121 years since these banks were founded.

Gains were not confined to customers alone for the mid-year analysis of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks shows that the condition of the banks themselves improved all along the line. Combined figures for asset and surplus accounts continued to rise, with gains shown for both the six and 12-month periods ended June 30. Perhaps the most impressive increase took place in the number of accounts which were up 291,607 in the half year, making the total on mutual banks' books 14,759,246. When it is realized that these savers have a sum of $10,207,803,494 credited to them fears that Americans have become a spendthrift people are largely dissipated. The lead of the fathers at Washington is apparently disregarded when personal security is at stake.

Professors Warren and Pearson, remembered for their leading part in the gold buying program of 1933, are again making business news headlines. On this occasion, however, it is their ideas on building and construction expressed in an article in the current issue of Fortune Magazine that supply the interest. Their story, including charts, shows why we are moving into a great building boom. They forecast that it will be the largest in our history and will carry with it prosperity for almost every industry. It is to be hoped their calculations prove correct, for without such a development it is pretty generally admitted recovery will be hard pushed to reach a higher level in this country.

* * *

An interesting sidelight of the article is the analysis of construction activities in other countries. Those that have recently been in a boom are pictured as passing through the peak and headed for a slump. Another is the time element calculation. Pointing out that the last great peak in the United States was in 1925 the professors note that application of the cycle theory now calls for an impressive upturn.

The industrial section of the stock market is still having a time of it making worthwhile progress. The need for a period is daily becoming more apparent and the market letter writers that were looking for an immediate rise of large proportions are trimming their sails by admitting the list looks as though it needed a rest. A period of digestion, if not correction via a reaction, is indicated by two bits of market action. First the secondary issues have been slow to come forward in duplication of the rapid gains scored by leaders and secondly the rails are not doing their part, as one might expect, if an immediate rise was impending.

* * *

The utility section did well in the pre and post week-end sessions. The very bullish observers were heartened by their performance but admitted strength was not communicated to the rest of the list. However, when and if a reaction lowers prices we feel the better operating and holding company shares should be bought. The upswing of Saturday appeared to have taken place on solid buying and it is not logical to expect such stocks to come out until much higher prices are seen.

* * *

Notebook: Of the holding companies we continue to favor American Power & Light, United Light & Power "A", Electric Power & Light and Niagara Hudson . . . Electric Bond & Share is still the best medium for broad participation in the industry . . . Mead Johnson, on the curb, whose earnings estimate was reported here recently is expected to pay an extra of $2 per share . . . And later in the year the gossips have it the stock will be split . . . Which seems reasonable enough in view of the poor market that develops for such high priced mediums under current trading regulations.

Canada Dry Plans Stock Financing

Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., has under consideration plans for financing through a stock issue, probably to be offered to shareholders. Financing is in connection with company's expansion plans making desirable additional funds for completion.

While negotiations are already under way for financing, apparently it has not been decided whether common or a new preferred stock would be the most advantageous.

STOCKS Drift LOWER

LITTLE BUYING NOTED

New York, July 27—Little buying inspiration was present in today's stock market and prices generally drifted lower. Bonds jogged along unevenly. Wheat futures improved on reports of heavier exports and cotton came back briskly. Foreign currencies were again up in terms of the dollar.

Stock trading restraints were seen in a fresh outbreak of violence in the Republic steel strike and another and more serious Chino-Japanese war flare-up. At the same time the majority of corporation statements were on the constructive side.

Consolidated Edison dropped more than a point.

Prominent on the offside at one time were North American, Electric Power & Light, American Water Works, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, Barnsdall, Phillips Petroleum, Texas Corporation, J. I. Case, Deere, Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, Armstrong Cork, Chrysler and American Locomotive.

Narrow to a point or more in arrears were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, Westinghouse, General Electric, Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, Commonwealth & Southern, Canada Dry, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, Kennecott, U. S. Rubber, American Telephone and Western Union.

Woolworth tilted forward. On top also were Fajardo Sugar, American Crystal Sugar, Commercial Solvents, Owens-Illinois, U. S. Realty and Douglas Aircraft.

CURRENT ITEMS

Recent flurries in some copper issues were believed to reflect a substantial expansion in sales rather than expectation of any immediate boost of the red metal price.

Copper producers were understood to be waiting for demand to broaden further before disturbing the current 14-cent domestic rate. The July copper statistics, which will not be released until another fortnight or so, it was thought, might determine the price policy for the remainder of the year.

Helpful to market sentiment were figures of the Nation Association of Mutual Savings Banks indicating deposits and the number of depositors in these institution reached new records on June 30.

At the beginning of foreign exchange transactions sterling was up ⅛ cent at $4.98¼. The French franc was .00⅜ of a cent higher at 3.74⅞ cents.

Atlas Plywood Net Up Sharply

A preliminary report of Atlas Plywood Corp. and subsidiaries for the year ended June 30, 1937, subject to audit, shows a net profit of $495,188, which is equal to $3.31 per share on the 135,377 no par shares of common stock outstanding.

For the year ended June 30, 1936, net profit amounted to $136,783, which was equal to $1.04 per share on the no-par shares of common stock then outstanding.

Comments of Brokers

There could be more of the present sidewise movement while the market is consolidating its rise.—J. Paul Lynch, Josephthal & Co.

Some time shortly, the market seems likely to experience a more thorough correction than any witnessed thus far, of the ground already gained.—J. E. Molloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

It is quite possible that the end of the court plan for the time being, together with better labor conditions, is already causing a decided change in the trend of industrial bookings.—G. M.-P. Murphy & Co.

As a general trading policy, believe new purchases had best be made on fair-sized reactions.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber & Co.

In view of the fact that general business is exhibiting a healthy tone, in view of the steady outlook for the money market, in view of the gradual disappearance of Europe and its troubles as a market faction, and especially in view of the near adjournment of Congress, the outlook for the market is good.—F. H. Richardson, Southgate & Co.

For those primarily interested in the long swing possibilities of the market we see no great incentive to dispose of existing positions in deserving issues for we regard business prospects and other pertinent considerations as very favorably defined.—J. S. Bache & Co.

TRADE Activity Tops 1936

N. Y. CITY STORE SALES INCREASE

New York, July 27 (AP)—Retail trade is displaying more robust vitality over last year than indicated by statistics, observers noted. For New York city, largest retail center of the nation, the Department of Commerce last week reported a gain in department store sales of 5.2 per cent over the like week of 1936.

Moderate gains over 1936 were scored by Atlanta, St. Louis, Kansas City, Charleston, Denver, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, New Orleans, Omaha, Savannah, Seattle and Wilmington.

"Substantial margins" were scored over the corresponding 1936 week in Buffalo, Detroit, Louisville, Memphis, Milwaukee and Portland, Ore.

What sales statistics do not show, however, is that gains over last year were chalked up against a period which had the abnormal stimulus of soldiers' bonus funds.

From June 15 to July 27 last summer more than a billion dollars of bonus bonds were turning into cash. While it is true a substantial part of this money had already been spent in advance of the postman's arrival, trade experts said there was no doubt the advent of the bonus did much to spur business.

In the absence of conclusive statistics on the extent of last summer's bonus effect on trade, the true bent of the current statistical curve remains somewhat obscure. A more adequate comparison, some hold, is that which relates the latest week to corresponding weeks two and three years ago.

For example, the Department of Commerce notes that New York department stores sales in the week ended July 21 were 30 per cent ahead of the like week of 1935 and 40 per cent above the corresponding week of 1934.

At the same time it is stressed dollar sales increase statistics must be studied in the light of higher retail prices. Prices, as measured by the Fairchild retail price index in the first five months of this year, advanced 6.1 per cent above the like period of last year, and on June 1 were 8.5 per cent more than on the same date a year ago.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, July 27—Trustees of the state loan of the Kingdom of Norway, 1924, have informed Speyer & Co., its American fiscal agents, today, that the Hungarian government has provided foreign currencies to meet 50 per cent of the interest due August 1. To take care of the balance, Pengo Treasury bills of the government have been deposited to the credit of the trustees with the National Bank of Hungary.

The American Institute of Steel Construction reported shipments of fabricated structural steel during June were 59.9 per cent of normal—normal being the average annual volume during 1928-31—and shipments for the first half of the year were 54.8 per cent of normal. Estimated tonnage for the entire industry for the first six months this year totaled contracts of 909,313 tons and shipments of 769,560 tons; against contracts of 761,976 tons and shipments of 692,244 tons in the same period last year.

Lehman Bros.-Lazard Freres Syndicate is offering the $6,000,000 State of Massachusetts notes to yield .50 per cent. Issue was awarded on its bid of .52, plus $13.13 premium.

Shipments of household washing machines washers in the first half of 1937 totaled 949,328, highest half year on record and 10.2 per cent increase over 861,408 units in the same period a year ago. June shipments were 143,073 or 5.2 per cent above last year.

Argentina's export balance of trade for the first six months of the year amounted to 739,901,000 pesos ($246,700,000 at the official exchange rate) highest in any similar period in the country's history, advices to the argentine information bureau indicated today. Export balance for the same period last year totaled 184,362,000 pesos ($61,500,000.)

Business failures for the week ended July 22 stood at 148 compared with 152 in the previous week and 141 in the same week a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Victor Chemical to Take TVA Power

Conclusion of a 20-year contract for purchase of Wilson Dam power by Victor Chemical Works was announced by the Tennessee Valley Authority.

The announcement stated the company intends to construct a $1,000,000 new electric furnace plant near Mt. Pleasant, Tennessee, for processing of phosphate rack. Under the contract, TVA will furnish power to the new plant, which by 1941 is expected to require about 32,000 kilowatts. Revenues to TVA from this contract are estimated at more than $500,000 annually.

What PWA Means to Ickes

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

Washington, July 27—Harold L. Ickes, director of the PWA, which will be in a state of liquidation for the next two years, told me that he would like authorization to set up a skeleton general staff to plan for emergency public works for the next depression.

For some months, Mr. Ickes has recognized that business recovery and re-employment warranted tapering off the public spending, and he intends to use the authorization to continue the PWA for two years, more chiefly to complete projects already initiated. He favors setting up machinery for long-term planning of public works so that in the next emergency the public works administrator, charged with spending colossal sums quickly, will not be caught unprepared as he was in 1933.

As his work as guardian of the public works dollar approaches a close, Mr. Ickes feels that the public approves the work of the PWA, which, he contends, has been substantially without "politics and graft." Mr. Ickes feels that a lesson of permanent value to the American municipalities has been learned, namely, that it is feasible to build vast municipal projects without the traditional 20 per cent loading of the cost with graft.

* * *

Setting forth his philosophy whereby acceleration of public works may be used to arrest a depression, Mr. Ickes said:

"I am thoroughly convinced that the soundest possible public policy at a time of economic depression is the prompt undertaking of a far-flung program of substantial public works.

"I do not believe that any fair critic will now question the widespread and substantial effect of our public works program in helping to stop the depression, in helping to turn the tide and in helping the country to point back toward recovery and prosperity.

"I am firmly convinced that if we had had a program of public works ready to embark upon when this administration came into power in March of 1933, and if Congress had promptly appropriated, not three billions of dollars but a much larger sum with which to undertake that program, we would have experienced recovery much earlier and in greater volume than we have had it.

"I believe that the Public Works Administration should be made a permanent agency of the government. There is no assurance, based upon the past, that we will not find ourselves in another depression in the years to come. We hope that this will not be the case, but probably there exists in the hearts of all of us a lurking fear that, after all, this hope is just a hope.

"If there should be another depression we must not be unprepared as we were when the last one struck us. As an irreducible minimum we should maintain a public works general staff. We should have a reservoir of well-considered, carefully - planned projects, work on which could be undertaken as soon as the necessity arose and money was made available for them.

"We should prepare for the next possible depression just as the army and navy, day by day, is preparing for any possible eventuality. We do not want another war; we loathe the very thought of such an event. But there may be one. Neither do we think of any possible future depression except with feelings of fear and aversion. But a depression may come and we must not be caught unprepared if it does."

Boston & Maine Surplus $89,779

Boston & Maine Railroad reports for June a surplus after charges of $89,779, which compares with a deficit after charges of $58,637 in June, 1936.

In the first six months of 1937 the road earned a surplus after charges of $654,706, equal to $2.83 a share on 231,322 shares of 7 per cent prior preference stock, on which there is an accumulation of back dividends. This contrasts with a deficit after charges of $2,757,438 in the first half of last year, which included an extensive amount of flood damage charges.

Polo Again Becomes Highlight On North Shore Calendar

By BETTY ALDEN

THE POLO PONIES up on the North Shore are a little bit tired these days so Anne Ayer is having some difficulty in reorganizing the girls' team which she started last summer . . .

MERILEEDS HEARD

Horses are as necessary to the polo player as water to the swimmer, and, because many of the girls who are proficient mallet swingers, do not own horses . . . or the ones they do own are not trained in the intricate maneuvers of polo . . . the feminine team has to depend on the regular string at the Myopia Hunt Club . . . and that is where the difficulty arises . . . Playing polo, maintaining a playing field, and a string of horses is an expensive proposition . . . and because in this case it is the man who pays and pays, the girls feel that the use of the ponies is a masculine prerogative . . .

The heavy rains delayed the start of the polo season at Myopia . . . as it did all over the East . . . so now that the field is in good condition the men are out at four-thirty or five almost every afternoon . . . practicing and engaging in scrimmage games . . .

The feminine team would meet earlier in the afternoon and even with a short rest in between, the horses would be pretty tired when the masculine players arrived for their scrimmage . . . So the girls haven't the heart to take advantage of their chivalry, and content themselves with sitting in the little bleacher seats alongside the Myopia field and learning the fine points of the game by spectating . . .

Forrester (Big Tim) Clark, of Harvard polo fame, is the captain of the Myopia team, which furnishes the girls with practice exhibitions and occasional hard fought games with teams from other clubs . . .

For the most part the afternoon games are scrimmages . . . between two evenly picked teams called "White" and "Red" . . . the name of the red team is no concession to the fact that the captain and many of the players first gained their polo spurs while wearing Harvard's crimson . . .

* * *

Hope for Myopia-Dedham Girls Game

SOME OF THE PLAYERS on Tim Clark's team are Frederick Ayer, father of the polo playing Anne and Freddie Jr., who is a member of the Harvard team . . . Also Francis Chailfoux, Paul Fox (another member of the Harvard team) Neal Rice, Charles Rice, Albert Cameron Burrage (the team has missed him this summer, for he is disabled with a leg fracture), Dick Preston, Edward McNichol, Jr., and Lyle Phillips . . .

But to get back to the girls' team and its problems . . . Anne Ayer is a resourceful captain, and is not discouraged by these unfortunate circumstances . . . She is still making every effort to get her last year's aggregation in the saddle again . . . Members of the Dedham Polo and Country Club organized an informal girls' team during the past two spring seasons, and it would be perfect if the two girls' outfits could be brought together to determine which deserves the title of women champions of New England . . .

Among the girls fighting for the title with Anne Ayer would be Marian McKean, Merileeds Heard, Nancy and Cynthia Burrage and Eleo Sears . . . while Phyllis Forbes and her cousin, Pauline Forbes, would organize the Dedham girls with the support of "Jinks" Reggio, Lucy Stone and Sue Ayer . . . if the competition got too close for the latter group they could call upon some of their masculine contemporaries who sometimes have practice and scrimmage games with them . . . including Allen Forbes, Jr., Elliot Forbes, David Howe and Eric Schraeder . . .

Fashion Show at Magnolia's Casino

THE THOUGHT OF FURS may seem a bit stifling to those who endured yesterday's heat in town, but silver fox, sable and mink did not seem out of place in the North Shore Babies Hospital fashion show given at the Casino in Magnolia . . . A brisk east wind which made the yachts pitch and roll out in the harbor, brought the ocean's coolness and the tang of salt in through the open windows . . . performing a feat of natural air conditioning which the makers of modern equipment would find hard to equal . . .

The ocean breeze and the summery frocks and hats of the guests seated about the many small tea tables, made the atmosphere perfect for the showing of beach and cruise clothes . . . in the fashion exhibit which followed a lecture by Dr. Earle Raiguel . . . Olivia Ames, Sister Frothingham and Frances Sortwell modelled shorts and cottons and sports dresses to perfection . . .

It seems to be the tendency to save the more formal things for the latter part of a fashion show and yesterday's mannequins, who have undoubtedly been living in bathing suits, light sports dresses and sailing togs most of the time since they went down to the shore, welcomed the chance to wear fluffy evening gowns under lavish fur coats and capes . . . Ellen Moseley, Mrs. Nelson Aldrich, Charlotte Rantoul and Lucile and Eleanor Swift each appeared on the runway in a succession of beautiful evening ensembles . . .

Fashionables Flock to Show

IN THE AUDIENCE were some of the shore's best dressed women . . . Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., who drove over with Mrs. Ben P. Moseley, wore a simple white dress with a short pearl necklace and a burgundy straw picture hat . . . Mrs. John O'Day of Swampscott wore a hat of the same warm red shade, trimmed with brilliant flowers, to contrast with her pale blue gown which had embroidery repeating the colors on her hat, on the shoulders and belt . . . Her daughter, Dorothy, was celebrating in a festive way with real orchids on the shoulder of her white dress . . . Mrs. James Phelan just returned to the shore from a week-end visit in New Hampshire, was in their party, and Priscilla Phelan joined them after maintaining silence among the late comers, who might otherwise have prevented the audience from hearing some of the lecture . . .

Mrs. Augustus Rantoul and her son, Robert, got a kick out of watching Charlotte parading across the runway . . . but went home early, leaving Charlotte and Marileeds Heard chatting over their tea cups with Anne and Frances Sortwell and Frances Holmes, and listening to a few of the serenades Sammy played for them . . . Mrs. George Swift wore a toast color open crown hat trimmed with a filmy veil, and a deep rose linen frock as she proudly watched her daughters in the fashion show . . .

Berkshire Notes

The Right Rev. William Appleton Lawrence, Protestant Episcopal Bishop on the Western Massachusetts Diocese, has been the guest of honor at a number of recent affairs given by summer residents in the Berkshire Hills, where he is visiting Mr. and Mrs. George B. DeGersdorff at the Old Rectory in Stockbridge.

On Sunday, Bishop Lawrence preached at the 175th anniversary celebration of St. James Church, in Great Barrington, and afterward was honored at a luncheon party given at the Berkshire Inn by the Rev. Edward C. M. Tower, rector of St. James.

Sunday evening, Bishop Lawrence preached at a Sunday sunset service in Mrs. Charles M. Deheredia's gardens at Wheatleigh. Later Mrs. Deheredia gave a supper in his honor. Mrs. DeGersdorff, who is the Bishop's cousin, recently gave a garden party for him. Among the guests were, Mrs. William Ellery Sedgwick, Miss Mabel Choate, Mrs. Francis C. Huntington, Mrs. Franklin Chase Downing and Mrs. Henry Ivision Parsons.

Nantucket Bridal

North Shore society will be well represented at the wedding of Margaret Mitchell of Chicago to Barrett Wendell, 3d, which will take place Thursday afternoon at Leedsmere, the Nantucket summer home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leeds Mitchell.

Whether by design or by accident, the couple chose the date of their wedding to coincide with the sailing plans of most of the North Shore yachting fans who are going to Newport for the first of the races for the America's Cup on Saturday. A stop over in Nantucket, Thursday, will give the cruisers a little break in their trip and a bit of social festivity to boot.

Lee Wendell, brother of the bridegroom, will be the best man, while his bride, the former Camilla Alsop, who curtailed the plans for her recent wedding because of the sudden death of her mother, will be a bridesmaid. Mrs. Horace Soule Jr., of Hamilton (Barbara Wendell), who is the sister of both Lee and Barrett, will be a bridesmaid along with Miss Sidney Todd, a cousin of Miss Mitchell. Miss Nancy Montgomery of Stamford, Conn., will be the maid of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. J. Noble (Susan Means) who are spending the summer at Pride's Crossing with the senior Mr. and Mrs. Noble, will go down for the wedding. Mr. Noble will be one of the ushers for Mr. Wendell, who is one of his former classmates at Harvard. Other ushers include Horace Soule, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Chauncey Hutchins and Leeds Mitchell, Jr., both of Chicago, Herbert Wallis of Cambridge, Robert Waldinger of Boston and Brewster Perry of Chicago.

Husband Rebels Against Working as Domestic, Stages Sit-Down

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Should a husband become a domestic and general utility man when out of employment while his wife earns the daily bread?

This interesting problem arises today in a letter from a husband who finds himself in just this situation.

This man in rebellion against his wife's demands has gone on a sit-down strike. Here is the letter:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Just because I am out of work, I am forced to be the housemaid, cook, chauffeur and mechanic, and what have you? It isn't my fault that I am unemployed, and that my wife has a good job. She, however, blames me for everything—the depression, all political blunders, and even my own, which are a few.

When I work I make a good salary, $200 a month. Now I get my own meals and hers, too. Up at 5 a. m., I cook, wash and act as chambermaid and general utility man. When she comes home she eats the dinner I get; then I wash the dishes, and drive her wherever she wants to go. I meet her with the car at night at her place of business and am otherwise a slave.

She has been injured three times in auto accidents (I was not driving at those times). She was laid off for six months on account of accidents, and I paid nurses' and doctors' bills. So, I've gone on a sit-down strike.

If women demand equality, they should grant equality, instead of asking 100 per cent consideration for their so-called "feminine helplessness."

D. R. H.

A good many ladies who bring home the bacon have begun to think that friend husband should cook it, and do the dishes afterward. It seems to me that your wife's demands may be a little excessive. Here's hoping cordially that you get your $200 a month job back soon.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX—

He is 22 and I am 20. We've been going together for three years and I have had no peace either from his family or mine since we've declared our love. My mother tells me, if I should marry him, I'll never get along, because he won't work. And we have many arguments over this.

He hasn't a steady job, but works wherever he can find it. He often comes home from a job in the printing business, where he helps out in busy times, and then takes any odd job to get a little extra money just so he can show me a good time. But all the fussing and argument on the part of his family and mine makes me get real "picky" with him, though we both love each other very much.

HOPEFUL.

DEAR HOPEFUL:

Without having heard the family objection from either side, it seems to be much in the boy's favor to take odd jobs to give you a good time, when printing is only part-time employment for him. I think the objections on the part of your family are due probably to your youth, rather than to any real opposition to the boy.

At 22, a boy has to be unusually brilliant to be able to support a wife.

What to Do for Falling Hair

THE GRADUAL thinning of the hair in early life may be caused by illness or improper care of the hair and scalp.

The trouble is often corrected by giving the hair a course of treatment or by correct manipulation of the scalp, and in some cases the cure of dandruff is all that is necessary.

If you write in to us at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, we will mail you a leaflet on a course of treatments, with formulas that can be made up at home, including an excellent hair tonic, a medicated shampoo and several ointments and lotions, that will often cure the most annoying case of dandruff.

Beauty Answers

QUESTION—I am a mother of 30, anxious to keep away age and lines from my face, but cannot afford or give time to several one purpose creams, masques or astringents. My question is—I want to know if there is just one cream that will be good for my skin to use at night and also as a powder foundation during the day. An answer to this letter will be greatly appreciated.

M. K., Allston.

ANSWER—I am very happy to be able to tell you that there is an ideal three-purpose cream, which makes definite changes in all faces over 25. It is certainly the answer to your inquiry. This cream is sold exclusively at one Boston store. As I cannot give trade names here, I must ask you to write me again, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Premature Gloating

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The laws are made for justice—not punishment.

We have all seen players who were so lacking in sportsmanship as virtually to smack their lips when an opponent made an insufficient bid or other innocent mistake.

North-South vulnerable.

South decided his distribution was too good to pass and, therefore, opened the proceedings with one heart. West made a very bad call over the one heart; obviously, he should have doubled for a take-out, but instead he mumbled "two spades."

North, who heard the spade part but missed the quantity, blithely raised to two hearts and West, always alert to such opportunities, gloatingly barked "insufficient!"

Poor North was informed that West had bid two spades over the one heart, and that he must now make a bid sufficient to outbid two spades. This put North into quiet a quandary; he realized that his partner was barred from the auction and, having no idea as to how much strength he had, North could not tell whether a game in hearts would be a laydown, or impossible.

Rather than miss what might well be a sure game, he took the bull by the horns and bid four hearts. East and South passed and West, who had been praying for just such an outcome, bellowed "Double."

Since he himself was not vulnerable and opponents were, it certainly appeared that he could make more points by doubling than by persisting to a game of his own.

For once, however, justice prevailed, and West had the shock of his life when he saw the dummy, after laying down the spade King. There was nothing to the play—the perfect fit between the North and South hands resulted in a lay-down for an extra trick.

The unkindest cut of all was that when West examined the four hands he found that he could have made six spades on his own account against the opening lead of a heart by North.

DO EXERCISES WITHOUT JERKS

By IDA JEAN KAIN

SUBSTITUTE rhythm for jerks in exercise, and your daily dozen can be as soothing as a lullaby.

It should relax the muscles and relieve the high tension nerve centers at the back of the neck, between the shoulder blades, and the backs of the legs.

They do not need the staccato, army-drill type of exercise in which unnatural movements are performed strenuously and precisely.

In general, it would seem that the need is for rhythmical, relaxing exercises that untie the nerve kinks and let the muscles go limp as ribbons.

No exercise program can benefit you to any extent if you regard it as a chore, so try to get some fun out of your daily dozen as you can with the following relaxer:

* * *

Stretch the entire body upward, reaching to the ceiling with the upraised hands and pulling the body up on tiptoe. Then, down on the feet and bend forward at the waist, letting the trunk hang limply.

Bob from the waist, [illegible] and repeat the upward stretch. This stretching and bending limbers up your backbone and helps you to acquire flexibility. Flexibility and slimness go together.

Here is another exercise, which works on the nerves between the shoulder blades.

Sit on the floor, legs extended straight out in front of the body, hands resting on the toes. The head should be drooping forward and there should be no tension in the entire body. Contract your muscles just enough to keep yourself in a sitting position. Gradually move the trunk backward, head hanging limply, and hands on the legs. Move backward until you are lying flat on the floor, hands out at the sides. You should be completely relaxed.

* * *

Stand up, arms stretched high overhead, and suddenly collapse into a squatting position. Come down as if you were falling to pieces. Rise and stretch, and come down again. This exercise affects the muscles of the back, shoulders, waist and legs.

As you see, in these exercises the relaxing part is just as important as the action. As a matter of fact, you cannot achieve 100 per cent efficiency in exercise unless you are able to relax in a measure comparable to the contraction required. Once you learn the secret of relaxing in exercise, you will find it easier to relax at intervals throughout the day. Then you can exercise with less effort and better results.

THERE'S ALWAYS TOMORROW

By May Christie

What Has Happened

On her 25th birthday, Antoinette Goddard, a lovely San Francisco debutante, awakens with a feeling of great happiness. The cause of it was her fiance, Brock Milbank, scion of the prominent west coast Milbanks.

Toni felt flattered that the eligible Brock loved her when he could have had the pick of Society's debutantes. Jessica Payne, an unscrupulous blonde, made no secret of his attraction for her. Even though Brock did not encourage Jessica, Toni was jealous of her.

At the breakfast table, the news that her father had gone bankrupt did not effect Toni deeply. "What was money compared with love?" she thought. "Besides, when she and Brock were married they could help mother and dad."

CHAPTER 2

"[illegible] get the mills back again. Or you'll build other ones, won't you?" she said quickly to her father.

He smiled wanly [illegible], shook his head.

"But you don't mean you've lost everything? I mean, as people did in the earthquake? That would be too fantastic."

"As far as we're concerned, daughter, there has been an earthquake — a financial cataclysm. New laws, new heavy taxation, plus the long-drawn depression have taken their toll."

[illegible]

"But you've thousands and thousands of acres of wonderful timber," she protested. "Why, at my coming out party I remember a lumber man telling me it was worth all of ten million dollars, darling! There hasn't been an earthquake! You're just being funny! The property's still there."

"And no longer mine, I tell you, the banks have taken it over. And the mills, too, Antoinette. Financially, we're through."

PLANS FUTURE

"Cheer up, darling. You still have this lovely old house and the ranch."

"As for your mother and me, the ranch will be our future home. I'm thankful that it is still left us. I'm not as young as I was, you know." His smile tore at Toni's heartstrings.

"At sixty-two one may find oneself learning to accept, even to welcome, tranquillity. Your mother will have her housekeeping and her flower garden and her chickens, and if I can put the fruit trees on a paying basis, that will be something useful as well as a hobby to kill time. It'll work out all right."

"But Brock—" she stammered. [illegible] I mean after [illegible] done for me [illegible] I can do [illegible]

She felt he had suspected that her father would be affected by the new taxes [illegible] in a lesser degree [illegible] own father had been. This suspicion became a certainty when one of the girls in her set, passing through the lobby, stared [illegible] at Toni as though amazed that, today of all days, she had dared to show herself in public when she ought to be at home comforting her parents.

TOUCHED BY SYMPATHY

"Toni! You here! Why, Toni—I—I'm frightfully sorry! You could have knocked me down with a feather! I—I just saw it in the papers! It's an awfully raw deal!"

The girl's shocked concern touched Toni. Tears sprang to her beautiful dark eyes.

"That's awfully kind of you, Frannie." She contrived a shaky smile. "But every cloud has its silver lining, and I've got mine ahead of me." Immediately she said the words, she regretted them. They sounded mercenary, as though Brock were to restore the family fortunes.

The girl stared as though she imagined Toni had lost her mind. Then with a nervous

"You're marvelous! Simply marvelous, taking it like that!" she moved away, murmuring something about luncheon with Jim.

Midsummer Relaxation Finds

By ANNICE BRINK

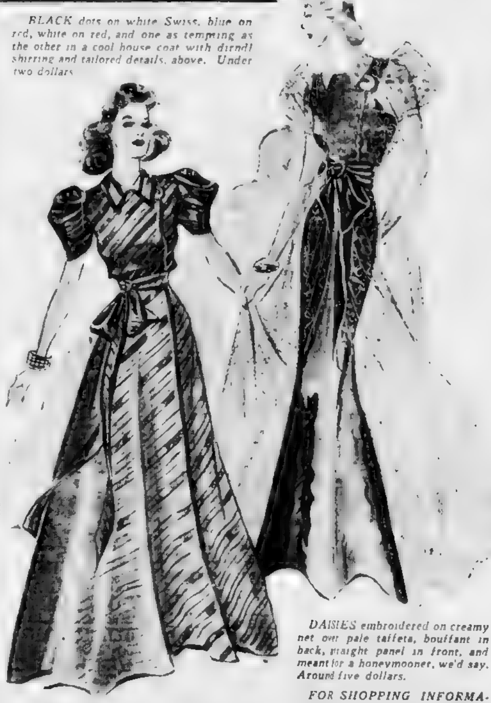
We're speaking of the summer negligee department with its tempting array of inexpensive flattery . . . filmy, or crisp or languorous house coats.

First choice is real dotted Swiss, the innocentest [illegible] of the lot. Though brides will snatch the creamy embroidered net, bouffant and young, posed over rosebud pink taffeta. And will you be surprised at the prices.

BLACK dots on white Swiss, blue on red, white on red, and one as tempting as the other in a cool house coat with dirndl shirring and tailored details, above. Under two dollars.



BROWN and aqua stripes on white, fine wale pique whip around a breezy house coat that'll make him forget your tennis and tiller muscle, above. Around three dollars.

Check-up of Teeth Important to Child

RECENTLY I pointed out the advantages of the summer months for checking up on your child's health.

It is an opportune time for the correction of any physical defects the youngster may have.

If these matters are attended to in the summer, no time will be lost from school in the fall or winter.

Today I want to urge the importance of having a thorough examination by the dentist. If he advises any dental work, have it done now; do not postpone it for a more convenient season. Bear in mind that regular dental care for the child will insure strong and sturdy teeth. Many digestive and other ailments will be avoided if the mouth is not neglected.

Contrary to common belief even the temporary teeth require dental care. To fail to attend to the temporary teeth will lead to imperfection and decay of the second set, the permanent teeth.

SIX-YEAR MOLARS

First in importance, and a visit to the dentist will reveal their condition, are the "six-year molars." These four teeth belong to the permanent set, but all too often they are confused with the temporary teeth. Their neglect leads to many disturbances which should have been avoided.

Did you know that the proper shape and position of the permanent set of teeth are definitely influenced by the six-year molars?

If these teeth are decayed, weak, infected and finally lost, the entire jaw may be thrown out of line.

Many a young person suffers the humiliation of irregular and unattractive looking teeth because these molars had no attention. This is a common cause of deformity of the mouth.

Let me repeat that neglect here frequently leads to a great deal of discomfort in later life.

Your dentist will advise you as to the exact condition of your child's teeth. If there are tiny cavities or other signs of trouble present he will give them attention.

IMPORTANCE OF DIET

Your doctor will tell you how to avoid dental and other disabilities. He will point out the importance of proper eating.

The daily diet should contain a quart of milk and an abundance of fresh fruits, vegetables, cereals, cream, butter and eggs.

MADGE TO GO WITH DICKY TO JAIL

CHAPTER 344

DICKY gave a distinct start as I said that if he were going to the Southampton jail, where Jack Leslie was confined, that I was going with him. I expected a peremptory refusal, and I was prepared to battle furiously for the chance to accompany him.

I had been so shaken by what he had said concerning the men in the deserted shack that I could not bear to have him go out into the night without me.

But evidently he realized that I was in no condition to listen to common sense, for, of course, there was no real reason why I should go with him to the jail. However, he would not have been a man if he had not thought a protest of some sort was in order.

"Have you gone completely [illegible]?" he demanded. "Why on earth do you want to go over to the jailhouse? Or do you think I'm not able to go out of the house without somebody to wipe my nose and tie my necktie?"

SURE OF VICTORY

His tone was querulous but held no real [illegible] and I [illegible] with the certainty of victory [illegible] as I snuggled close to him.

"You know I don't think anything of the kind," I said [illegible] "but somehow I can't stand the idea of your going out of the house tonight without me."

"Not even if I promise to stay far, far away from the gentry on the [illegible]?" he asked with tender mockery.

"Not even for anything," I said stubbornly, but squeezing his hand tightly.

"Well, I suppose I ought to be flattered enough by such devotion to say yes without any more ado," he said, "but honestly, darling, I do wish you wouldn't insist upon going."

"Almost thou persuadest me," I quoted softly, "but honestly, darling, I simply can't stay at home if you go away from the farmhouse tonight."

FINALLY AGREES

"All right, then, you win," Dicky said, sending the car along, "but don't think you're establishing a precedent, old dear, because you're not. There's a beautiful brunette at Bridgehampton who's been looking my way, and if you think you're going to trail me every time I leave the farmhouse you can tally two or three things on your score board."

"Don't be so [illegible] darling," I murmured demurely. "You make me dizzy."

"What you need," Dicky [illegible] a good [illegible] and [illegible] we [illegible] the farmhouse.

Katie greeted us with jubilant relief.

"Oh! I so glad you coom!" she caroled, all sign of her fainting fit gone. "Me, I begin to tink mine dinner all spoiled, but you only fife meenits late."

"Thank me for that, Katie," Dicky said gravely. "I dragged Mrs. Graham away from Mrs. T[illegible] by the hair of her head."

ANOTHER SCENE

Katie giggled, while my mother-in-law looked on with lofty disapproval. She never addresses Katie or any servant with anything but formality of varying degrees according to her mood, and she objects most strenuously to the manner in which Dicky and I often jest with Katie, sure that because of her long association with us, she will never take an undue advantage of our raillery.

"Me, I tell Missis Graham dot Meesis Ticer, she vould talk arms off brass monkey," Katie chortled and Mother Graham exploded.

"Katie, are you going to serve dinner, or are you going to stand there chattering?" she demanded in such awe-inspiring tones that Katie with a choked, "I feex right away qveeck," scuttled to the kitchen.

I gave a private signal to Dicky and he drew her away to the living room, while I made my way by a devious route to the kitchen where I found Katie standing in the middle of the floor with her head thrown back, her fists clenched at her sides and her face working with a strenuous effort to keep back the tears.

Across the room the nurse was standing with her eyes watchfully fixed upon my tempestuous household helper. When she saw me, she gestured toward Katie, and I saw she knew as well as I that if I could not prevent it within the next few seconds, we would have another scene.

THESE ARE HEY-DAYS OF DELICIOUS COLD CUTS

Serve With Piquant Sauce

By MARTHA LEE

Chicken, tongue, corned beef, summer sausages, varying forms of meat loaves, including molded gelatin meats as well as leftover roast pork, veal, or lamb offer any number of pleasing combinations.

Your neighborhood delicatessen offers many varieties to select from. Jars of canned meats reposing in the refrigerator can be brought forth at a moment's notice for use.

Many people like a piquant sauce served with the cold cuts. An appetizing arrangement of meat varieties placed in [illegible] on a large [illegible] a small [illegible] in the center of the [illegible]

Personality in Letters

DOES letter-writing tie you in knots?

Do you stare at your paper, chew your pen, draw circles on your blotter and wind up by stringing together flavorless phrases like "The weather is fine. Wish you were here"?

If you'd have your friends [illegible] when they read your letters [illegible] Make a dear [illegible] taking to them. Write:

This is the [illegible] and [illegible] climbs [illegible] and the changing [illegible] the distant mountains are fascinating to watch. I do wish you could be here with me to enjoy it.

Do you make your bread-and-butter letters stiff with "I appreciated your kind invitation"?

Or can you make them seem friendly and spontaneous like this:

I don't know when I've had such a perfectly grand time as you showed me in Pleasantville. I'm still in a glow thinking about all the gay parties and picnics you planned. Your friends were charming too.

I wouldn't have missed the [illegible]

Beauty Hints

WOMEN don't wrinkle as early now as they did in former years.

Look at the photograph of your great grandmother at the age of 40. She looked 60.

The reason older women are hanging onto youthful appearance is that they are more active, lead more varied and interesting lives than women did years ago.

There is a greater interest today in athletics and outdoor sports. Oily cosmetics are used with a lavish hand; they keep the skin smooth. The friction necessary for their application tones underlying fibers.

There's no such creature as a "bawling" woman. In Victorian novels we read about the melancholy beauty. She must have been a "wash-out." Now we know we have to keep smiling. Steadfast, [illegible] has made many a household happy.

The fly in the ointment nowadays is that some women are inclined to have tense faces. Life is hurried, and as they hurry along they set their jaws like bear traps. Whenever they catch themselves at that trick they should do a smiling and unsmiling facial exercise.

Tilly Losch Will Star In Film

By HARRIET PARSONS

Copyright 1937, By Universal Service

Los Angeles, July 27—Tilly Losch, exotic dancer who made an effective film debut in "Garden of Allah," will be starred by M-G-M in a remake of "The Bright Shawl."

The famous Joseph Hergesheimer novel was produced by First National as a silent in 1923 with Richard Barthelmess, William Powell, Dorothy Gish, Jetta Goudal, Mary Astor and Edward G. Robinson (playing a bit). Gustav Machaty, whose daring picture "Ecstasy" gave the women's clubs a bad turn, will direct.

Harriet Parsons

Miss Losch, a Viennese, has been taking diction lessons at Metro three times a week. Studio [illegible] she's a great bet and wants her to be able to drop her accent when necessary.

Looks as if the glamor girls of burlesque are fated to become the stars on the screen . . . Twentieth Fox's Gypsy Rose Lee, re-christened Louise Hovick, played a heavy in "You Can't Have Everything." And now Ada Leonard, RKO's recruit from the strip tease, [illegible] will be a mechanic in "She's Got That Swing."

Ann Sothern and Gene Raymond have the romantic leads and Helen Broderick and Victor Moore take care of the laughs. A postcard from Gene and bride Jeanette MacDonald says the Hawaiian sun has turned them both a rich mahogany. (That's [illegible] good news to M-G-M since the studio has just issued an order banning tans.

Fanny Brice is in town looking like a million and has been pacted by M-G-M for a role in "Swing Fever," the Edgar Allan Woolf-Florence Ryerson original for Judy Garland. Incidentally, the male lead is being rewritten and built up for Allan Jones since he scored such a hit in "Firefly." Others in the cast are Maureen O'Sullivan, Billie Burke, Reginald Owen and Tom Rutherford.

Casting [illegible] Priscilla Moran, whose last screen appearance was as a demure miss of eight in Jackie Coogan's "Long Live the King," has just been signed by Paramount and goes into "Goodnight Ladies." . . . Harry Watson, who was Sam in Warners' "Penrod and Sam," will play Astaire's youthful pal in RKO's "Damsel In Distress." Studio tried to get Mickey Rooney, but he's busy at M-G-M. Also added to cast of "Damsel" are Constance Collier, Reginald Gardiner and Montagu Love.

[illegible] Palomar [illegible] make "Highway Racketeers," a story of hitch-hiking bandits, with Lew Ayres and Louise Campbell in top spots. This is the third assignment for Miss Campbell, imported from the New York stage . . . Though their off-screen romance is dead, Jane Travis and Dick Purcell will bill and coo in "One More Tomorrow" for Warners.

Preston Foster and RKO are rowing again. Studio wants Pres to do "Love in a Basement," a remake of "Rafter Romance," and he's unhappy about it.

'Children's Hour' Hailed At Centerville Premiere

By PEGGY DOYLE

Centerville, July 27—"The Children's Hour," the Lillian Hellman Broadway hit of several years ago which Mayor Mansfield banned from Boston, had its New England premiere here last night without benefit of censors and a mere handful of critics.

The play, which is definitely not for children and which the New York critics called the biggest drama of the year, was well directed by Mary Young, assisted by E. Stanley Pratt.

Unfortunately, the principals, Miss Young, Mabel Taliaferro, Terry Fay and Max Buckley, missed the emphasis on their respective characterizations. Terry Fay's Mary Tilford, the psychopathic brat of the original cast, reached the Mary Young Theater footlights as a pestiferous, unpleasant youngster, utterly lacking the meanness and poison Miss Emerson wrote into the role.

Miss Young's Martha Dobie was letter perfect in her lines as was Miss Taliaferro's Karen Wright but is it permissible to suggest that youth is an essential qualification for the roles of the two teachers in Miss Emerson's moving, beautiful tragic drama?

The essence of the "Children's Hour" is that the evil was so [illegible] in the unhealthy twisted mind of the child, Mary Tilford.

Unhappily the characterizations of Miss Taliaferro and Miss Young suggest that there might be some justification in the Tilford youngster's unmentionable insinuations.

Elizabeth Scott, who plays Rosalie Wells, the naive little girl who is victimized by Mary Tilford, is excellent. She was a member of the original New York cast although she did not play the part she did last night.

Mr. Buckley, cast as Mary Tilford's grandmother, Mrs. Tilford, was [illegible] reminiscent of the star [illegible] she played last week in Edgar Selwyn's "Prejudice." For this reviewer she failed to get the concept of the old-school [illegible] dame [illegible] of a [illegible] at the whispered [illegible] slaughter.

Shaw Feted At Mohawk Festival

Schenectady, N. Y., July 27 (P) —Presenting "The Devil's Disciple" last night the Mohawk Drama Festival on Union College campus marked the 81st anniversary of the Irish dramatist, G. Bernard Shaw and the 160th anniversary year of the decisive battle of Saratoga, the climax of the Shaw play having reference to the surrender of General Burgoyne who is a character in the play.

The representation of General Burgoyne [illegible] held special interest at Union College since Burgoyne after his surrender remained the guest of one of the founders of the college, General Philip Schuyler, whose military preparation for the British defeat was in a large measure due.

Notwithstanding the fact that he had ordered the destruction of his host's home and other property in the campaign, the British commander was entertained by General Schuyler with all courtesy. It was [illegible] a personal act [illegible] an act of war, the American officer [illegible] explained, since the battle was fought near Saratoga Springs about 17 miles [illegible]

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

Quite a feministic field day it was that the National Federation of Business and Professional Women had last week down in Atlantic City. The assembled ladies struck a keynote quite different from that usually sounded by the delegates to the National Federation of Women's Clubs. The older organization is rather more domestic. It is made up of wives and mothers and home-makers and its objectives (as the President likes to put it) are directed to the welfare of society as a whole and not so much to the welfare of women as a profession and a sex.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

The president of the Federation led off at the convention last week with a protest against the Massachusetts Political Club's demand that if any of the WPA personnel are to be discharged the married women shall be chosen first. As you know, Miss Florence Birmingham has been insisting on that point for more than a year now.

Insist WPA Is 'Dole,' Jobs on Basis of Need

The president of the Federation called Miss Birmingham's viewpoint an oblique attack on the rights of all women. She wishes to put basis of job selection under WPA on "civil service" grounds of merit, efficiency and ability, in other words favoring the kind of trained women who make up the personnel of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

On the other hand, Miss Birmingham, Miss Sybil Holmes and other prominent local women insist that the WPA is a dole, not a civil service, and jobs should be given or kept on the basis of need, not of competence. Women who have husbands and other wage-earners behind them, therefore, should be given less consideration than women entirely on their own, regardless of their abilities.

It seems to me that Miss Birmingham and Miss Holmes are entirely correct in this point of view. To use the WPA set up as a means of procuring professional jobs for trained women is outside the scope of the WPA as ordinarily set up. The Mrs. Roosevelt and Madame Perkins influence, already pretty strong in this administration, tending as it does to favor the well-to-do women in the top brackets of professional work, has nothing to do with WPA work.

Want No Special Laws For Woman's Protection

The Federation gives the impression of taking the same point of view so long held by the Woman's Party, which for nearly 20 years has insisted that all legislation tending to protect women as women should be abolished, thus obviously favoring the trained professional women who want careers outside the home and taking away such protection as the law now gives for the other women who must work at whatever jobs are available.

These women, the aristocrats of feminism, obviously are not interested in what happens to the general run of women who have to work. Rather they seek to build up a favored class who are more capable of taking care of themselves anyway and are being rather selfish about it.

In a rather lighter and more amusing vein was the address of a mere man, Dr. Robert Hoppock, assistant to the National Occupational Conference of New York, who talks like a woman and a thoroughly modern, feministic woman at that.

He said, according to the headlines

"Let men do the housework."

Let the stronger sex do the heavy work of the house, such as the cooking, washing, cleaning and that sort of thing, thus freeing the women folk for pleasant jobs in offices.

Women in Industry Remains Big Problem

All of which is largely hooey. It sounds like Mrs. Roosevelt's demand for an eight-hour day for housewives and a good salary. Talk like this is so infinitely removed from the conditions under which the great majority of working men and housekeeping women have to operate that it means very little.

This obvious attempt to wean women away from the home and into the sterile, pleasant work of business and the professions does not speak at all well for the feminine brains which seem to be behind this organization. Notably these fortunate women have little to say about women in industry, which is the real problem.

SLAP Told by BRIDE

WINS DIVORCE IN DEDHAM

A bride who was slapped by the groom at her wedding reception, a wife who got a $12,000 settlement and a husband whose wife was seized in a hotel raid with a mysterious "Mr X" all won divorces in Dedham probate court today at the last session until fall.

Judge Joseph R. M[illegible] granted four uncontested divorces.

Elizabeth Calv[illegible] of Quincy, in winning a divorce from James V. Calv[illegible] of Hingham, related the slapping at her wedding reception.

She said that her husband did not have enough money to pay the orchestra, so his sister passed the hat among the guests. When she commented on this he slapped her face, she testified.

Mrs. Marion A. Sias of Brookline won a divorce, custody of a child and a total of $12,000 for support of the child, [illegible] and counsel fees from William Sias of Boston on grounds of desertion.

State police testified to a raid on a hotel in Russell in which Mrs. Elinor McCauley of Needham was arrested with another man as a basis for the divorce granted Frank J. McCauley of Needham.

The man was referred to as "Mr X."

75 Children Rout Girl's Attacker

Hastily arming with paving stones and bricks, 75 Dorchester children drove off a husky 34-year-old man who attempted to carry away Selma Small, 13, as the girl was playing on a footbridge leading to Walker Playground.

Police seeking the attacker who fled into the woods off Norfolk street before a hail of stones today heard the story of how a brave, courageous band of children saved one of their number.

Selma, who lives on Astoria street, Mattapan, attracted her playmates by her screams after the man had made advances to her, police said.

Ship Strike Parley In New York Today

A conference in New York was looked to today as the means of ending an unauthorized sit-down strike of 34 crew members of the United Fruit Company's steamer Limon here.

The strikers claim they have not been paid back wages. A threat was issued that two other ships of the same line will also be scenes of strikes unless overtime money is paid the crews.

Mystery Cemetery Cries Unsolved

Concord, N. H., July 27—Weird cries emanating from the Old North Cemetery in the dead of night which have baffled investigating police for three days were still unsolved today.

A detail of bluecoats carrying side arms and floodlights failed to trace the nocturnal noises last night. Spooners have shunned the cemetery, formerly used as a parking place.

Cook Hints Plan For Mayor Race

Candidacy of former Auditor Alonzo B. Cook in the coming mayoral election was seen today following his visit to the Finance Commission's hearing into gift contracts of the George Robert White Fund.

"I may run for mayor in the coming election," Cook explained. "That's why I am attending the hearing."

2 Boys Rescued As Boat Overturns

Fall River, July 27—James, 12 and Charles Moran, 15, brothers were recuperating from immersion in Mount Hope Bay today, suffered when their sailboat overturned near Brayton's Point South Swansea and they nearly drowned.

While James clung to the craft Charles started for shore. Arthur Le Blanc, 15, of Somerset, reached both boys in a rowboat and brought them and the sailboat to shore.

'Don't Do It,' Warning Of Runaway Girl, 'Cured'

Back home, after having run away to enjoy "freedom" and "adventure," pretty Dorothy Arnold, 16, of Normandy street, Roxbury, says she found only disillusionment and heartbreak in her wanderings. When she writes an occasional note, like this, to one of the few persons who befriended her, she always closes with the same postscript. "I'm a home girl from now on. No more 'adventure' for me!"

[illegible] nights on park benches [illegible] men, [illegible] unemployment [illegible] homes [illegible] read the diaries of the ever growing ranks of Greater Boston's runaway girls.

Does it sound like [illegible]?

Dorothy Arnold, 16, of Normandy street, Roxbury, [illegible] question [illegible] has been one of the latest to be added to the list of missing persons at police headquarters, the list that approximates [illegible] names every day. The number is 75 a day. It is higher this year perhaps. It has gone as high as 200.

Latest additions to the great army of missing girls are Elizabeth Hodgkinson of Hyde Park and Helen [illegible] and Marion Evans of Somerville.

MYSTERY HIDES SOME

Dorothy ran away and returned. That isn't always the ending to the story. Sometimes the end of the story is never known.

Saddened, disillusioned, a troublesome conscience when she thinks of the heartbreak she caused her mother, Dorothy has returned to the bosom of her family. And her answer to the question above relative to the myth of high adventure is a definite "No!"

Her plain advice to the runaway girl's is:

"Don't do it!"

Dorothy tells her story. Some read worse, some better. But they all read along the same lines, Inspector William Ross of the Bureau of Missing Persons declares.

Parents who misunderstand, imaginary troubles, parents who are too strict. These are some of the reasons for the runaways.

ALL-NIGHT JOB AT 16

Dorothy stole out of the house the night of December 13. She took an over-night bag with two dresses and a pair of shoes.

She had $3 with her. She had a job. That was where the hitch came in. It was a night job. And her mother didn't like to see her 16-year-old out all hours of the night.

It didn't look right. It wasn't done. But Dorothy was ambitious—and it was a job. It was in an all-night restaurant. Dorothy sang.

There were arguments every night after work. Nagging . . . nagging, nagging.

So on December 13, after work in the wee hours of the morning, foot went to Park square. She had to tarry for hours to board the bus.

GIRL MUST DISTRUST

She got the 9 o'clock bus out of Boston.

"When the driver put his foot on the gas my heart sank," Dorothy said.

"I had been full of courage until then. I felt myself leaving everything behind. It was a lonely ride to New York. I wouldn't dare to speak to anybody. That's what comes of running away. As a girl you've got to distrust everybody. It doesn't put you in a very happy frame of mind."

Dorothy arrived in New York [illegible].

"I paced up and down the length of Broadway. I was starved," she related.

LONG HITCH HIKE

Followed a period of skipping meals. Then Dorothy found a job with a theatrical troupe. She went on the road with the show as a blues singer.

"But we were stranded in South Carolina," she said. "Another girl and I hitch-hiked to Florida. I walked in evening shoes because I wanted to save my street shoes for wear when I went looking for a job."

Came next a job as a curb-stone waitress. But when Dorothy fell and broke the contents of the tray she lost the job.

Finally a job with a name band. [illegible] grief came again when Dorothy fell and fractured her skull.

"I didn't mind missing the meals, or walking the miles, half as much as the home-sickness. Many a night I cried myself to sleep," she said.

MOTHER'S HEART BREAK

"I didn't dare to go home. I would drop a card and tell my mother I was well but I would give no return address.

"I couldn't return until I made good, I felt. I read the papers and saw they were searching for me.

"I sensed the heart-break of my mother. That was the worst of all.

"Finally there was my accident and I had to return home, a sick girl. My mother was delirious with happiness to see me again. I could see how she had aged.

"But the follow-up of the story is suspicion and questioning glances from friends.

"And my mother's fear even now that when I leave the house I'll never return. Never quite trusted! But I'll never go away again."

Forbidden to Sell Or Transfer Stock

Salem, July 27—Isaac Michelson of Lynn was served with a restraining order today following a bill of equity filed by Rebecca Wiseman of Revere, in which she seeks transference of stock held by Michelson to her name because he allegedly broke his promise to marry her.

Judge Wilford D. Gray issued the temporary restraining order to keep Michelson from transferring, encumbering or otherwise disposing of the shares of stock.

Police Rescue Man Trapped by Tide

Waving his shirt to attract attention, Harry Goodman of Castlegate road, Roxbury, was rescued today by Metropolitan District police from a rock in the water off Atlantic Hill, Nantasket, where he had been marooned while fishing.

Goodman became so intent while catching perch that he did not observe the rising tide until it was too late to walk ashore.

Air Pioneer Dies

New York, July 27 (AP)—John Luther Maddux, 49, president of Transcontinental Air Transport and a pioneer in the development of commercial aviation, is dead here today of a heart ailment.

East Boston P. O. Site to be Sold

East Boston was looking forward to a new postoffice building today after the Boston city council had voted to authorize Mayor Mansfield to sell the old police station at Meridian and Paris streets as a site for the federal government.

Sale of the station had been held up for almost a year by Councillor Henry Selvitella of East Boston, who insisted the Lawrence J. Flaherty post of the American Legion not be put out in the cold. The mayor explained that new quarters will be provided for the post.

Stone Wall Halts Runaway Horses

Two runaway horses employed by the city of Newton were back in their stalls today after frightening pedestrians and motorists in a mile bolt through Washington street, Newton, in which they scattered all in their path.

The horses, attached to a dump cart, bolted when a car backfired and threw their driver, Charles J. Fagan, into the street. They were finally halted by a stone wall.

SOLOIST Defies Storm GODS

PLAYS $3000 VIOLIN IN RAIN

Boston music lovers today were discussing the most unusual event in the history of the Esplanade concerts — a violinist standing in the midst of a torrential downpour, threatened with the destruction of his prize instrument, to render the composition he loved.

As more than [illegible] persons started to flee the sudden rainfall they were checked by the strange sight of Gaston Elcus, concertmaster, drawing his bow back and forth across his $3000 [illegible] violin while the beautiful strains of Gounod's "Ave Maria" rose between accompanying thunder claps.

One by one the audience drifted back and stood in front of the shell, where Elcus played his solo unmindful of the rain and lightning.

The concert had been shortened because of the threatening weather and Elcus stood up to play his solo as a dark cloud raced ominously across the sky.

THRONG SPELLBOUND

He had played but a few bars when the downpour began. During a moment of pause he whipped out a handkerchief from his pocket and placed it over his violin. As the guests began a stampede for shelter they saw Elcus silhouetted against the shell, and stopped.

The audience quieted and the rain and thunder formed a turbulent background as the high clear notes of the violin floated into the open air, holding the throng spellbound.

A fellow musician stood by Elcus and gradually tightened the strings of the instrument as the rain softened the gut.

FINISHES SOLO

There was a halt in the score and while the orchestra took up the composition Elcus ran to the portable house nearby and rubbed his precious violin dry with a chamois cloth.

He was back on the shell in two minutes to resume his solo and played to the end of the number. The crowd gave a hearty round of applause and dashed off to escape the rain.

Accident Reunites Auto Victim and Sister

Woman's intuition was today credited for the reunion of Miss Ellen Henderson of New York city with her brother, Donald Henderson, Hanover street, Boston, who is gravely ill in Weymouth Hospital, victim of an automobile accident a week ago Sunday.

Miss Henderson, a nurse, had a hunch when she read in a New York newspaper that a man partially identified as Donald Henderson had been badly injured in the accident. She obeyed the impulse and immediately sped to Weymouth and identified the victim as her brother.

Miss Henderson explained that she had not seen her brother for several months. Efforts to locate their father, John Henderson, who lives in Guilford, Me., were being made today by Miss Henderson.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Marjorie McBride

A Lady Bountiful who won't be photographed or interviewed or talk about her benevolence is Wenham's summer resident Number One, although plenty of people along the North Shore don't know her at all. She is Miss Helen Clay Frick, who yesterday was revealed as occupying the stables on her big estate, while her huge mansion is kept tightly closed and sealed.

At her "House of the Iron Rails" estate she entertains hundreds of working girls every summer. Largely, they are office, factory, store and mill girls from Boston, Lowell, Lawrence, Lynn and New Bedford. You'd have to be a mighty shrewd observer to find out the number of those girls. You'd have to be a mighty good Pinkerton to discover their names. Miss Frick is against such publicity. She feels that it would spoil the spirit of her undertaking.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

As to financial arrangements, they are strictly between Miss Frick and those who accept her hospitality. Probably they are more than generous on her part. She doesn't have to worry much. She inherited a part of the fortune of her father, the late Henry Clay Frick, Carnegie partner, and Cholly Knickerbocker, Manhattan columnist, has termed her the richest bachelor girl in America.

• • •

She Likes Reporters, But Interviews Are Out

It's all been going on for upward of twenty years, and Miss Frick is as determined to protect the identities of her girl guests as she was when she began. She is cordiality itself to reporters . . . but interviews are out! Philanthropy is more than a hobby with Miss Frick. It is a lifework. Quite deliberately, she has forfeited millions of dollars, and she has never shown the slightest interest in society.

Recreational facilities at the estate in Wenham are far beyond the pocketbook of the ordinary working girl. Miss Frick joins the sports and games, unobtrusively driving over from her summer home, "Eagle Rock," in Pride's Crossing, almost daily. She keeps in touch with her girls after they leave. This year, there are many girls there whose mothers went to the "House of the Iron Rails" when they were young.

From Coiffures to Boats Just a Step for Him

It WOULD be a Boston hairdresser who would take up making and sailing sailboats as a hobby. He is Henry F. DeMoucell of Winthrop, who has been arranging coiffures at the Hotel Statler beauty salon for eight years.

Practically every board in DeMoucell's Ho-Maid was laid by him, assisted by George R. French, a Winthrop friend. They take turns skippering her in the Hustler Design Class races being run off by the Winthrop Yacht Club.

Hairdresser De Moucell doesn't think his hobby a strange one for a man of his calling, but agrees it is a strenuous one. While toiling with hammer, chisel and saw, he lost 14 pounds!

William Reid, Winthrop boat builder, who helped the two with advice, is quite proud of them, and says the Ho-Maid is the first boat built and actually launched by an amateur in these parts.

'Alligators Infesting' Waters of Bay State

Girl About Town would be the last one in the world to promote a nature scare, but live alligators have been found in Massachusetts waters! Two of them, to be exact.

They were discovered in small brooks near Springfield, and the police refused to get excited, saying they must have been pets thrown out by persons who forgot they might possibly live and grow and bite the leg off somebody. The ex-owner hasn't come forward to claim them yet.

The stylists who lie awake nights thinking up new shades for women's stockings have really got something for this fall. You'll be seeing "hot dog" stockings and "mustard" stockings, for instance. Both are variations of the good old copper color.

Also the girls will be wearing peanut-colored stockings, and hose known to the trade as "tanbark" and "arena" and "Mardi Gras." A salesman at Jordan Marsh says the last named shade is a sort of apricot tint.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To American Youth in Aviation

Wing Commander's Note: This is the nineteenth in a series of articles written especially for the Junior Birdmen of America by the headquarters staff of the United States Army Air Corps. The series deals with the day-by-day progress of a cadet in Uncle Sam's air corps and relates, in detail, his training at the Randolph Field Training Center in San Antonio, Texas.

ARTICLE 19

"The Air Corps Advanced Flying School, Kelly Field"

At 10 o'clock on the first day of March all the cadets who had just completed the basic stage of instruction at the air corps primary flying school, each in his own or his friend's automobile, formed in column in front of the academic building.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

(Membership open to all boys and girls 10 to 21)

I wish to join the Junior Birdmen of America. I enclose a dime (well wrapped) for my gold wings and other membership materials

Print name ——————

City —————— State ——————

My Age Is Now —————— (Give Your CORRECT Age)

Mail to Junior Birdmen, Boston American Wing, 100 Summer St. Boston, Mass.

At that hour the triumphant procession started for Kelly Field the air corps advanced flying field—the goal toward which they had been working during their eight months at Randolph Field.

Before leaving the post, amidst [illegible] and cheers from the permanent [illegible] they made one complete circuit of the [illegible] of the post and then moved down the road to the main gate [illegible] Kelly Field. [illegible]

[illegible] Kelly Field [illegible] practice [illegible] was [illegible] instead of the beautiful [illegible] buildings of which Randolph [illegible] constructed [illegible] that the post was composed of the old wartime buildings [illegible] cadets at the advanced [illegible] school have [illegible] since 1917.

At practically all other air corps stations the old wartime buildings have been replaced by the most convenient and efficient arrangement of modern concrete barracks [illegible] which it has been possible to devise.

Instead of being assigned two men to a room as is done in the modern cadet barracks at Randolph Field some 12 cadets were assigned to each large squad room of the old wooden barracks. The name of Kelly Field, however, was more effective in stimulating their enthusiasm than mere buildings could possibly be.

There are many associations connected with these old buildings at Kelly Field such as modern structures can acquire only after the lapse of years. The cadets thought of the famous wartime fliers who had been trained at Kelly Field and of those who had since been there.

In this barracks Colonel Lindbergh had his little iron bed when he was a cadet. The entire place is closely associated with many other famous fliers and as each dropped off to sleep that night he felt that he too would in some way add glory to the name of Kelly Field.

In spite of the joy which the cadets felt in their own success in reaching the advanced flying school, there was a certain undercurrent of sadness, because many good friends—fine upstanding examples of what the young American should be—were no longer with the class. Most of these had been eliminated due to lack of inherent flying ability, which appears to be something which one has or does not have and the fact that the men were eliminated does not reflect in any way upon his efficiency in other [illegible].

In addition to [illegible] the four boys [illegible] in the [illegible] article found themselves in the second squad room of the old wooden barracks.

Their assignment to sections and the first few days at Kelly Field will be described in the next article.

Names of the winners in the Junior Birdmen membership contest which closed Sunday midnight will be announced in this column tomorrow. [illegible] sets of Birdmen handbooks and [illegible] emblems will be [illegible] in addition to the main [illegible].

The latter consist of the [illegible] a three weeks cruise through the Panama Canal and transcontinental flights for [illegible] wing winners to Hollywood and New York.

VIRGINIA MARR

Virginia Marr, 10, of 111 Squantum st., Milton, is one of the enterprising Junior Birdwomen, who will win a prize in the membership contest, full results of which will be announced tomorrow.

Radioland Reflections

LIONEL STANDER, that "Johnny-One-Note" of the talkies, debates with Dean Benny Goodman on the Swing School program tonight at 9:30 p. m. (WEEI).

Stander is the latest of anti-swingites. Goodman is the band leader who puts the swing to rhythm. Oration plus musical argument hold forth.

SURE SUGGESTIONS

Does your husband forget appointments with you? If the answer is Yes, leave the dishes this evening at 8:00 p. m. (WBZ) and hear Alice Lowe Miller's suggestions. If you're the husband who forgets, Sedley Brown will show you men who have been cured without losing a tooth.

Mischa Levitzki and Wynn Murray fly free of the concert and musical comedy stage tonight at 9:00 p. m. (WBZ) to visit with Ben Bernie and the lads.

Levitzki is one of America's finest pianists. Miss Murray has been currently starred in the Broadway hit "Babes in Arms."

There's tropic aplenty for these July days this evening at 10 p. m. (WBZ) with Edward Tomlinson, director of "The Other Americas" program.

SELDOM-KNOWN SECRETS

Johnny Green, conductor of the hour-long Dance Time tonight at 9:30 p. m. (WNAC), tells some secrets that only orchestra leaders know:

That the guitarist can set the rhythm for an entire orchestra. The musicians don't hear him, but they check on the swing of his hand as he plucks out the measures.

That [illegible]

That the [illegible]

That [illegible] programs [illegible] from [illegible] when [illegible].

That swing [illegible] several years ago have become [illegible] part of the musician's vocabulary that directions must now be given in these terms to be understood.

That the best [illegible] in the world is leading a band.

SUPERIOR SELECTIONS

"Jack and Loretta" are tired of traveling. They've decided to hie themselves home as quick as a [illegible] this afternoon at 2:15 p. m. (WEEI). Loretta hasn't lost her enthusiasm for foreign [illegible] though. With Jack [illegible] accompaniment she will play some [illegible] piano versions of tunes popular the world over.

The Four Stars, [illegible] quartet, are guests of Mark Warnow's "Blue Velvet Music" broadcast tonight at 10:30 p. m. (WEEI). They will appear with the orchestra and Horace Shaw, soprano star of this series.

MARTIN Twins Great GOLFERS

BEST PROSPECTS IN N. E.

By BILL GRIMES

Since they broke into competitive golf in 1930, the Martin twins, of Sandy Burr, have been the most perplexing problem in local golfdom

They are just about due to crash through to national fame. Therefore, they should not, nor cannot, be passed off lightly.

It required three or four years for golf galleries to distinguish them.

Although I've followed them closely since they played together in their first caddy championship at Woodland I still have trouble telling Leo from Eddie unless I call to mind that the latter is the huskier.

[illegible]

WHICH IS BETTER?

[illegible]

From my observations I'd say [illegible]

They are, in all probability, the most promising golfers in New England.

If they had the wherewithal to make a trip around the winter circuit with the topnotch professionals, they would acquire enough experience to become serious threats in any national amateur championship.

They are powerful youngsters, who'll hit that ball as well and as far as the average big time professional.

They are born golfers and for the limited time they are able to devote to perfecting their games, have accomplished wonders on the links.

Only yesterday they both qualified at the Blue Hill Country Club under adverse conditions for the national amateur championship. Eddie was the medalist with 151 and Leo finished fourth with 154.

Two weeks ago they went to the quarter-finals in the state amateur championship at Winchester and a week later they won the Jaques Cup at The Country Club by defeating Johnny Fischer, United States amateur titleholder and Rod Brown, Jr., in the finals.

Early in June, Eddie succeeded [illegible] as the holder of the Country Club Cup.

WON CADDY TITLE

When Eddie began his competitive golf career he was paired with an older brother, Randolph. He [illegible] at The Country Club during the 1929 state caddy championship and posted 92—90—182.

The following year at Woodland the Martin twins made their debut. Eddie came through with rounds of 79 and 83 for a 162, nipping Leo by one stroke.

At The Country Club in 1931 Leo scored his first win over Edward in a championship with a 170 for the state caddy crown against his brother's 174.

Then Leo won the caddy championship at Commonwealth with [illegible]-76—146 to Edward's 73—[illegible]—150.

The next year Leo qualified in the state junior championship at Wollaston, but after he had beaten John Dukelow, Meadow Brook in the first round, he lost to Fred Baker, Thorny Lea.

Both made the grade in the juniors at Blue Hill in 1933. Leo preventing Telford Frazier Tedesco with a first round match by taking four putts of the 18th green. Eddie lost in the quarter finals to Herb Lundquist, Green Hill.

GOING TO VERMONT

Leo was also the first of the twins to crash through a state amateur championship qualifying round, making the grade at The Country Club in 1934 only to be eliminated in the first round by Francis "Ancy" Doyle, Wachusett.

During the past two and a half seasons, the Martin twins have been forging to the front with such marked consistency that they are now rated as "tops" in New England.

Two years ago they qualified in Massachusetts and New England amateur championships and, although Eddie was beaten in the first round Leo went through "Bunny" Wilson, Joe Lynch, Art Rogers and Milan Heath to reach the semifinals, where he was beaten in an extra match by Eddie Stimpson, the ultimate champion.

In the "New Englands" Eddie was a quarter finalist but Leo lost a 19-hole second round match to Ned Peterson.

Last year, Leo posted a 311 at Oak Hill in the Mass. open, and Eddie was 312, and again they both made the grade in the amateur.

Eddie was a first round victim for the second time but Leo raced right through to the finals, only to be beaten by Clark Hodder in a 13-hole match.

The Martins are on their way to Manchester, Vt., for the 12th annual New England championship, and it's going to take the best in the field to keep one of them from returning with the title.

McCoy's Manager Charges "Stall" By McCarthy

Rip Valenti, matchmaker of the [illegible]

[illegible]

heavyweight title from M[illegible]

"The cheek-bone cut McCarthy received last Tuesday was healed Sunday," said Brennan.

"I don't blame the Goodwin A. C. for refusing to take any risks of the cut being re-opened and the fight stopped or of McCarthy entering the fight in anything but top condition, but Jack could have gone through on schedule.

"The cut was all painted over with iodine to make it look twice as bad as it really was. The delay hurts McCoy and helps McCarthy, and I'm burned up about it."

Valenti laughed off the remarks with a few short words.

"I had a specialist look at the cut," said Rip. "His answer was enough for me. We can't take chances of hurting boxing these days.

If the fight was stopped early or if McCarthy wasn't in shape to give his best, it would simply drive customers away from future shows."

Bees to Conduct 'School' Here

John Quinn, secretary of the Boston Bees, announced today the club would conduct a baseball "school" August 3-7 at the Hive.

"We are prepared to give as many boys, aged 17 and over, a tryout as may care to come," said Quinn, "but they must understand the Bees are not guaranteeing anything.

"The boys must pay their own expenses and trust to the judgment of the coaches to their respective prospects."

She's Full of Hot Air

Engaged in a trial spin off Newport, R. I., Harold S. Vanderbilt's Ranger, America's Cup defender, is photographed for the first time with her huge spinnaker at work. This spinnaker, the largest in the world, is made of 18,000 square feet of canvas. Ranger and T. O. M. Sopwith's British challenger, Endeavour II, start competition for the cup Saturday off Newport.

Bees Going Better Than 1914 Team

Cincinnati, O., July 27—For fear of jinxing the Bees, nobody in Boston has yet compared them to the Braves of glorious 1914 memory.

[illegible]

of 23 years ago.

BOTH IN CELLAR JUNE 26

Dusty files reveal, for one thing, that these Bees have played better ball since the start of their streak which started right here when they took a doubleheader from the Reds on June 27, than did George Stallings' history-makers over the same stretch of campaign.

Both clubs were in the basement on June 26. The '14 outfit had 23 victories and 32 defeats. This club had 21 wins and 36 defeats.

During the next 30 games, though, yesteryear's heroes took only 17 decisions, which means that these present Beaneaters have been five games better over that stretch.

The percentage so far as the club with its 43 wins and 44 losses compared to [illegible] wins and [illegible] losses by the 1914 club on July [illegible]

And as far as nearness to the roof is concerned, believe it or not, the 1914 club was and the 1937 club is exactly 12 games back—on this date.

EIGHTH STRAIGHT TODAY

So, the Cincinnati scribes conclude, logically enough, that the current Bees have as bright a chance of gaining immortal baseball fame as did the '14 Braves at this stage of the race.

But if the McKechniemen think so they're not saying anything about it.

Superstitious like all ball players, they hate to hear talk of miracle drives or pennants.

At the same time they insist these comparisons won't prevent them hanging up their eighth straight win by taking today's opener from the Reds or from gaining the edge in the engagement.

"Deacon Danny" MacFayden, an ex-Red, will go to the Boston box today.

The bespectacled curve-ball artist, the club's ace last year when he turned in 17 triumphs, appeared all washed up when the Bees last invaded Cincinnati.

He had lost something like a dozen games and had won only four.

DANNY GREAT AGAIN

But he suddenly found himself in that Sunday doubleheader that started the visitors off on their dizzy surge. He toyed with the Dressen dolls in the nightcap on

[illegible]

The general public doesn't think the Bees can keep it up.

Hornsby Playing With Semi-Pros

Denver, July 27 (AP)—Rogers Hornsby, ousted pilot of the St. Louis Browns, indicated today he [illegible] be looking for a new managing job in the major leagues.

The Rajah came here for the [illegible] Post's annual semi-pro baseball tournament opening Thursday.

"I am going back to Chicago to work on a radio program after this tournament," Hornsby said.

"After that I will be receptive to any and all offers to manage a major league team."

"I put over a pretty good bet in a limit horse (which pays over $32 on a two dollar ticket) and the bookies advertised it to lure in the suckers or something," the Rajah grinned.

"Barnes heard about it.

"He probably assumed this Hornsby guy was responsible for a poor ball club because he happened to bet on the nags. But I'll tell you right now my betting never lost a game for the Browns."

Boston Once Ruled America's Cup Competition

(This is the third of a series on "This History of the America's Cup Races.")

By CAPTAIN CUTWATER

[illegible]

The [illegible] Puritan owned [illegible] General Paine and [illegible] that staved off [illegible]

Sir Richard Sutton, one of the most sporting of the challengers, brought over the cutter Genesta of the most modern type. Although in the opening race the Puritan poked her bowsprit through his mainsail and the race committee offered to award him the contest on a foul, he refused.

Lack of breeze caused several postponements, but they finally got a race, a one-sided win for Puritan.

General Paine built the next defender at his own expense. Designed by Burgess in the most modern fashion, the 100-foot long Mayflower was the biggest sloop [illegible]

Opposed to her in the 1886 series was the steel sloop Galatea, owned by Lieutenant William Henn. She was [illegible] because [illegible] The two races [illegible] proved a procession for Mayflower.

There was some disagreement about the dimensions of the cup racers the following year and the Scotch challenger Thistle was built under lock and key. General Paine had the Volunteer built of steel from Burgess designs.

The graceful Thistle cleaned up in her home waters before crossing the Atlantic, but Volunteer was even better, losing only a single race all summer.

Included were her two victories over [illegible] in the cup series.

While Boston was defending the cup, despite some minor disagreement and a great deal of unnecessary secrecy about the boats, it was on the whole an era of good feeling. But in 1895 came the notorious Dunraven series, which stirred up more bitterness than in the entire previous 40 years and in which the challenger and defending club seemingly vied with one another to see which could show the meaner spirit.

(The next article in this interesting series will appear in tomorrow's Boston Evening American)

18 By One Run

St. Louis, July 27 (AP)—For losing ball games by close margins, the St. Louis Browns probably have established a record this season. The seventh place American League team has lost 18 contests of the 82 played by one run.

Marcum Faces Bottomley Outfit

By JOE CASHMAN

The St. Louis Browns, who've changed executives and managers almost as often as they've won ball games in recent years, open the third Western invasion of the Fens this afternoon.

Since last here, as you [illegible] should know, the Mound City entry has shifted strategy boards.

[illegible] on the horses, which is probably correct. At least, the Rajah admits [illegible]

AUSTEN LAKE

Enigmatic Invalid
Kicking Sequel;
Al's Highwaymen

AUSTEN LAKE

BILL URBANSKI IS A MEDICAL ENIGMA. The invalided Bees' infielder who has been boarding at St. Elizabeth's surgical ward with a pain in his foot, has baffled curative science. Bill insists that he has a misery in his instep. The surgeons insist that as far as the naked eye and X-ray can see the puppy is perfectly normal, with every little metatarsal bone, thew and sinew in apple pie order. The doctors cannot understand how so healthy a foot can have so big an ache.

But Bill says that no man is better qualified to decide whether he feels a pain in his foot than a man with a pain in his foot. So, for the last four months he has drawn a sizable salary as a hors de combat Bee, plus medical expenses and ward rental.

This is a pathetic case. When Bill was injured on April 3 while sliding into second base at St. Petersburg, Fla., the ailment was diagnosed as a twisted ankle. It was not considered an extraordinary affliction and after a few day's rest the ankle seemed to heal. But several weeks later the Bees sold Bill to Jersey City, where he faced a drastic wage cut. At that moment, the pain in his foot became excruciating. He could sit down, and walk a little without any searing agonies, but he couldn't run a step.

So Jersey City rejected him as damaged goods and shipped him back to Boston, where, in accordance with baseball law, he reverted immediately to his former salary scale. For four months Bill has limped and writhed, with the agonizing twinges never so great as when some minor league manager telephones the Bees to enquire whether he is fit for action at reduced pay.

It looks as though this is a chronic case which won't cure until after the close of the National League season.

Sequel to a Kick in the Face

BOSTON'S WRESTLING ADDICTS were aghast on the evening of July 20 when George Dazzler Clark, the Highland troglodyte, stepped through the ring ropes before the O'Mahony-Casey struggle, and kicked Mr. Yvon Robert, the local wrestling champion, squarely in the features. It seemed an indelicate thing to do, considering that Clark was fully clothed and in his street boots and merely acting as a bucket-man in a preliminary match. And Mr. Robert, who had only lately mended his busted leg, was sitting quietly in the press rows as a guest of the management.

What was especially mystifying was why Clark, usually well behaved, should develop such an overwhelming hate for a man he had never seen until that evening. For Robert was on his first visit to Boston since fracturnig his prop a year ago, at which time Clark had not yet been imported from Scotland. Maybe the Dazzler acquired his hate by looking at Robert's picture on the walls of the Bowser wrestling academy on Chauncy street.

Anyway, it created a commotion at the time, with the patrons saying "Tsk-tsk" and deploring Clark's uncouthness. But presently Mr. Robert snuffled up what seemed to be a nose bleed and the incident was forgotten. You don't suppose that the kick in the features has any connection with the forthcoming announcement that Clark and Robert will form the next gala attraction at Fenway on Aug. 17? Do you?

THE EX-RED SOX CLOWN, AL SCHACHT, tells a stirring story about being held up by a couple of share-the-wealthers in the lonely reaches of Louisiana. In a letter to his erudite chum, Moe Berg, Al relates how he was barnstorming his way from Tulsa, Okla., for a comic engagement at Lake Charles, La., bowling along in his salad-green coupe.

A couple of shabby hitch-hikers thumbed him on a wilderness stretch in the turpentine woods and Al, always gregarious, stopped to let them on board. Al asked them if they liked baseball, and the younger man, a lanky youth in stained corduroys said "Yes." So Al told them who he was and how he was wowing 'em in the various haystack ball towns.

Presently Al felt something hard, cold and round placed against his neck and the shabby duo suggested in their soft, southern drawls that he turn down a foresaken cowpath.

"Stick up, huh?" asked Al, always quick to grasp the point. "Yeh," said the elder, whom Al says wore a grizzled beard and a pair of blue dungarees held up by a bit of clothes line.

So Al, thinking to soften their hearts, told what a harmless guy he was and how charitable he was with distressed people. And the elder said, "Sorry, Al, but yuh-all kin git mo' money an' we-uns cayent. We ain't et fo' fo' days." And he fished out Al's wallet, containing $81.

Seeing protests were futile and wishing to keep things friendly, Al inquired, "How's business?"

"This heahs ouah fus' job," said the elder quietly, putting the purse in his jeans.

"Listen," said Al, always ready with an idea, "I have 500 miles to make and no money to buy gas. How about five bucks?"

The elder looked dubious, but the younger said, "Go ahaid. Give 'im the five." So the older man fished out $5 from the wallet and handed it over with the terse command, "Nooow, git goin'."

Al turned his coupe around in the narrow lane and waved farewell, saying over his shoulder, "If you guys should get rich, mail my money back. You'll find my business card in the wallet."

Horse Scholar, Exit, Grid Promoters

WESTON ADAMS HAS SUFFERED SCANDALOUS luck in his horse picks at Suffolk Downs. Though one of his daddy's best pari-mutuel customers, the steeds haven't run to Weston's form scholarship. The other morning the Adams butler, a student of horse form too, suggested while serving the breakfast grapefruit, "Grandpa's Boy looks likely, sir." Weston played the horse and won at 8 to 1. A few days later, at the butler's behest, he was on Cynwyd at $39.40 to $2. Since then the butler is his official form technician.

Paul Bowser's contract to stage weekly matches in the Boston Garden during the winter months ended last spring. Report is, instead of going back to the expensive auditorium in the face of dwindling wrestling receipts, Paul may seek an arrangement at the Arena, failing which he may go to Mechanics Hall . . .

Smart pair of opportunists are Bill McCarthy and his brother, New Yorkers who make a fat living by inducing football colleges to play in major league ball parks and undertaking complete promotion from hiring police and ticket men, paying the park rental and grooming of the grounds. They have an operating arrangement at Fenway Park with Boston College and B. U.; at Yankee Stadium with Manhattan and Fordham in the Polo Grounds, and in Philadelphia with Villanova at Shibe Park. Their profit comes out of the gate percentages. This autumn B. C. will play four games at Fenway, B. U., Temple, Kentucky and Holy Cross. B. U. will play four, Lehigh, Slippery Rock, Western Reserve and Villanova.

GUIBORD IN HEARST SEMIFINAL

BOSTON Star Ousts NOGRADY

SYLVIA HATCH ALSO WINS

Forest Hills, N. Y., July 27—Paul Guibord of the New England tennis entourage, encounters Bill Jacobs of Baltimore in the semi-final round of the Hearst Grand National Eastern playoffs at the Seminole Club this afternoon.

The winsome feminine star accounted for Mary Teegarden of Albany in straight sets, 6—3, 7—5 in her first round match.

Edward Fuller of Salem, and Guibord, New England Hearst doubles champions meet John Hanna and Henry Yutzey of Rochester, N. Y., in a first round match late this afternoon.

BOIL SLOWS GUIBORD

Just how Guibord would fare against Bill Jacobs in today's play was a highly controversial matter among those who watched his gallant five set victory over John Nogrady.

Nogrady had advanced to the Eastern playoffs without so much as the loss of a single set, and it was anticipated by the home crowd that Guibrod would fall before him in the customary fashion.

The former Dartmouth tennis and hockey star has been severely handicapped by a boil on his right side, and this no doubt accounted for his delay in taking Nogrady into camp.

In the last two sets, however, the ex-collegian exhibited spasmodically the brand of tennis which two years ago brought him the number one ranking in New England.

GUIBORD FAVORITE

Should his boil give him no more trouble, Guibord is a great deal better than even money to capture three straight sets from the steady, dogged playing Bill Jacobs this afternoon.

That Miss Hatch could do the same against either Elinor Cole of Rochester or Anne Harrison of Baltimore, no one would say.

The pretty lass played well enough in her first match, but the opposition offered her was of a decidedly lower calibre than it will be today.

Davis Elated Over Cup Victory

New York, July 7 (AP)—Dwight F. Davis, donor of the Davis Cup, was elated when news reached him that United States had finally regained possession of the emblem of international team tennis supremacy.

"It's time the trophy came back home," he said happily. "I like to see it rotate from country to country, but ten years is a trifle too long for it to stay away from this country.

"Every one of our players, not only Don Budge, should be warmly congratulated. All of them deserve a big hand. I think now we can keep it a few years, after which I sincerely hope the trophy starts wandering again. It's good for the game of tennis to have all the nations win it some time or other."

Mr. Davis immediately cabled his congratulations to the players abroad.

Holcombe Ward, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, was jubilant, though he said he figured the United States was going to win it all along.

"The victory will be a great boon for tennis is this country and, naturally, we all are very happy," he said. I think we can hang on to the cup for severoal years, now that we've got possession.'

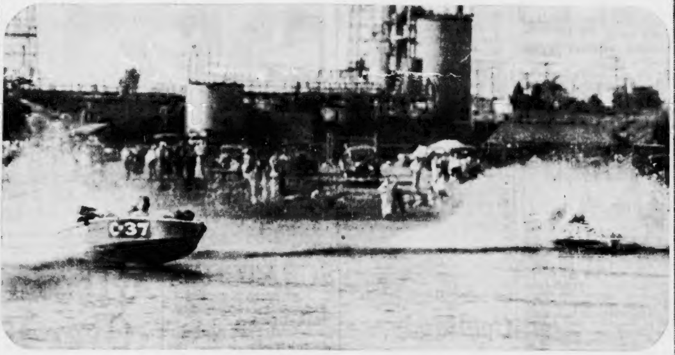
THREE CORNERS OF SPORT WORLD



The moment that thrills was caught by cameraman in the Hearst regatta at Long Beach, Cal., as two "daredevil" motor boat drivers rounded the marker. On the right is shown John Kovacovich's Muscat Kid, going into a cloud of fine spray as his rival, J. C. Stuart, pushes his Red Chief into the lead and victory.

Strange lands and strange faces hold no fears for the Polish women's tennis champion, Miss Jadwiga Jedrzejowska. Jadwiga is here in quest of the American title. Tennis experts rate her as the greatest woman tennis player in the world today. She holds victories over our champion, Alice Marble, and Helen Jacobs.

BUDGE, Parker WIN

tall, left-handed Hare an astonishing drubbing. Budge's final match with Austin became merely an exhibition.

STILL IN FORM

But despite the fact that the pressure was off, the Oakland, Calif., ace was in no mood to spoil his unmarred record. Stroke experimenting cost him the second set, but thereafter he kept Austin under full control.

Incidentally, that second set was only the fourth Budge has dropped all year. He lost one to Parker in the semi-finals of the All England championships; and dropped the first two in his spectacular five-set match with Baron Gottfried von Cramm in the inter-zone finals.

The huge silver trophy, about the size of a cart-wheel, was brought out on the center court and placed on a table draped in the Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack.

Her Highness, the Princess Helena Victoria, came out and stood beside the trophy. As the crowd rose the princess lifted the cup and handed it to Walter L. Pate, captain of the American team, and then shook hands with members of both teams.

FLAWLESS TENNIS

Effective on his service, uncannily accurate with all his shots, the 21-year-old Milwaukee star ran Hare, a newcomer to Davis Cup tennis, ragged, with well-placed lobs whenever the big British southpaw sought to take the net.

Parker's victory not only gave the United States the trophy for the first time since France won it at Germantown, Pa., in 1927, but likewise vindicated his selection by Captain Walter L. Pate as a member of the challenge round team, replacing Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta.

RESULT FORECAST

The team result had been forecast well in advance, for Great Britain, weakened by the loss of Fred Perry, now a professional, and of George Patrick Hughes, ace doubles artist, through illness, obviously was no match for the American team.

The United States squad, incidentally, was perhaps the youngest that ever competed in the challenge round. Budge, at 22, is the "veteran" of the team. Parker and Gene Mako of Los Angeles are each 21.

When Parker, leading two sets to none and 5-2 in the third, finally won the eighth and final game on three successive errors by Hare, he smiled for the first time during the day. Then he walked jubilantly off the court, filled a glass with water and poured it down his back.

"You fellows were just too great for us," he said.

Budge patted his arm as he replied:

"You're kind of great yourself, Bunny."

CABLES OLD COACH

The moment he could get his clothes on, Parker rushed out of the stadium to cable news of his victory to Mercer Beasley, his coach for years. It cost him plenty, but he insisted it was worth it.

"I might never get another chance," he explained.

The only thing he was willing to say about the match itself was that Hare "didn't play very well."

Grant, dropped from the team at his own request, refused to concede he could have beaten Hare the way the lefthander floundered around today.

"Don't under-estimate the way Frankie played," the tiny Atlantan said. "Those angled shots and perfect lobs of his when Hare was at the net broke up Hare's game completely.

"Anyway, I'm glad Frankie had a chance to win the cup. Boy, he came through."

Appealing Runs Again Saturday | Rajah May Get Cleveland Job

By JACK CONWAY

THE HORSE'S NAME is Appealing and that is how he looked to 10,000 race goers at Suffolk Downs who saw him shatter a track record to tiny bits when he covered the six furlongs distance in 1:09 3-5. That is the fastest time made for this distance in the United States this year.

It was a magnificent sight to watch Appealing break on top, move along the back stretch like a bolt of lightning, maintain his dizzy pace on the turn and come roaring down the stretch. The crowd sensed the fact a new record had been established and cheered the performance of Appealing even before the time was posted.

MR. BOSTON

The veteran Tommy Luther was up on Appealing and he gave the speedy thoroughbred a splendid ride. If Appealing had been pressed, he would probably have equalled Clang's record for the distance which is two-fifths of a second faster.

After taking up slightly after passing the finish, Appealing went on to run the full mile under special permission from the stewards. Trainer H. C. Wolfe of the Motor City Stable, Inc., has Appealing entered in the mile stake race on Saturday. Appealing will have as competition Clingendaal, Rough Time, Rudie Farnsworth and other star performers.

Wolfe believes Appealing will run one of the greatest mile races of the year. The brilliant performance of Appealing is certain to attract more than usual interest to Saturday's race.

Jimmy Fox Batting For .340

JOE CASHMAN, baseball editor of this newspaper, is back from a Western trip with the Red Sox very much steamed up over the latest batting surge of Jimmy Foxx.

"Foxx batted for .340 during the 20 road games of the Sox," said Cashman. "He got eight home runs, and a triple which was a longer hit ball than any of his home runs. The triple went 440 feet through the air before it landed, and was made in the Sunday game in Cleveland.

"Foxx has been the real spark plug of the Sox this year. Even when he wasn't hitting early in the season, he improved his game in the field. This was very unusual as ball players seldom improve either their batting or fielding average when they are in a slump in one of these departments.

"It is a peculiar thing about .300 hitters. They may have their bad streaks, but they always bob up with enough hits to keep them in the .300 class before the season is over.

"Joe Cronin played fine baseball while on the road. He isn't permitting himself to worry about matters of club management this year. He is playing his best game every day, and should continue to do so for the remainder of the season."

I asked Joe what the latest "dope" was on Rogers Hornsby.

"Hornsby may get the job as manager of the Cleveland Indians for next year," replied Joe. "Rogers is a good manager. Some of the ball players think he is a bit strict as he insists they eat at regular hours, bans card playing, forbids cigarette smoking in the clubhouse, and insists they think baseball every minute they are awake.

"The modern ball player has softened up, and wants a manager to coddle him. Hornsby never would do this."

"The St. Louis management," replied Joe, "told Hornsby he couldn't play the races and also manage their club. Hornsby doesn't go to the movies, read or go in for any social life. His hobby is trying to figure out the horses. It is possible that Rogers did make a few parlays this season, and this got somebody in the business office of the Browns upset."

McKechnie and the Bees

CASHMAN was one of the few baseball writers who saw any hope for the Bees during the early days of the pennant fight, and he is pleased to see the club winning.

"Give the credit to Bill McKechnie," said Joe. "He calls almost every pitch made by a Bees flinger.

"McKechnie knows the weakness of every batter in the league. If he has a pitcher with control, he can coach him what to do to stop the opposition. The Bees' pitchers have had excellent control this season, and have carried out the orders that have been flashed to them from the bench by McKechnie.

"Bill also has another great asset. He doesn't get discouraged even in the face of defeat, and keeps trying even when his club is in the midst of a losing streak.

"The Bees open with the Reds today, and I understand that for the week previous to going on the road McKechnie was getting copies of the late sports editions of the Cincinnati newspapers which contained the play-by-play stories of the games. He was anxious to find out which Reds' batters were hot and to where they were hitting. You can figure Bill will have his signals set to halt these batters in the series with the Bees."

Yacht Rubaiyat Likely Winner

Mackinac Island, Mich., July 27 (AP)—The Rubaiyat, Chicago entry, was first to finish the 30th annual Chicago-to-Macinac sailing race today, reaching here at 5:13 a. m. (E.S.T.). It was the apparent winner of the race, which is judged on the corrected time basis governing handicaps.

The trim craft, owned by Nathaniel Rubinkam and skippered by Henry Rubinkam, crossed the finish line in clear and cool weather with not another competitor in sight.

MacAndrew Keeps Lead at Rangeley

Rangeley, Me., July 27 (AP) — Rain washed out the final round of the $900 Rangeley open golf tournament after several in the field of 52 had finished the outgoing nine holes.

Their scores were voided, and tourney officials said the final 18 holes of the 54-hole medal match would be played today.

BOSTON AND MAINE R. R.

GETS Springfield POST

DAD COACHED GYMNASTS IN '91

Springfield, July 27 (INS)—In the steps of his father who organized, coached and captained the first football team at Springfield College, Paul Stagg, youngest son of Amos Alonzo Stagg, now head coach at the college of the Pacific, has been named head football coach at Springfield College.

The appointment was announced today by Dr. Ernest M. Best, president of the college. He succeeds John L. Rothacker, who resigned last April after a 12-year term.

Since his graduation in 1932 from University of Chicago, where he played three years of varsity football under his father, Paul has been gridiron mentor at Moravian College, Bethlehem, Pa. He will greet the 1937 Maroon candidates September 1 for Fall practice.

Coolidge, Foley Help Peres Win

Ray Coolidge and Joe Foley gave the Pere Marquettes a tremendous lift last night in the Southie nine's bid for the fourth playoff spot in the west division of the Boston Park League.

The former hurled fine ball as the Peres beat the Mass. Knitting Mills, 7-5, for the second victory over the leading Silk Sox in as many nights, while Foley came through with a Frank Merriwell homer with the score knotted and one man aboard in the last frame.

The victory puts the K. of C. nine a point ahead of Wolf's, whose playoff aspirations were dealt a severe blow by Hank Garrity and the Hyde Park twi team at the Fens, 4-3.

Tonight the Peres go to Smith Pond in Hyde Park, with Gus Rook ready to take the firing line against Pheeny of the Parkians. A victory for the Southie nine will practically clinch the playoff berth for it, as Wolf's doesn't figure on paper to beat Jordans, with whom they are billed tomorrow at the Fens.

However, Peres and Wolf's are booked for a regular league game themselves on Friday at Met, and the bitter battle may even reach the last night of the 12-week campaign.

Dick Casey's club, trailing the Roslindale A. A. by a single digit has a chance to step up tonight, entertaining the Hennigans at Garvey field, while the Pfau nine is facing the sensational St. Augustines at the South Boston Stadium.

Roslindale Townies, very much in the battle for the runner-up spot in the east section, can tie the idle Jordans for that place tonight if they take the Civies into camp at Healy field.

Tomorrow night, the game originally billed between Caseys and Jordans at the Town field has been scratched. The retailers will play the Wolf club at the Fens instead.

Getting a slow start this season due to the rainy weather in June, the popular loop has came fast down the last stretch to effect a typical twilight league finish.

Cardinal Prince Pace King

Old Orchard Beach, Me., July 27 (AP)—Cardinal Prince was the king of grand circuit pacers here today as his stablemate Greyhound, was undisputed master of the trotters.

The Prince, owned by E. J. Baker, St. Charles, Ill., romped to a three-straight victory in the Old Orchard pace yesterday, guided by Sep Palin.

In the second heat, the bay stallion was clocked in two minutes flat, best pacing time so far in the "roaring grand's" two-week meet at the nation's only kite track.

Jane Azoff, owned by H. T. Fulton, Upper Stewiac, N. B., took second share of the $1000 purse, finishing 6-2-3. Little Pat, from H. D. Biery's Butler, Pa., stable, finished 2-4-5 for third money.

Hanover Mettle, L. W. Benham's Mineola, L. I., entry, paid backers $74.70 in winning the first heat of the 2:24 trot, and then went on to take the $600 race with a 1-1-2 ranking. His best time was 2:04¼.

Nely Direct, owned by W. B. Eckert, Reading, Pa., walked away with the 2:22 pace, and did one heat in 2:04½.

WOOD, JR., Breaks Another SPEED MARK

Elsinore, Cal., July 27 (US) — Topping their Hearst regatta victories of Sunday at Long Beach, two champions of the race meet established new world speed records for outboards at Lake Elsinore. They were:

Gar Wood, Jr., Algonac, Mich., driving M-77, racing-C runabout at 50.35 miles per hour.

J. C. Stuart, Monrovia, Cal., in Red Chief, racing-F runabout, 52.16 miles per hour.

Speed marks are for a mile straightaway. They will be submitted for approval by the National Outboard Association through the Southern California Outboard Association, which sponsored the trials through the sanction granted the fifth annual Hearst regatta.

Twelve champion Hearst regatta pilots took a crack at existing records for all classes of outboards, but only Wood and Stuart came through with new marks.

Lightning Destroys Horse at Saratoga

Saratoga, N. Y., July 27 (US) — The inaugural of Saratoga's 30-day race meeting was marred when lightning hit two barns, killing one horse and stunning many others.

Gino Vive, a two-year-old nonstarter, belonging to Willis Sharpe Kilmer, was the animal killed. The juvenile racer was valued at $2000.

Kilmer's stable was hit by the lightning during a torrential downpour which made Saratoga's picturesque grounds a sea of mud. Max Hirsch's barn was also struck and eight horses badly stunned by the shock.

"I've always heard that lightning, like a horse, has peculiar ways," said Hirsch.

"When the lightning struck I was having lunch in my kitchen close to the barn. I felt something strike my foot and guessed what it was. The next thing I knew the chef was lying flat on his back. He apparently had been struck by the same bolt that clipped me on the foot."

Gleeful Picked Over Hi Lo Jack

MATTHEW KEANEY

BEST BET—EASIEST WAY, IN SIXTH

Taunton, July 27—Hi Lo Jack, which on Saturday night indicated a return to the form it showed at the opening of the racing year when it won five in a row, will be put to a stern test tonight in the eighth number when it collides with some real dogs over the futurity disance.

It's my belief he is not yet ready to beat such a fine hound as Gleeful, breaking out of the inside box, and on that account I take the latter to beat the Jack dog here.

Easiest Way in the sixth looms up as the safest wagering hazard of the night. This one should score handily over this field, for in its last it was far and away the best dog and won with lots to spare.

FIRST RACE—FUTURITY
RUNYON'S TAVERN, JOE D. ROCK, THE HOG

P.P.	Dog	Owner	Wt.	Odds
7	Runyon's Tavern,	O. Wohlauf	63	3-1
8	Joe D. Rock,	J. Fortier	58	9-2
3	The Hog,	K. Stephenson	53	5-1
1	King Bolt,	H. Spencer	55½	5-1
2	Rail Can,	F. Spencer	56	5-1
5	Genial Officer,	M. Sparks	68	6-1
6	Gracie Alice,	F. Conway	57½	10-1
4	Valley Moon,	O. Beckner	60	10-1

SECOND RACE—5-16 MILE
DEMONSTRATOR, COLONEL JAMESTOWN, SONOVA PRINCESS

8	Demonstrator,	C. Looney	59	3-1
6	Colonel Jamestown,	Wohlauf	65	3-1
1	Sonova Princess,	C. Burnett	50	4-1
2	Mystic Shrine,	H. Bagwell	64	7-1
7	Pepper Mark,	T. Baird	65	8-1
4	Playhouse,	F. Stutz	53	8-1
3	Crafty Chief,	W. Bryant	59	10-1
5	Cap Hare,	F. Spencer	58	12-1

DEMONSTRATOR should come through the stretch to score here over COLONEL JAMESTOWN, which is a contender despite the outside posting. The balance should easily go to SONOVA PRINCESS.

THIRD RACE—FUTURITY
MISTER E. S. T., WHITE DICTATOR, FULTON'S LEADER

4	Mister E. S. T.,	Cedar Pt. K.	63½	4-1
5	White Dictator,	C. Burnett	59	4-1
3	Fulton's Leader,	O. Beckner	61	8-1
2	Tiny Parade,	C. Shively	46	8-1
8	Just A Fire,	H. G. Rogers	59	7-1
7	Cloddy Monk,	F. Palermo	56	8-1
1	Bert's Bugger,	W. Prevatt	62	8-1
6	Roy Bright,	Glenwood Ken.	61	10-1

All the top one needs is racing room to be a handy winner here. WHITE DICTATOR was interfered with in its last but should be the contender here. FULTON'S LEADER could take all of it.

FOURTH RACE—FUTURITY
PILOT'S CALL, BLACK MOON, RUSTY MARTIN

8	Pilot's Call,	D. Sullivan	60	7-2
5	Black Moon,	S. Breeze Ken.	64½	4-1
4	Rusty Martin,	C. Looney	59	4-1
1	Big Better,	T. Baird	62	6-1
6	Jerry Actor,	F. Spencer	58	6-1
7	Touring Days,	C. Burnett	55	8-1
2	Rustling Rover,	F. Palermo	58	8-1
3	Slick Hare,	H. Spencer	61	10-1

PILOT'S CALL has been close to better dogs than these, and off its good races is taken here. BLACK MOON, which has been lowered, might take all of it with RUSTY MARTIN entitled to the balance.

FIFTH RACE—5-16 MILE
BRAVE SHOW, FRISCO BEBE, WOODBURY

1	Brave Show,	J. Highhouse	61	2-1
6	Frisco Bebe,	E. Rhine	51	4-1
7	Woodbury,	G. Rogers	63	5-1
3	Rosanna,	F. Palermo	47	8-1
8	Katie's Way,	Jess Williams	50	8-1
5	Rogue River,	Premier Ken.	49	8-1
2	Bright Banquet,	T. Baird	59	8-1
4	Lively Mistress,	Stephenson	47	10-1

BRAVE SHOW has dropped slightly and figures best here, though FRISCO BEBE will not be too easy to beat. Off its last race WOODBURY rates consideration for a piece of the money.

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY
EASIEST WAY, PRINCESS BREEZE, OHIO GLEE

4	Easiest Way,	C. Burnett	58	5-2
8	Princess Breeze,	S. Breeze K.	62	4-1
3	Ohio Glee,	J. Prevatt	63	6-1
6	Oller Boy,	T. Baird	60	8-1
5	Royal Earl,	F. Falk	66½	7-1
2	Flint Laddie,	H. Bagwell	67	7-1
1	Jersey Jim,	J. Ayotte	64	8-1
7	Double Up,	W. Bryant	53	8-1

EASIEST WAY should be able to repeat its last, which was a handy win. PRINCESS BREEZE, which has been lowered in class, will be bothersome. OHIO GLEE is a money possibility.

SEVENTH RACE—5-16 MILE
SIDE WHEELER, MULTNOMAH ROBIN, BESSEY'S DAUGHTER

7	Side Wheeler,	C. Shively	61	3-1
6	Mult'mah Robin,	O. Wohlauf	65	4-1
1	Bessey's D'ghter,	F. Palermo	50	4-1
8	Irvin Andrew,	M. Dubiel	61	6-1
2	Churchgoer,	J. F. Highhouse	55	8-1
5	Jib Top Sail,	C. Looney	64	8-1
3	Beaverstein,	F. Stutz	58	10-1
4	Reckless Way,	Jess Williams	68	12-1

SIDE WHEELER should improve enough off its last to score here. The Wohlauf pup, MULTNOMAH ROBIN, will be in the fight. BESSEY'S DAUGHTER is a possibility to take all of it.

EIGHTH RACE—FUTURITY
GLEEFUL, HI LO JACK, DUTCH HOLLEN

1	Gleeful,	Jess Williams	70	9-2
4	Hi Lo Jack,	L. Kirkpatrick	68	3-1
2	Dutch Hollen,	F. Falk	62½	4-1
4	Last Out,	F. Athanasaw	66½	7-1
1	Mt. Healthy Boy,	H. Bagwell	62	8-1
8	Perfect Son,	O. Dahlberg	59	8-1
7	Gollis Man,	J. Highhouse	74	10-1
5	My Bugger,	Standard Ken.	65	12-1

GLEEFUL, with the red blanket, rates a mighty call here despite the fact HI LO JACK has shown a return to form. DUTCH Hollen should take the balance and might, if it continues to improve, take all of it.

NINTH RACE—5-16 MILE
HILTON LODGE, CRISS, MY CHERRY

4	Hilton Lodge,	F. Conway	60½	3-1
3	Criss,	L. Butterworth	43½	4-1
6	My Cherry,	W. Prevatt	54	5-1
5	Another Chord,	F. Stutz	69½	6-1
2	Breezing Bud,	J. Highhouse	62	6-1
8	Lesterite,	J. Boone	58	7-1
1	Silver Slim,	H. Bryant	63	8-1
7	My Billie,	W. Prevatt	59	8-1

HILTON LODGE disappointed in its last, over the ⅝ route, but showed enough there to indicate fitness for a win. CRISS behaved well and figures close. MY CHERRY is entitled to consideration for the balance.

TENTH RACE—5-16 MILE
JACK LONDON, OUR FEZ, MR. ZILCH

1	Jack London,	J. Ayotte	65	3-1
6	Our Fez,	H. Bagwell	61	7-2
8	Mr. Zilch,	C. Looney	62	8-1
4	Kimo,	J. F. Highhouse	56	6-1
3	Fell's Lad,	Jess Williams	61	6-1
7	Inez,	F. Boone	56	8-1
5	Main Issue,	W. Bryant	65	10-1
2	Marshall's Gift,	Kirkpatrick	72	10-1

JACK LONDON should be able to repeat his easy win of the last out. OUR FEZ must be in the hunt all the way with the veteran router, MR. ZILCH, in all probability up in time for the balance.

MAETALL Proves Good INVESTMENT

By The Associated Press

Horsemen are wondering if Dewitt Page has another Maedic in his Maemere stable. Last year Maedic won five successive stakes at Saratoga, starting with the flash on the opening day. Yesterday, the Connecticut sportsman sent out Maetall to win the same stake after taking two previous races at Aqueduct.

Although bred differently, Maetall appears to be a mud runner just as was Maedic, which scored most of his victories over "off" tracks. The racing strip was muddy from the torrential rain that flooded the course yesterday but Maetall, a son of Tall Timber, revelled in the going. He won by three lengths in the role of the 3 to 5 favorite.

Regardless of what he does in future stakes, Maetall already has proved a good investment. He was purchased as a yearling for $700. Yesterday's purse of $2225 boosted his earnings for the year to $10,025.

Despite the rainstorm, which held down the opening day attendance, Saratoga got away to a flying start yesterday. The race fans, numbering some 10,000, saw many and important changes in the historic track. One of the greatest improvements is the large betting ring built directly under the grand stand and near the entrance to the paddock. A roof garden also has been built on top of the stands. It is estimated that the association spent close to $200,000 in improving the plant.

Warren Wright's Count Morse has been assigned top weight of 126 pounds for the $20,000 added Arlington Handicap, which will share the limelight with the $55,000 futurity on the closing day program at Arlington Park Saturday. Sun Teddy, also owned by Wright, has been allotted 124, two more than Hal Price Headley's Whopper. Mrs. Emil Denemark's Corinto, winner of the Stars and Stripes, has been assigned 111 pounds and will be shipped back from New York for the event.

With the prospect of a field of ten, the race will gross $23,000 with nearly $16,000 going to the winner.

The futurity figures to draw a field of 12 with Mrs. Ethel V. Mars holding the commanding hand. The Chicago sportswoman has named seven of her two-year-olds, but is expected to pick her starters from Tiger, Sky Larking, Mountain Ridge and C. Note.

Landis Silent on Betting Probe

Chicago, July 27 (US)—Discreetly declaring he had "no information," Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, today refused to confirm or deny reports his office would investigate gambling by major league baseball players.

The former Federal court jurist earlier had been quoted in a St. Louis newspaper as having declared he "would dig to the very bottom of the affair."

The story was believed to have originated from the dismissal of Rogers Hornsby as manager of the St. Louis Browns.

Manske a Bear

Chicago, July 27 (AP)—Edgar Manske, one-time Northwestern University star and a member of the Philadelphia Eagles in the National Professional League the last two seasons, has been signed by the Chicago Bears, Owner George Halas announced.

Goodwood, Eng., July 27 (AP)—Ralph Strassburger's three-year-old colt Firozepore, starting at 100 to 8, won the 94th running of the historic Stewards' Cup over the six furlong route here today.

Mrs. G. Ferrand's Harmachis, at 20 to 1, was second by a neck. J. B. Joel's Gunboat paid 18 to 1 to run third, a short head back of Harmachis. Thirty started.

FARNSWORTH HEADS CONSOLIDATED GAS

The election of E. M. Farnsworth as president of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company was announced today by the board of directors of that company.

At the same time the directors announced the resignation of Dana D. Barnum who has been president since 1917. Barnum will devote himself in the future to consulting work for the Boston company and other gas utilities. The new duties of both men will become effective September 1.

Farnsworth has been vice-president and general manager of the Boston Consolidated Gas Company since 1934. He is also president of Old Colony Gas Company, head offices of which are at Braintree.

A graduate engineer, he joined the latter company in 1911 after previous experience with Stone and Webster.

Morgan's Midgets Used for Bait?

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Congress should follow our advice and pack in during the heat wave. August is going to be hotter than a baker's thumb.

It's still pie all right. But it's mighty flat and not nearly so important.

Mr. Garner goes fishing in Texas when he can. We don't know what he uses for bait. But we never found out what became of Mr. Morgan's midgets.

Senator Nye's Timely Advice to Labor

BECAUSE of the overwhelming deluge of complaints and petitions being received, Congress has been asked to provide an additional $8,000,000 this year for the National Labor Relations Board.

According to figures submitted to the House Appropriations Committee, complaints against employers and petitions for elections to determine employe representation are accumulating AT THE RATE OF 1500 A MONTH.

As against this mountainous volume of increasing business, the Board has been able to make decisions in NINETY-SIX cases since the Wagner Act was upheld by the Supreme Court. Furthermore—

Of 16 cases alleging unfair labor practices by employers, ALL BUT TWO have been decided against the employers; and of 80 employe-representation cases, the decision in all but a few has been awarded to the C. I. O.

ON the face of it, this would indicate an astounding proportion of unfairness by employers, and an astonishing popularity for the C. I. O. among workers.

Not everybody believes that this is so, however, and Senator Gerald P. Nye, of North Dakota, has gone on record at Washington as asserting bluntly and emphatically that it is NOT SO.

Discussing the request of the National Labor Relations Board for more money, Senator Nye said:

"If the National Labor Relations Board had demonstrated its ability to handle the current industrial-labor situation, no one would be more enthusiastic in its praise than I.

"The National Labor Relations Board seems to have gone out of its way to demonstrate to the public that it is a PARTISAN BODY rather than a judicial institution.

"IT HAS DISQUALIFIED ITSELF AS A REFEREE BETWEEN MANAGEMENT AND WORKERS."

We think the American people will agree heartily with Senator Nye when he further says:

"If management is unfair, oppressive or tyrannical, let us punish management. If labor organizations are unfair, ruthless or violent, let us punish labor organizations."

BUT Senator Nye, like many of his fellow citizens, is disturbed greatly at seeing "THE GOVERNMENT UMPIRE BATTING FOR EITHER SIDE."

The ultimate consequences of such a policy, as he points out, can only be DISASTROUS FOR LABOR. In the Senator's plain words:

"The friends of labor who hail the obvious partisanship of the N. L. R. B. should bear in mind that it is quite possible we will see a day when ANOTHER governmental body of the same type will use its tremendous powers TO OPPRESS LABOR."

The country knows that Senator Nye is no Economic Royalist, to be talking in this way.

He has always supported labor legislation, and has indeed been generally regarded as a radical.

His statement is all the more significant for this.

IF labor leaders will not heed Senator Nye's advice, their followers should—and SO SHOULD CONGRESS.

Instead of giving the Labor Relations Board another eight million dollars at this time Congress should AMEND THE WAGNER ACT as it should be amended, and PROVIDE REAL ARBITRATION OF LABOR DISPUTES—compulsory arbitration, IF NECESSARY.

Concord Trails a Spook

CONCORD, N. H., is "ghost hunting." Two squads of flood-light-armed patrolmen maintain nightly vigils in the city's famous Old North Cemetery.

Thus the Granite State's capital joins the thousand and more cities and towns that have sought spooks with questionable success.

And, unless a very much alive disturber of [illegible] is found, the present hunt will undoubtedly be just so much wasted time and effort.

However ghosts do attract powerfully. Tourists and vacationists will travel miles in the hope of seeing one.

So—and this is by no means beyond the realm of speculation — Concord's frolicking spirit may be only Maine's sea serpent in disguise.

Money for Massachusetts

THERE is common sense in Senator Lodge's plea to Works Progress Administrator Hopkins.

The Senator asks for "special consideration for unemployment conditions in Massachusetts and other New England States."

He says: "As everyone knows, Massachusetts was one of the first States to feel the depression and may well be one of the last to emerge from it."

Mr. Hopkins should heed the request. We have contributed liberally to all relief funds, the lion's share of which went to the West and Middle West.

Now, with conditions on the upswing throughout the country, it is only fair that we get back some of the millions that belong to us.

A Dream of Grandeur

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, July 27—Metropolitan police find their most annoying hecklers are the corner gangs in Harlem, Hell's Kitchen and on the lower East Side. Ranging from 16 to 20, they run in packs, like wolves and have a snarling, vindictive hatred for cops. Vincent Coll was one of the ratty breed.

Often I have watched these toughs as a patrolman rounds into sight. They begin to mutter, huddle together and seldom does an officer pass without being the target for some epithet. Alone, any one of them is a cowardly sneak but ganging up they express a boldness.

While lack of employment has created many, the majority are hoodlums looking upon raids as especial valor. They are able to wangle cigarette, beer and movie money by preying upon the defenseless and often crippled small shopkeepers. It is estimated there are 20,000 in the greater city.

There are types of girls who regard them as glamorous and are willing to join in petty stick-ups. Sociologists have found any number of these girls are willing to work and share their hard earned pay just to be known in the neighborhood as Molls.

The talented Helen Hayes appears the stage's most conspicuous example of the city girl and country maid combination. She is one of the most expert of the rhumba dancers and the life of gay luncheon parties at "No. 21" and The Colony. But she is also one of the expert home gardeners at her country place near Nyack, a short motor drive from Times Square. She attends all the town's garden club meetings and has won several prizes for her blooms. Every night she motors to her home from the theater.

The reefer, or cigarette made of [illegible] has become a continued and [illegible] growing menace among New York school children. So much so the Federation of Women's Clubs has started a campaign to offset its insidious influence. The reefer got a toe hold in Harlem several years ago and was particularly favored by so called "hot musicians" in jazz bands. Many say it was the inspiration of swing music and such dances as the Lindy Hop and The Snag. The spread of the drug is due to its cheapness. It is sold around schools by illicit peddlers for five cents a smoke. Once acquired, it's a habit as difficult to break as cocaine.

Many of the practical jokers around the Stork Club and "No 21" especially miss the closing of the burlesque house in Irving place. It was one of the stunts to jockey an innocent down there for a performance. By handing the ticket seller a couple of dollars with a slip upon which was the name of the guest victim a pair of comedians would make him the target for their jokes—mostly astonishingly risque. As the banter grew more ribald he would generally sneak, wondering how in the world a couple of comics had heard about him.

There was a time in the theater when Raymond Hitchcock received a note back-stage containing $50 and a request he mention the name of a gentleman in a box. At the opportune moment Hitchcock, mad as fury, stepped out of his part, read the note and added that whoever presented the note and the $50 could reclaim the cash at the box office and he would be there to sock him in the jaw. Nobody claimed it.

Few liked to have their name mentioned from the stage more than Diamond Jim Brady. He fairly beamed from his front seat on the aisle when reference was made to him or his jewels. And such mentions were good box office, for when his name was bandied about auspiciously he would bring friends back again and again to occupy two and three rows of the choicest and most expensive chairs. Brady loved publicity but he cashed in on it more than any man of his time.

They were reminiscing in Gene Buck's office about the best remembered comic picture. Mine was one by Rea Irvin showing a man at the opera puzzled by a bow from a man in full evening dress a few seats away. All night long he sought to place that face he knew so well but couldn't. Upon stretching out in the barber chair the next morning he opened his eyes and looked up into the face of the stranger at the opera. It was his barber.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Elsie Robinson

Why'd you tell that silly fib this morning? And fly into that childish tantrum last night?

For exactly the same reason that transformed Dillinger into a were-wolf . . . and made Nero fiddle while Rome burned—

EMOTIONAL IMMATURITY.

Strange mixtures, we humans. You can never tell what's lurking beneath our transformations and toupees. Outwardly we may seem and sound grown-up . . . even outstandingly brilliant. Yet at any moment we may break out in some amazing infantile or outlaw act. Why? Because our development isn't balanced. Mentally we're mature; emotionally we're children or savages.

The trouble starts in our ignorance of our own nature. Not one person out of a thousand realizes that human nature has different departments. Thoughts and feelings—we lump them together. But they are not together. Often they are dark worlds apart. You may be thirty in actual years. You may think as a person of thirty should think.

DEVELOPMENT OF EGO

But do you feel as a person of thirty should feel?

Are you cool and collected under strain? Can you take things in your stride? Or do you magnify trifles; take everything personally; go into tantrums of anger or self-pity if circumstances don't please you?

Trace any silly or vicious act to its source and you will find that this statement is true. Invariably you'll discover infantile emotions running amuck. Show-offs, smarties, bullies, conceited publicity-seekers—they are all expressing their own emotional immaturity.

Loeb and Leopold—those murderous young monsters—were unusually bright mentally. They had been splendidly educated—mentally. But emotionally they were stunted cripples.

Spectators at their dreadful trial thought their callousness was a pose. It was not. They were entirely sincere. It was as impossible for them to feel normal horror, pity, tenderness or remorse as for a baby, an idiot or a savage.

This is all the more tragic because it is preventable. We are not born with "infantile fixations." We acquire them—or have them thrust upon us—usually at a very early age. Generally a doting or thoughtless mother is responsible.

Ego is as well developed at 8 months as at 80 years. The youngster receives too much attention—or too little.

SPIRIT BECOMES "FIXED"

Instead of developing normally, the bruised spirit becomes "fixed" at an infantile period . . . the baby grouch becomes a life-long obsession.

You have seen it happening. Famous and talented men of 50 still boasting childishly, to offset humiliations suffered long since in some tenement alley. Neurotic women dominating a whole family with tyrannical demands, as compensation for some fancied slight or neglect. Emotional infants or cripples—all of them.

And how about YOURSELF—or MYSELF? We're "of age" on all the registration blanks. But when somebody grabs the newspaper before we've read it, or borrows our best salad dish and breaks it . . . HOW OLD ARE WE THEN?

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

A mere statement that the national debt of the United States amounts to more than 36 and one-half billion dollars means little to the average citizen. That is such an astronomical figure people cannot comprehend its meaning. But the explanation given by the Twentieth Century Fund that it would take the entire earnings of all the working people in the United States, toiling six days a week for 11 months, to pay off this debt is something everybody can understand.

Frank Trimmer, Oklahoma farmer, and J. E. Benton, Oklahoma oil field worker, certainly qualified as heroes and public benefactors when they grabbed the guns of two Texas convicts who were holding them as hostages, and shot and killed one of the desperadoes and sent the other to a hospital.

It took a lot of nerve to do what Trimmer and Benton did. They had to act on the spur of the moment, when an opportunity presented itself, and they had to succeed or their own lives would have been forfeited.

A dispatch from Tientsin, China, announcing that the Fifteenth United States Infantry had been ordered to stand by under full war packs to defend the [illegible] and keep the railroad to Chinwangtao open reminded many American citizens of the fact that this country has troops stationed regularly in China.

What a holler there would be from the United States if China insisted upon keeping an armed force in San Francisco! And suppose England, France, Germany, Italy and Japan undertook to station troops in New York City to protect their "interests" there! It may be that American soldiers must be kept in China to protect our concessions there, but while we do that we are flirting with trouble all the time.

Japan's Aims in China

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

Edwin C. Hill

War seems to be coming in North China. The explosion is due any day. And many busy folks, who haven't time to study the devious procedure of Oriental diplomacy, wonder what it's all about. Here's the answer:

Japan wants North China, to expand and consolidate her vast new empire on the Asiatic mainland. She aims for the mastery of all Asia, and the day will come when Japan and Russia will have to fight that issue out. Asia is not big enough for both.

Japan wants Shanshi Province, with its 127,115,000,000 tons of coal and its rich iron, copper and salt deposits.

That is China's version of Japanese aggression, widely published throughout the country. For the last year, Chinese leaders and patriots have been preaching that Shanshi is "China's last line of defense," and predicting that Japanese strategy and aggression of the immediate future would be directed toward its seizure.

SHANSHI AT STAKE

The Province of Jehol is already in Nippon's maw; also part of Chahar, and there is virtual Japanese domination of Hopei, with the "autonomous" government that has been set up there. Then there was the invasion of Suiyan by the Japanese.

In Jehol, the Japanese got vast areas of poppy land—the vast opium trade—which they expanded and exploited cannily, and in other provinces they gained valuable agricultural areas. But Shanshi, say all studious observers, is a stake in comparison with which the others are trivial.

Hence it would appear, with the Chinese unity which has been developing in the last year, today's skirmishes are the preliminaries of a major engagement.

Last March, Japan withdrew from Northern China the plump and insidious little Lieutenant General Kenji Doihara, who for twenty-five years had been the head of Japan's underground secret service in China, whispering the war lords into savage contention, sowing the seed for Japanese expansion on the mainland of Asia.

Optimistic and possibly naive commentators saw in his return to Tokyo a revelation of Japan's withdrawal from provocative and predatory tactics in China. Gen. Doihara certainly had stirred up a lot of trouble.

At last there were grounds for conciliation. There would be new mutual respect, and there would be new commercial treaties, stimulating commerce, with friendly concessions on both sides.

* * *

That, as we have noted, was last March. Today, heading Japan's secret service in China, we find the astute and resourceful Colonel Wachi. He is nominally the head of the second section of the Japanese garrison forces of North China, but he also is the head of the Japanese "special service," which really means secret service. He is the sharp spearhead of Japanese penetration.

Currently, the Chinese publish and distribute throughout the country what is supposed to be a verbatim report of the strategy agreed upon and ordered at a joint meeting of Japanese officers at the Army Club in Tientsin, May 1.

HATE "TALKING" GENERAL

It is an elaborate document, in which the "special service" of Japan is assigned to fomenting trouble in various provinces, over wide areas. According to this publication, and this writer has only the Chinese version, Colonel Wachi is carrying through exactly the same techniques with which General Doihara enraged China.

* * *

For 25 years, clever little General Doihara worked underground, oozing quietly around North China, speaking Chinese perfectly, frequently disguised as a Chinese. In 1935, he came to surface and began to talk. The Chinese, who hated him savagely, called him Ta-Hira Wu-shih which means "much talk and not much happening."

It is possible that this unexpected loquacity was the cause of his sudden recall last March.

"ETERNAL SPONGE"

At any rate, the quick substitution of the equally devious and resourceful Colonel Wachi would indicate that Japan is carrying through her long-range plan on the same old lines.

Shanshi is a western province, deep in the interior. Napoleon, in Moscow, learned that a vast, loose, amorphous and inhospitable country may become a dangerous military bog. It would be absurd, of course, to suppose for a minute that the clever little Japanese hadn't figured all that.

Perhaps that is why their present curtain-raiser was preceded by a 25-year build-up—or breakdown, to put it more accurately.

But, at that, China is the "eternal sponge." It has soaked up a lot of invaders.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Europe is like a serpent filled with venom. Fearing to let go at one another, they eject their poison on America.

The latest of these American-baiters is the Very Rev. W. E. R. Morrow, provost of Chelmsford Cathedral, in London.

"In every contact with the United States there has been a lowering of moral standards and a flippancy in which the noblest ideals of domestic life have been derided."

It may be that we Americans have not all the graces that come from hundreds of years of flunkeyism and court sycophancy, but certainly we have NOT taken our "ideals of domestic life" from the lives of Henry the Eighth and his eight wives or from the three or four Georges.

According to Donald Grant, vice-president of the Dancing Teachers Association, more than six million adults and children are now enrolled in dancing schools in this country. More than $100,000,000 a year is being spent in these lessons. It is a healthful sign.

Dancing shakes everything loose in us. It raises the tide of life. It puts flame in the eye. It gives us the illusion of getting OUT OF SPACE.

Dancing puts us in harmony with the universe. Nature is movement and rhythm. EVERYTHING dances. Waters dance. Stars dance. Leaves dance in the wind. The atoms and electrons dance to the waltz of some hidden Strauss. Walt Disney has made animals and nature dance. And if the "Music of the Spheres" is no illusion of the poet, the planets and suns dance around one another.

One of the oddest stories of dancing is that of Sir Christopher Hatton, who attracted the roving eye of Queen Elizabeth. Chris danced so well at a masque ball that, merely because of his grace, the Queen made him chancellor and a knight of the garter.

He became known as "The Dancing Chancellor."

Nietzsche founded his philosophy on the dance. He called himself the dancing philosopher. He believed as long as our thoughts DANCED we were still moving forward.

Let your mind dance. Let your tongue dance when you talk. Dancing and music are the great civilizers.

ON WITH THE DANCE!

Ronto has a suspected "Bluebeard." He is in jail and is alleged to have done away with five of his twenty wives.

"Bluebeard is a world folk-tale which is supposed to have originated in the famous fairy-story of Charles Perrault written in 1697. As you recall, this human ogre with a blue beard, who lived in a great castle, forbade his wife to open a certain door. Like Eve, she disobeys and discovers the bodies of Bluebeard's former affinities. She is, however, saved and the nasty fellow is "despatched," as the old tragic writers used to say.

But how many of you know that Bluebeard was REALLY A LIVING PERSON? The original Bluebeard on which Perrault built his story was Giles de Laval, Lord of Raiz, who was Marshal of France in 1429.

This fine fellow murdered one wife after another and killed young boys and girls. He used their blood for his "witchcraft." The Duke of Brittany had Giles burned alive in 1440—not because he was the greatest murderer of his age but, ironically enough, because of some trivial crime against the state.

We do not burn Bluebeards today, but, on the other hand, they find it's NO FAIRY-STORY when they are caught.

Nothing more forcibly illustrates the personal nature of beliefs of all kinds and the influence that latitude and longitude have on forming our profoundest convictions that the following statement by Father Llorento, who works among the Eskimos up around Anchorage, Alaska:

"The first preachers told the Eskimos about Hell but the natives [illegible] to go there to keep [illegible] hauling wood."

Some of the ancient theologians would have changed their minds considerably if they had known that Hell was Heaven in the eyes of an Eskimo.
